Trade Accord Junked

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Soviet Union has renounced the 1972 trade agreement with the United States and nullified an apparent understanding to step up Jewish emigration, Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger said Tuesday night.

In a far-reaching series of actions, President Ford has decided he is now unable to grant the Soviets nondiscriminatory tariff treatment under the new Trade Reform Act, Kissinger said.

The break-up of a carefully nurtured commercial agreement could have a major impact on U.S.-Soviet relations, although Kissinger said "all the communications we have received from the Soviet government seem to suggest that the political orientation is unchanged."

Kissinger said in a statement that Moscow views provisions in the new trade act as interference in Soviet domestic affairs.

"The administration regrets this turn of events," said Kissinger, whose detente policy has dominated foreign affairs for several years.

He said the administration "has regarded and continues to regard an orderly and mutually beneficial trade relationship with the Soviet Union as an important element in the over-all improvement of relations."

A spokesman for Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., who led the effort to incorporate into the trade act an amendment linking trade concessions with freer Soviet emigration, said Jackson would have no comment until he was fully informed on details of the latest development.

In New York, an official of the National Conference on Soviet Jewry said: "We anticipate a reopening of negotiations to permit implementation of the 1974 trade act" as it affects the Soviets.

"We expect that this will be consistent with the provisions of the agreement worked out by Secretary of State Kissinger and Sen. Jackson and the mandate of the legislation with respect to emigration," said Jerry Goodman, the group's executive director.

In his statement, Kissinger said Moscow considers the new trade legislation "as contravening both the 1972 trade agreement, which had called for an unconditional elimination of nondiscriminatory trade restrictions, and the principle of noninterference in domestic affairs."

"The Soviet government states that it does not intend to accept a trade status that is discriminatory and subject to political conditions and, accordingly, that it will not put into force the 1972 trade agreement," Kissinger's statement said.

The 1972 trade agreement is the basic accord between Moscow and Washington that laid the foundation for normalizing trade between the two nations. It included authorization for American trade credits to the Soviet Union and terms for settling the Soviet World War II lend lease debt.

The Jackson-Vanik amendment in the trade bill passed by Congress last month tied non-discriminatory tariff treatment to an increase in Jewish emigration. Separate legislation, meanwhile, limited an extension of the 2972 trade credits to $300 million over a four-year period.

Kissinger, in responding to newsmen's questions, said, "When the Soviet Union looked to the totality of what it had to gain against intrusion into its domestic affairs it reached the decision we have today."

The secretary of state said the Soviets notified the United States of its objections by letter last Friday and follow-up conversations since then.

Moscow informed Washington that it would repudiate any statements claiming it had given assurances on emigration, Kissinger said.

In view of these developments, Kissinger said, President Ford has decided the 1972 trade agreement cannot be brought into force and that he would not grant the Soviet Union most-favored-nation trafiff status.

Kissinger said that was no reason to assume that the Soviets would exacerbate tensions in other areas. He said he assumes "our policy of detente remains in force."

However, he emphasized that he disagreed with some congressional tactics, although not with the objective of free emigration, and wanted to steer clear of public claims that the Soviets had given assurances of specific numbers of Jews who would be allowed to leave their country.

The effect of the action is to nullify all U.S. government trade credits to the Soviet Union and the timetable for Soviet payments of an $11-billion World War II debt. Under the 1972 accord, Moscow agreed to pay $722 million over the $199 million previously paid.

Payments of $12 million in 1972 and $24 million in 1973 were made. Another $12 million was due on July 1, with the balance of $686 million to be paid out over an extended period following the granting of most-favored-nation benefits.

Left intact are all major provisions of the new trade act enabling the United States to begin negotiations with more than 100 nations for tariff reductions in Geneva next month as well as a $25-billion lending authority for the Export-Import Bank for nations other than the Soviet Union.

Soviets Siting Multi-Missiles

WASHINGTON (AP) — The first Soviet missiles capable of carrying multiple warheads that can be aimed at different targets are being deployed, Defense Secretary James R. Schlesinger said Tuesday.

Schlesinger said at a Pentagon news conference that the United States has "confirmed evidence" that the SS18 intercontinental ballistic missiles are being placed in launch silos in the Soviet Union.

Presidential Press Secretary Ron Nessen, meanwhile, said negotiations with Russia on a new 10-year agreement to limit strategic offensive weapons will resume at Geneva in Jan. 31.

And a Senate subcommittee released testimony given last fall by Schlesinger estimating that a massive Soviet attack on the United States would kill 95 million to 100 million people, including deaths from fallout.

A limited Soviet attack, Schlesinger had estimated, would kill 6.7 million Americans and injure another 5.1 million.

At his news conference, Schlesinger said that besides the SS18s, there are unconfirmed indications that the Russians have started deployment of the SS19, a smaller but powerful missile.

The SS18 has been tested with as many as eight separate, independently targeted warheads, and the SS19 with six. The American Minuteman missile carries three warheads which can be aimed at separate targets.

The Geneva talks will aim at implementing the understanding reached at Vladivostok Nov. 24 between President Ford and Soviet leader Leonid I. Brezhnev. The U.S. delegation will be headed by Ambassador U. Alexis Johnson.

In that understanding, the two leaders agreed to restrict both the United States and the Soviet Union to a total of 2,400 strategic missiles and heavy bombers, including 1,230 missiles armed with multiple warheads. Both countries, however, would be permitted to modernize their missile forces.

Schlesinger said the United States had anticipated that the deployment of the new Russian missiles would begin at about this time. He said two other new missiles have been tested but are not yet being deployed. The United States began deploying its first multiple-warhead missiles about five years ago.

Schlesinger's predictions on possible damage in a nuclear attack were declassified by the Senate Foreign Relations subcommittee on arms control.

He said at that time that "the Soviets have a capability, which will increase they deploy MIRV (multiple warhead) missiles, to conduct selective and limited strikes against the United States."

He also estimated that a massive American retaliation against Russian industrial centers would inflict 100 million fatalitites in the Soviet Union.

Deficiency Requests Nearly $18 Million

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

The Legislature's Appropriations Committee Tuesday fielded an unwelcome assignment — nearly $18 million in 1974-75 deficiency budget requests which require decisions.

The requests seek additional funds under the current state budget, and precede the hundreds of millions of dollars of budget askings for the coming 1975-76 fiscal year.

Fiscal 1974-75 ends June 30.

The chief item in the $18 million package — some $16.4 million of which would come from state tax funds — is $6.1 million to replace invalidated property tax support for the statewide system of technical community colleges.

Court Decision

Property tax support for the schools was wiped out by a State Supreme Court decision last summer.

Other major deficiency requests include nearly $5 million to fund state assistance for educating handicapped children and $2.6 million to fully fund the state's homestead property tax exemption program.

Upon the suggestion of Sen. Robert Clark of Sidney, the committee directed its staff to draft immediately a bill to provide the homestead exemption funding.

The Department of Public Institutions is seeking a $1.3 million deficit appropriation, while the University of Nebraska is asking that its current appropriations be boosted by $1.5 million.

The Military Department wants an additional $385,400 to fund re-enlistment bonuses authorized by the 1974 Legislature.

23 Seek Changes

Prior to presentation of the deficiency request package by Legislative Fiscal Analyst Eldin Ehrlich, the committee heard an explanation of Gov. J. James Exon's proposed salary plan for state employes.

The request would "allow all employes making $9,400 or less annually to gain on the upward surge of living costs," John Jacobson, budget director of the Department of Administrative Services, told the senators.

That assumes a 10% cost of living hike in fiscal 1975-76.

Exon has proposed a 5% salary boost plus $465 for each full-time state employe.

Extra $22.7 Million

The Exon administration estimates that such a salary proposal would cost the state an additional $22.7 million in the coming fiscal year, including nearly $12.1 million in state tax funds.

(The legislative fiscal staff had earlier estimated those figures at $23.4 million and $10.7 million.)

The average annual full-time salary would rise from $9,411 to $10,346 a year, Jacobson estimated.

The plan would "provide the greatest percentage increase to (those with the) lower salaries," he said. Total salary hikes would range from 6% to 16%, he estimated.

Application of the plan would establish the minimum wage for state employes at $2.26 per hour, Jacobson said, or six cents more than the statutory minimum wage which becomes effective next Jan. 1.

Donald Haack, a professor of engineering mechanics at NU, appeared before the committee to urge consideration of a faculty plan to upgrade salaries at the university.

The committee hopes to reach a state employe salary decision as swiftly as possible.

Curtis Attributes Election To 'Middle-Of-Road' GOPs

By LYNN SILHASEK
Star Staff Writer

Washington — Sen. Carl Curtis, elected chairman of the Senate Republican Conference Tuesday, attributed his win to "the so-called middle-of-the-road senators" who wanted balanced representation among ranking Republicans.

Curtis defeated New York Sen. Jacob Javits by a 23-14 vote in the race for the party's third highest leadership post in Congress.

In a telephone interview, the Nebraska senator said an important factor in the election was the feeling of many senators that "the leadership should have balance both ideologically and geographically."

The five top party posts, are, for the most part, held by senators from the east, Curtis said. Sen. Hugh Scott, holding the No. 1 slot as Senate minority leader, is from Pennsylvania. The second top position, party whip, is held by Michigan Sen. Robert Griffin.

As conference chairman, Curtis will preside over weekly meetings of Republican senators. Curtis also will attend White House meetings along with other Republican leaders, where he said he plans to give information on how party legislative proposals will affect rural and agricultural areas.

One specific issue where Curtis said he plans to represent agricultural interests is with President's proposals to conserve energy.

According to Curtis, "some allowances" need to be made in distributing fuel among farmers.

"To conserve energy (in farming) would mean a cutback in food production," Curtis said. He added he strongly encourages all agricultural and industrial production in the United States.

Curtis outlined some areas where energy consumption could be curbed to provide more fuel for agriculture. He suggested that auto manufacturers might design cars with better gas mileage and that individual homes burn less natural gas.

Curtis said he also would support greater fuel allocations to people without access to public transportation, or to those who depend on driving for their "day-to-day work."

As conference chairman, Curtis will make appointments to the Committee on Committees. He also will appoint the members of the Committee on Senatorial Campaigning, and six members of the Senate Policy Committee.

According to Curtis, these powers may thrust him into the forming of partisan politics, in that he will be concerned with the top policies of the party.

But the senator said he had no plans for party positions higher than conference chairman.

Having now "the opportunity for additional service to the state," he said, "I want to do a good job where I am."

Nebraska's other Republican senator, Roman Hruska, was unavailable for comment on Curtis' victory.

New Inventory System Said A Money Saver

By BOB GUENTHER
Star Staff Writer

A new inventory system, called Last-In-First-Out (LIFO), is going to mean Nebraska corporations will save $3.1 million in taxes in fiscal 1976.

Asst. State Tax Commissioner Gary Chunka offered that estimate Tuesday concerning the impact of the new inventory system.

Business experts generally agree that the current high rate of inflation is behind the switch by many firms from the traditional inventory method, called First-In-First-Out (FIFO), to LIFO.

Projection Dips

The State Revenue Department had projected $36.6 million in state corporate income tax for fiscal 1976. Chunka said the LIFO inventory method has caused tax experts to project $33.5 million in corporate income taxes instead.

Corporations will pay an estimated $28.8 million in state income taxes for fiscal 1975.

How can an inventory system account for such a savings?

For example, a firm sells widgets for $15 apiece. At the beginning of the year it costs the firm $8 to manufacture the widgets, but due to inflation a widget soon costs $10 to make.

Old Method

Under the old method where the oldest stock is sold first, the firm would pay income taxes on a widget which costs $8 to make and sells for $15. Under that method the firms pays taxes on the $7 profit margin.

Under LIFO, the firm's tax liability is cut because taxes are only paid on $5 profit per widget.

Here, the newest widget which cost $10 to make is sold first; the widget manufactured for $8 is kept in inventory.

Ultimately, Chunka said, the cheaper widget is sold, but the taxes are deferred to take advantage any changes in tax laws.

Could Come Out Ahead

If there is a tax cut for investment credit, he said the manufacturer could come ahead using LIFO.

"Tax planning recently has gone towards delaying payment," Chunka said.

"All corporations that can realize a tax savings and are aware of it are at least considering it if not implementing it," he said.

Chunka saids LIFO is most commonly used for non-perishable items. "You couldn't use LIFO if you were selling tomatoes," he said.

"Inflation is what makes it possible," he said.

Business experts generally agree that the current high rate of inflation is behind the switch by many firms from the traditional inventory method, called First-In-First-Out (FIFO), to LIFO.

Projection Dips

The State Revenue Department had projected $36.6 million in state corporate income tax for fiscal 1976. Chunka said the LIFO inventory method has caused tax experts to project $33.5 million in corporate income taxes instead.

Corporations will pay an estimated $28.8 million in state income taxes for fiscal 1975.

How can an inventory system account for such a savings?

For example, a firm sells widgets for $15 apiece. At the beginning of the year it costs the firm $8 to manufacture the widgets, but due to inflation a widget soon costs $10 to make.

Old Method

Under the old method where the oldest stock is sold first, the firm would pay income taxes on a widget which costs $8 to make and sells for $15. Under that method the firms pays taxes on the $7 profit margin.

Under LIFO, the firm's tax liability is cut because taxes are only paid on $5 profit per widget.

Here, the newest widget which cost $10 to make is sold first; the widget manufactured for $8 is kept in inventory.

Ultimately, Chunka said, the cheaper widget is sold, but the taxes are deferred to take advantage any changes in tax laws.

Could Come Out Ahead

If there is a tax cut for investment credit, he said the manufacturer could come ahead using LIFO.

"Tax planning recently has gone towards delaying payment," Chunka said.

"All corporations that can realize a tax savings and are aware of it are at least considering it if not implementing it," he said.

Chunka saids LIFO is most commonly used for non-perishable items. "You couldn't use LIFO if you were selling tomatoes," he said.

"Inflation is what makes it possible," he said.

Ford To Ask For $22.5 Billion Permanent Tax Cut

WASHINGTON (AP) -- President Ford, already seeking a one-shot $16 billion tax reduction to counter the recession, let it be known Tuesday he will ask Congress for $22.5 billion in additional permanent tax cuts.

And, administration sources said the President also plans to seek postponement of clean-air standards for power plants to help them convert quickly from oil-burning to coal-burning boilers.

Press Secretary Ron Nessen said the proposed $2-a-barrel tax on crude oil and taxes on windfall profits of oil companies would add some $30 billion to federal revenues. This money, he said, would offset the income lost because of the tax reductions.

Ford will spell out his entire economic and energy policy package in his broadcast State of the Union address to Congress on Wednesday.

The President has also invited the governors of the 50 states to a White House briefing Thursday on his proposals. In addition, invitations have been sent to representatives of state legislatures and organizations of city and county officials.

Interior Secretary Rogers C.B. Morton disclosed Tuesday that Ford's State of the Union address would include proposals to speed power plant conversions to coal.

Ford disclosed Monday night in a TV-radio address that he will ask Congress to authorize a one-time cut of 12 per cent in last year's taxes, to be accomplished through rebates to individual taxpayers of up to $1,000. In addition he said he wants a one-year increase, to a flat 12 per cent, in the tax credits businesses claim for money spent to expand and modernize their production facilities.

Nessen made additional key disclosures Tuesday that included:

—A Ford plan to cut individual income taxes, starting this year, by $16.5 billion, with the largest reductions going to the poorest taxpayers.

—A proposal to cut the maximum corporate tax rate to 42 per cent from 48 per cent on a permanent basis, resulting in $6 billion revenue loss.

—Direct federal payments of $80 to each adult American who is so poor he pays no income taxes. This would cost an estimated $2 billion.

—A $2 billion annual increase in revenue sharing funds distributed to state and local governments, the increase designed to offset the higher fuel costs they would pay if Congress imposes a $2 excise on each barrel of crude oil entering the economy from either foreign or domestic sources.

Nessen estimated the per-barrel charge plus the impact of lifting price controls from much domestic production would add $250 to the annual fuel bill of the average American family. He said gasoline prices would rise about 10 cents a gallon.

In an unusual move, Nessen volunteered statistics that showed a decidedly mixed public reaction to Ford's Monday address. In the first 14 hours after the President spoke, Nessen said, the White House received 259 telegrams, Mailgrams and telephone calls opposing Ford's economic-energy proposals and 258 in favor.

Nevertheless, the press secretary said, Ford was "pleased by the way he was able to get what he wanted over to the public."

Comment on the President's proposals included the charge by AFL-CIO President George Meany that "the President's one-shot proposal to stimulate the economy adds up to peanuts for the poor."

The U.S. Chamber of Commerce recommended a 10 per cent income tax credit for individuals and a 10 to 12 per cent investment credit for business.

And Gov. Michael S. Dukakis of Massachusetts said the proposed oil tax would be a "devastating blow" to New England.

Illustrating what he termed the President's objective to "get more money back to the poor," Nessen gave these examples of permanent tax cuts that would go to average families of four with varying adjusted gross incomes, meaning the amount reported before subtractions for deductions and exemptions:

—$10,000: from $867, to $518, down 40.3%
—$12,500: from $1,261 to $961 down 23.8%
—$15,000: from $1,699 to $1,478, down 13%
—$20,000: from $2,660 to $2,450, down 7.9%
—$30,000: from $4,988 to $4,837, down 3%.
—$40,000: from $7,958 to $7,828, down 1.6%

Nessen said $80 annual payments to non-tax paying adults would go to those 18 years of age or older who are not listed as someone else's dependent for tax purposes. Such persons would get a form from the Internal Revenue Service on which they would write their name, address, Social Security number and income.

The press secretary also said the federal government expects to surrender about $500 million a year in revenues through a Ford proposal to give tax credits to homeowners who install fuel-saving storm windows and insulation. A taxpayer could subtract from taxes due 15 per cent of the amount he spent for such purposes, up to a maximum of $150.

In other major economic news:

—A judge for the Federal Power Commission said he plans to order emergency relief for industries in six states where massive layoffs are threatened because of cuts in natural gas supplies.

—President Ford set in motion preparations for the United States to take part in the Tokyo round of trade negotiations with more than 100 other nations.

—The Federal Home Loan Bank Board announced a planned rule change allowing institutions to issue mortgage-backed bonds. The board said the move will pump several extra billions of dollars into savings and loan associations for lending to home buyers.

Overflights 'Could' Be Resumed

Washington — The State Department, asked to confirm reports that the United States has resumed reconnaissance flights over North Vietnam, said that because of alleged North Vietnamese violations of the cease-fire accords, the United States under international law could resume such flights. Defense Secretary James R. Schlesinger indicated that a massive invasion of South Vietnam might spur Ford to ask Congress to lift the ban on the use of American force.

Reactions To Economic PLans Mixed

New York — Business and financial leaders, as well as economists and labor leaders, gave President Ford's economic program a lukewarm reception. Some applauded, especially the auto industry, but others saw the pump-priming as inflationary and said they were worried about large federal deficits. Utility and petrochemical industry officials reacted angrily to the energy program, as did real estate owners and developers.

Extension To Be Asked

Washington (Star-News) — Charles Goodell, chairman of the presidential clemency board, said Tuesday he will ask President Ford within the next few days to extend the life of the board beyond its Jan. 31 expiration date.

Hanoi, VC React Sharply

SAIGON (AP) — North Vietnam and the Viet Cong reacted sharply Tuesday to a U.S. protest note accusing the Hanoi government of grave violations of the cease-fire. Both turned the charge back on the United States and accused it of increasing its military involvement in Indochina.

On Monday, the United States sent a protest note to the guarantors of the Paris agreement warning that North Vietnam "must accept the full consequences" for grave violations of the cease-fire. It accused North Vietnam of sending more than 160,000 troops, 400 armored vehicles and artillery and antiaircraft weapons into the South during the cease-fire.

A commentary over Radio Hanoi said the State Department had distorted "the determination by the South Vietnamese people and armed forces of their legitimate rights to self-defense to punish the Saigon troops and defend the Paris agreement . . ."

On Tuesday, a State Department spokesman in Washington renewed the U.S. accusations, saying North Vietnam had committed "massive violations" of the cease-fire pact.

The Hanoi broadcast said, "The United States and their henchmen must bear responsibility for all consequences arising from their acts. Over the past two years the United States has consistently, seriously and systematically violated the peace accord."

In Paris, the Viet Cong called the U.S. protest note "an arrogant threat" and said. "The people of South Vietnam will not allow itself to be intimidated by Washington's note . . ."

A Viet Cong spokesman said no "threat" will stop the South Vietnamese people from continuing "its struggle to impose strict implementation of the Paris agreement."

Gunners Kill Cambodian Refugees

PHNOM PENH, Cambodia (AP) — Communist-led rebel gunners unleashed a deadly barrage on a Mekong River convoy Tuesday, killing 26 refugees and wounding 42, Cambodian navy sources reported. Government forces immediately launched counterattacks north and east of Phnom Penh.

In South Vietnam, heavy fighting flared along the Cambodian border 55 miles west of Saigon and along the central coastal plain 300 miles farther north. Several attacks also were reported in the Saigon region.

One South Vietnamese military official said, "Hostile acts between the opposing forces have reached what is believed to be the highest intensity since the cease-fire nearly two years ago . . ."

In New York, U.N. Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim expressed "gravest concern" at "the increased scale of the fighting in recent weeks" in Indochina.

"It is essential for all parties involved to abide by the terms of the Paris agreement and to make progress toward the required political settlement of this lengthy and tragic war," he told a news conference.

But Waldheim avoided singling out North Vietnam or the Viet Cong and said he was still studying "very carefully" a U.S. note he got Monday asking that he appeal to North Vietnam and the Viet Cong to stop the fighting and work out a peaceful settlement.

The Cambodian counterattacks were aimed at pushing rebel forces back from positions they have occupied for the past two weeks, the Phnom Penh command said.

It said in one of the drives, less than 10 miles north of the capital, 74 rebels were killed. Field reports said another counterattack, directly across the Mekong River from Phnom Penh, met heavy resistance.

Propeller-driven T28 fighters bombed and strafed insurgent positions along the east bank of the Mekong River and the planes pulled out of their dives over the city. Scores of persons lined the city's river front to watch the action.

Levi, Coleman Formally Named

Washington (UPI) — President Ford formally announced Tuesday his nomination of University of Chicago President Edward H. Levi to be attorney general and Philadelphia lawyer William T. Coleman to be transportation secretary.

At the same time, White House press secretary Ron Nessen said Ford had sent to the Senate his nomination of James T. Lynn, secretary of housing and urban development, to be budget director.

If approved by the Senate, Levi would succeed William B Saxbe as head of the Justice Department; Coleman would replace Claude S. Brinegar, who has resigned effective Feb. 1, and Lynn would take over from Roy Ash, who is returning to private business.

Saxbe's nomination as ambassador to India was confirmed by the last Senate before adjournment.

Levi's nomination had been opposed behind the scenes by Sens. James O. Eastland, chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee, and Roman Hruska, R-Neb. but an aide said Tuesday that Hruska would support the appointment.

Asked if Ford believed Levi would be confirmed, Nessen said: "The President certainly hopes so."

"Certainly in terms of the scholarship, integrity and administrative experience of the nominee, the quality of the choice is outstanding," the Oklahoma City attorney said.

Levi has a background in antitrust and monopoly matters — a field in which the Justice Department under Saxbe has concentrated.

Coleman, 54, a native of Philadelphia, said Tuesday he will resign from the board of directors of Pan American World Airways to avoid any conflict of interest. He would be the first black Cabinet member in the Ford administration.

A Republican, Coleman is former president fo the NAACP Legal Defense Fund. He helped draft the brief for the 1954 Supreme Court school desegregation decision.

Associates Pay Off Mortgage For Nixon

San Clemente, Calif. (UPI) — Richard Nixon's $523,000 mortgage on his beachfront estate is being paid off but associates declined to say who came up with the money.

The payment was due Tuesday.

Charles Horning, attorney for the Cotton estate which previously owned the property, said he was informed Monday that a certified check would be delivered to him Wednesday. The check would be for $506,000 still due on the mortgage plus $17,000 interest, Horning said.

"We will get a certified check and we don't care where it came from," Horning said. "We expect to be paid in full and be out of the picture."

Not all of the money is owed by the former president.

Sources close to Nixon said that while the Cotton mortgage was to be paid off, there would be a new mortgage holder and Nixon still must pay interest and other obligations. These sources declined to identify the new mortgage holder.

The $1.5 million estate is owned by Nixon together with the B & C Investment Co., a partnership formed by his two wealthy friends, banker Bebe Rebozo and industrialist Robert Abplanalp.

Nixon was unable to make a $226,000 payment on the property when it fell due last July and paid $17,000 interest then to get a six-month extension on the final payment.

Nixon's personal attorney, Dean S. Butler, who told Horning the mortgage payment would be forthcoming, declined to discuss the payment.

He said he is constrained by the attorney-client relationship from saying anything about the former president's finances.

"There is nothing here that I can see is newsworthy," he said.

Ford To Ask For $22.5 Billion Permanent Tax Cut

WASHINGTON (AP) -- President Ford, already seeking a one-shot $16 billion tax reduction to counter the recession, let it be known Tuesday he will ask Congress for $22.5 billion in additional permanent tax cuts.

And, administration sources said the President also plans to seek postponement of clean-air standards for power plants to help them convert quickly from oil-burning to coal-burning boilers.

Press Secretary Ron Nessen said the proposed $2-a-barrel tax on crude oil and taxes on windfall profits of oil companies would add some $30 billion to federal revenues. This money, he said, would offset the income lost because of the tax reductions.

Ford will spell out his entire economic and energy policy package in his broadcast State of the Union address to Congress on Wednesday.

The President has also invited the governors of the 50 states to a White House briefing Thursday on his proposals. In addition, invitations have been sent to representatives of state legislatures and organizations of city and county officials.

Interior Secretary Rogers C.B. Morton disclosed Tuesday that Ford's State of the Union address would include proposals to speed power plant conversions to coal.

Ford disclosed Monday night in a TV-radio address that he will ask Congress to authorize a one-time cut of 12 per cent in last year's taxes, to be accomplished through rebates to individual taxpayers of up to $1,000. In addition he said he wants a one-year increase, to a flat 12 per cent, in the tax credits businesses claim for money spent to expand and modernize their production facilities.

Nessen made additional key disclosures Tuesday that included:

—A Ford plan to cut individual income taxes, starting this year, by $16.5 billion, with the largest reductions going to the poorest taxpayers.

—A proposal to cut the maximum corporate tax rate to 42 per cent from 48 per cent on a permanent basis, resulting in $6 billion revenue loss.

—Direct federal payments of $80 to each adult American who is so poor he pays no income taxes. This would cost an estimated $2 billion.

—A $2 billion annual increase in revenue sharing funds distributed to state and local governments, the increase designed to offset the higher fuel costs they would pay if Congress imposes a $2 excise on each barrel of crude oil entering the economy from either foreign or domestic sources.

Nessen estimated the per-barrel charge plus the impact of lifting price controls from much domestic production would add $250 to the annual fuel bill of the average American family. He said gasoline prices would rise about 10 cents a gallon.

In an unusual move, Nessen volunteered statistics that showed a decidedly mixed public reaction to Ford's Monday address. —$30,000: from $4,988 to $4,837, down 3%.
—$40,000: from $7,958 to $7,828, down 1.6%

Nessen said $80 annual payments to non-tax paying adults would go to those 18 years of age or older who are not listed as someone else's dependent for tax purposes. Such persons would get a form from the Internal Revenue Service on which they would write their name, address, Social Security number and income.

The press secretary also said the federal government expects to surrender about $500 million a year in revenues through a Ford proposal to give tax credits to homeowners who install fuel-saving storm windows and insulation. But Waldheim avoided singling out North Vietnam or the Viet Cong and said he was still studying "very carefully" a U.S. note he got Monday asking that he appeal to North Vietnam and the Viet Cong to stop the fighting and work out a peaceful settlement.

The Cambodian counterattacks were aimed at pushing rebel forces back from positions they have occupied for the past two weeks, the Phnom Penh command said.

It said in one of the drives, less than 10 miles north of the capital, 74 rebels were killed. Field reports said another counterattack, directly across the Mekong River from Phnom Penh, met heavy resistance.

Propeller-driven T28 fighters bombed and strafed insurgent positions along the east bank of the Mekong River and the planes pulled out of their dives over the city. Scores of persons lined the city's river front to watch the action.

Associates Pay Off Mortgage For Nixon

San Clemente, Calif. (UPI) — Richard Nixon's $523,000 mortgage on his beachfront estate is being paid off but associates declined to say who came up with the money.

The payment was due Tuesday.

Charles Horning, attorney for the Cotton estate which previously owned the property, said he was informed Monday that a certified check would be delivered to him Wednesday. The check would be for $506,000 still due on the mortgage plus $17,000 interest, Horning said.

"We will get a certified check and we don't care where it came from," Horning said. "We expect to be paid in full and be out of the picture."

Not all of the money is owed by the former president.

Sources close to Nixon said that while the Cotton mortgage was to be paid off, there would be a new mortgage holder and Nixon still must pay interest and other obligations. These sources declined to identify the new mortgage holder.

The $1.5 million estate is owned by Nixon together with the B & C Investment Co., a partnership formed by his two wealthy friends, banker Bebe Rebozo and industrialist Robert Abplanalp.

Nixon was unable to make a $226,000 payment on the property when it fell due last July and paid $17,000 interest then to get a six-month extension on the final payment.

Nixon's personal attorney, Dean S. Butler, who told Horning the mortgage payment would be forthcoming, declined to discuss the payment.

He said he is constrained by the attorney-client relationship from saying anything about the former president's finances.

"There is nothing here that I can see is newsworthy," he said.

94th Congress Opens As Battle Lines Form

WASHINGTON (AP) — The 94th Congress proceeded through its traditional opening day ceremonies Tuesday with battle lines already forming between its heavily Democratic majorities and President Ford over tax and energy programs.

Most Congressional Democrats said Ford's tax cut plan should be revamped to concentrate benefits on lower and middle income taxpayers. The White House did announce that the permanent tax reductions to be sought by the President will strongly favor lower income groups, which might meet one of the Democratic objections.

Ford's press secretary, Ron Nessen, announced these new reductions in addition to the President's proposed $16.5-billion reduction in taxes which were disclosed Monday night.

Ford will outline his full program at noon Wednesday before a joint session of Congress in his formal State of the Union speech. The permanent cuts would be in addition to the one-time 12 per cent rate Ford outlined Monday night, applying to 1974 income alone. . .

As the rituals of swearing in members whose terms actually started Jan. 3 proceeded before galleries packed with family members in both Houses, the Senate promptly became enmeshed in a battle over its disputed New Hampshire seat.

The debate was set off when Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield moved to send the entire matter, including rival election certificates for Democrat John A. Durkin and Republican Louis C. Wyman, to the Rules Committee for a recommendation.

Neither was seated as 33 senators, including 10 newcomers, with their home-state colleagues proceeded to the rostrum in groups of four to be sworn in by Vice President Nelson A. Rockefeller, presiding to open the session.

The House, in one of its first moves, voted to abolish the Internal Security Committee, once known as the Un-American Activities Committee. The committee's jurisdiction was shifted to the Judiciary Committee when a package of rules for the new Congress was approved 259 to 150.

The Democratic caucus had earlier voted by a wide margin to abolish the committee.

The representatives were gaveled to order by the House clerk, former Rep. W. Pat Jennings of Virginia. Then, after a 45-minute call of the roll of 435 members, it re-elected Rep. Carl B. Albert of Oklahoma to his third two-year term as speaker.

He then swore in the new House, whose 291-144 Democratic majority is the biggest since a 295-140 Democratic margin in the 89th Congress elected in 1964.

In the Senate, where the Democratic majority stands at 61 to 38 pending the New Hampshire outcome, both parties elected their leaders at morning caucuses.

The Democrats, for the eighth straight time, picked Mansfield, who has broken all records of service as majority leader and his party's leader.

They also re-elected their other leaders, including President Pro Tempore James O. Eastland of Mississippi, the senior Democrat, who presides when Rockefeller is absent.

The Republicans, meanwhile, elected one of their most conversative members, Sen. Carl T. Curtis of Nebraska, to succeed the retired Sen. Norris Cotton of New Hampshire as Senate Republican Conference chairman, a party leadership position.

Sen. Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania remains as the GOP leader.

As is usual on opening day, the mood on Capitol Hill was jovial with Republican senators escorting Democratic colleagues up the center aisle for swearing in ceremonies.

Durkin attended the Democratic caucus, and Mansfield declared in his opening remarks that "hopefully, subject to clarification under our constitutional processes," he will be seated.

Wyman, who eked out a two-vote margin after the state's Republican governor rescinded a certification of Durkin's 10-vote victory and tossed the matter to the state's Ballot Review Commission, didn't attend the GOP caucus.

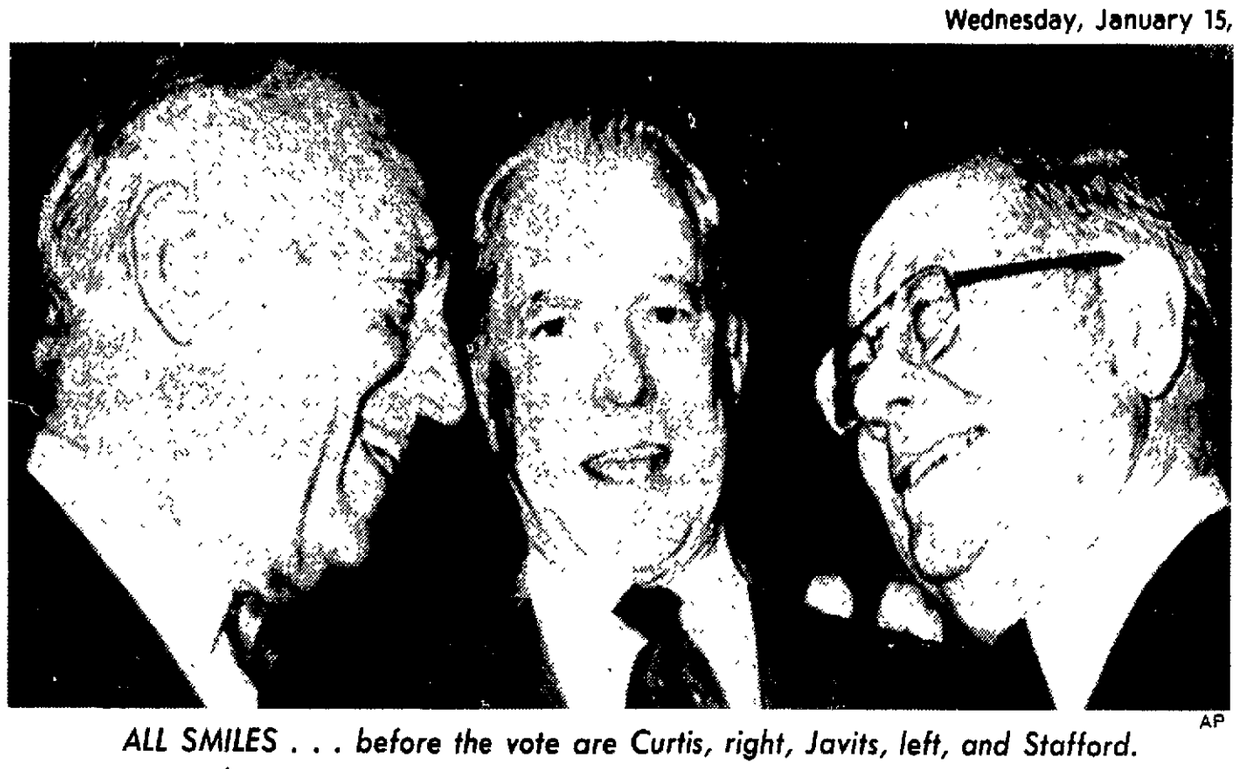

But both sat in the back of the Senate as the two parties maneuvered over the fate of the seat. A vote was put off until at least Thursday.

In other developments:

—The Senate agreed to start debate Friday on this year's effort, led by Sens. Walter F. Mondale, D-Minn. and James B. Pearson, R-Kan., to make it easier to choke off filibusters by permitting three-fifths of the Senators, instead of two-thirds, to limit debate.

—Rep. Henry S. Reuss, D-Wis., announced he will challenge the re-election of 81-year-old Rep. Wright Patman, D-Tex., as chairman of the House Banking Committee.

Sen. George M. McGovern, D-S.D., said he and 30 other senators will introduce legislation Wednesday to block a cutback proposed by the Ford administration in the food stamp program.

Curtis Heads GOP Senators Conference

WASHINGTON (AP) — Conservative Republican senators held on to a key leadership position Tuesday, electing Sen. Carl T. Curtis of Nebraska to head the conference of all GOP senators.

Curtis, considered one of the most conservative members of the Senate, defeated liberal Sen. Jacob K. Javits of New York on a 23-14 vote.

Curtis succeeds retired conservative Sen. Norris Cotton of New Hampshire in what is variously considered the No. 3 or No. 4 position in the Senate Republican leadership.

Republican Leader Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania and his deputy, Robert Griffin of Michigan, were re-elected without opposition, as was Sen. John G. Tower of Texas, chairman of the Republican Policy Committee.

Sen. Robert Stafford of Vermont was unopposed in his bid to succeed retired Sen. Wallace F. Bennett of Utah as secretary of the party conference.

Sen. Ted Stevens of Alaska was named chairman of the Senate Republican Campaign Committee, which coordinates fund-raising efforts aimed at electing more GOP senators.

He succeeds Sen. Bill Brock of Tennessee, who is up for re-election to the Senate next year.

Javits, 70, who was elected Nov. 5 to his fourth six-year Senate term, said he made the race against Curtis because he considered it his party duty.

He said his sharp ideological differences with Curtis gave Senate Republicans a clear choice for the leadership job.

But Curtis earlier had portrayed the fight as more geographical than philosophical. He said "the great Republican belt" running westward from Chicago deserved representation in the leadership hierarchy.

Curtis, 69, has served in Congress longer than any other sitting Republican. He was elected to the House in 1938 and served 16 years before winning a Senate seat in 1954.

Curtis, who is ranking Republican on the Senate Finance Committee, was one of former President Richard Nixon's staunches supporters during Nixon's Watergate troubles. Javits, on the other hand, was sharply critical of Watergate and the scandal that drove Vice President Spiro T. Agnew from office, saying such actions threatened the future of the Republican party.

Divorce Residency Upheld

WASHINGTON (AP) — A state may constitutionally lay down residency requirements for obtaining a divorce, the Supreme Court ruled Tuesday.

Forty-eight states have such requirements, ranging from six weeks in Idaho to two years in Rhode Island.

In other cases, the court:

—Declined to strike down a Connecticut procedure for denying unemployment compensation on the basis of interviews, noting that the state law had since been changed.

Ruled that the National Labor Relations Board need not meet requirements of the Administrative Procedures Act in dealing with jurisdictional disputes between unions.

Both decisions were unanimous.

Justice William O. Douglas, who is recovering from a stroke, took part in all three cases. A court spokesman said Douglas assented to the decisions before he was stricken on New Year's Eve.

Douglas's wife, Cathleen, told a newsman that the justice was "better," but that the doctors had given her no indication of when he might return to the bench.

Ford Won't Propose Health Insurance

Washington (UPI) — President Ford has decided not to propose national health insurance legislation to the new Congress this year, it was learned Tuesday.

A White House source told UPI that Ford's decision is part of his announced one-year moratorium on new federal spending programs. But Rep. Al Ullman, D-Ore., predicted the House would pass some sort of national health insurance bill this year.

Ullman, incoming chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, said in an interview that increased alcohol and tobacco taxes are "a definite possibility" to help pay for national health insurance.

Ullman said in an interview the idea of boosting taxes on smokers and drinkers "has real merit and a sound rationale."

Ford's decision to abandon any administration health program came as a surprise. The President had backed a proposal by his predecessor, Richard M. Nixon, to require employers to offer health insurance to workers financed through the private health insurance system.

In a statement to Congress Nov. 18, Ford said he supported the principles of the Nixon proposal but added that Congress would first have to help cut federal spending before the nation could afford national health insurance.

Ullman introduced an insurance reform bill creating new health care corporations to provide doctor, hospital and other services.

Most children don't brush properly or often enough. That's why the dental scientists at Lever Brothers invented a new fluoride dentifrice called Aim.® If you have children, read on:

Most cavities happen between the ages of five and fifteen.

You're a conscientious parent. You make your children brush with fluoride toothpaste. You don't question fluoride's effectiveness. But they still seem to get more cavities than they should.

Why?

Could be your children have poor brushing habits. Could be they eat too many sweets. And they probably don't brush properly or often enough. Surveys show the average child brushes less than 30 seconds at a time.

Dentists have long stressed that there's no better cavity prevention than brushing. Even a fluoride toothpaste can't do its best if a child brushes too briefly or too infrequently.

That's why Lever enhanced Aim's fluoride formula with flavoring compounds known to be especially appealing to children. The results were astounding.

In tests with 1,300 children, Aim was preferred 2 to 1 over the leading fluoride toothpastes. And chances are, the better your child likes his toothpaste, the longer he'll brush.

Why new Aim is a gel.

The speed at which a toothpaste dissolves is called the "Dispersal Rate." Because Aim is a gel, not a paste, it has an exceptionally fast dispersal rate.

This means when a child brushes with Aim it spreads its good taste faster than paste in the normal brushing time.

Unique gel formula is low in abrasion.

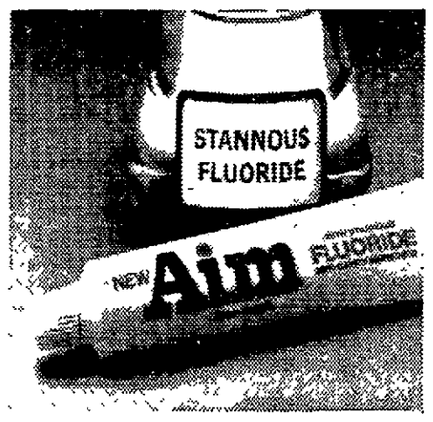

In order to clean teeth, all toothpastes must be somewhat abrasive. That's how they keep teeth clean.

But many mothers are concerned about abrasion. So Lever designed new Aim to be among the lowest in abrasion of all leading toothpastes.

Aim has stannous fluoride, the proven cavity-fighter.

A child in the cavity-prone years needs all the help you can give. Be sure his toothpaste contains fluoride.

Stannous fluoride has been researched more thoroughly than any other anti-cavity ingredient. Aim has the precise amount of stannous fluoride established as effective by dental authorities in reducing tooth decay.

Ask your dentist about Aim.

Add it up: A flavor to promote better brushing. A gel that disperses faster and is low in abrasion. The precise amount of fluoride established as effective by dental authorities.

Useless Post Revived?

Mayor Schwartzkopf has proposed that a Department of Public Safety be created as an umbrella to cover the Lincoln fire and police departments and as the possible first step toward the consolidation of law enforcement, fire protection and other emergency services in the city and county.

We're somewhat leery of the proposal, which the mayor and apparently some City Council members think will take "politics" out of the selection of the Lincoln fire and police chiefs.

Under the Schwartzkopf plan, the mayor would appoint a public safety director and the City Council would confirm that appointment. The public safety director would appoint (realistically, at the mayor's behest) the fire and police chiefs. This, it looks to us, would just add one more ingredient to the political stewpot. And if at such time there is consolidation of law enforcement, corrections and, we presume, fire protection, functions, the county board would, under the mayor's plan, have confirmation privileges with regard to the public safety director. Even if the chief law enforcement and fire protection officers presided over a countywide operation, the addition of another confirming body would provide considerably leeway for "politics."

The public safety department with its directorship was thrown out several years ago on the recommendation of the retiring director, Emmett Junge, and with the consent and encouragement of Mayor Schwartzkopf, who has remained opposed to re-establishing the office until recently.

How the establishment of another layer of bureaucracy will benefit the police and fire protection functions in Lincoln is beyond us. It would mean additional red tape and cost — it has been proposed that the annual salary of the director would range between $19,000 and $25,000. That is just for openers.

Thus a new bureaucratic layer would be created — or an old one brought back to life — while several years ago, as we recall, the fire and police chiefs and the mayor saw no need for a departmental superstructure; the last director saw no need for his own position and recommended that it be abolished and everybody was happy that it was.

What is happening, of course, is that controversy is building over the choice of the next Lincoln police chief, who will replace Chief Joe Carroll when he retires.

The mayor is said to want to elevate Assistant Chief Dale Adams, who has come up through the LPD ranks, while some members of the council reportedly believe that prior service with the Lincoln department need not be an overriding factor.

Parenthetically, and this is not meant as a comment on Adams' qualifications, we don't feel that the best training for the position of Lincoln police chief necessarily is received within the Lincoln department and prior service here should not be an absolute qualification. Most cities look elsewhere as well as at home in the search for qualified people.

University presidents don't always — in fact, rarely — come up through the ranks. Nor do hospital administrators, city department heads, police commissioners, city managers and so forth. Administrative talents can be universally applied so it seems to us a Lincoln police chief could come from just about anywhere.

At any rate, in the tugging and pulling over a successor to Joe Carroll, we hope all the city and departmental machinery isn't wrenched out of kilter. It will be folly to set up new or tear down old procedures in the cause of just one, single appointment.

In our view, the best arrangement would be mayoral appointment and council confirmation of Lincoln police and fire chiefs. We think the chiefs, especially the police chief, should joint the list of officials requiring council confirmation because of the sensitive nature of the position. Police power is the most fearsome governments hold and as many restraints as possible should bear on its use.

But whatever is done should be done only after careful consideration. Change in procedure should only come if it is better over the long run, not to fit a particular set of circumstances.

Traveling In Circles

President Ford will explain today the nuts and bolts of his economic program and it would be well for him to be thorough, because to the untrained eye it appears that the more things change, the more they are the same.

In one pocket goes the tax refund and the lowered withholding tax for 1975. Out the other pocket goes more money for gas and heating. It won't be an even trade, of course. There are a lot of variables. But it seems that there won't be a whole lot of the refund left to prime the economic pump in other areas.

But wait a minute — won't there be rebates to many energy users? Of course, but then, that won't discourage consumption, will it? Hmmmm.

More Redcoats Coming

WASHINGTON — It is time for another Paul Revere to ride through America's suburbs, warning unaware citizens that the redcoats of the federal judiciary are coming, ready to impose their will on every middlesex, village and farm.

To put things bluntly, the Supreme Court's July, 1974, Detroit decision, widely publicized as prohibiting suburban-inner city busing, is turning out to be a delusionary demobilization of metropolitan social engineers. And those who think my language excessive and sensationalized should consider these disturbing developments:

1. A three-judge federal panel in Wilmington, Delaware, meets today to hear oral arguments on alternative busing plans, including one calling for city-suburban pupil exchange. Back before the Detroit decision, the court found that Wilmington schools were segregated, and ordered the Board of Education to submit corrective blueprints. When the Detroit decision was announced, school board lawyers came to court asserting that there were no longer grounds for considering a metropolitan plan. But the court noted that Justice Potter Stewart, the swing vote in the court's 5-4 decision, had said that cross-district busing might be "proper, or even necessary, in other factual situations." Consequently, the Wilmington judges told both sides they wanted to hear the local pros and cons of suburban-city busing in January, and they evidently regard themselves as free to order a metropolitan-wide remedy.

2. On December 11, the U.S. Sixth Circuit Court of Appeals, sitting in Cincinnati, found city-suburban collusion in Louisville, Kentucky, based in part on the city having allowed some white pupils to go to county schools. As a result, and after carefully rereading the Detroit decision, the Sixth Circuit Appeals Court ordered 30,000 pupils bused between downtown Louisville, where schools are about 50% black, and suburban Jefferson County, where schools are about 90% white. If this ruling stands, it will make the Detroit decision into a hollow legal shell.

3. In August, a three-judge federal court in Chicago specifically found nothing in the Supreme Court's Detroit school case to prohibit use of metropolitan-wide remedies in the housing field. Chicago housing authorities were accused of discrimination in site selection and tenant assignment policies that kept public housing in downtown ghetto areas. The federal panel saw no objection to a city-suburban plan for erasing the "segregation," saying that the realities of "white flight" and "black concentration" simply can't be ignored.

4. In Denver, Colorado, where city-wide crosstown busing is in effect, the school system is being destroyed. Stirling Cooper of the Center for the Study of Education says the white enrollment in Denver has decreased nearly 30% since 1970, and as of December, whites constituted just 54% of the total.

"One thousand parents a month are making the decision whether to stay in Denver or go to the suburbs," says Cooper. "Whites will quietly disappear in two to three years." Denver NAACP President Gene Howell says that "moving to the suburbs is no answer at all. Sooner or later, the suburbs will be faced with busing."

It is beginning to look as if the Detroit decision was essentially a charade. Last month, Nathaniel Jones, counsel for the national NAACP, told the New York Times that "in retrospect, it looks like the court was stalling for time because of the national furor over busing." But the Supreme Court isn't alone in flummoxing the American people. Congress had done the same thing, publicly passing anti-busing amendments and privately scuttling them. Moreover, the new Congress will be even less willing to take meaningful anti-busing measures, and the possibility of a constitutional amendment is dead until the 1976 elections.

As Congress, the courts and the constitutional process prove unresponsive to the three-to-one anti-busing majority that has existed among the American people for the last five years, it is becoming harder and harder to believe in the "system".

Two hundred years ago, the people of Boston were the first to face the unworkability of the existing legal system, and their current resistance to judicial tyranny may contain a similar message for the rest of the nation.

Help When Needed

Lincoln, Neb.

On behalf of the patients and personnel of Lincoln General Hospital, I would like to extend our deepest appreciation to the Lincoln Police Department, Civil Defense, and a multitude of unidentified individuals who provided transportation and assistance for our personnel during the recent snow storm.

Most people realize that a hospital is open 24 hours a day, every day, and that even a blizzard does not eliminate its responsibilities to patients.

Without the assistance of the organizations and individuals previously mentioned, coupled with the dedication of many Lincoln General Hospital employes who worked extra hours overtime and stayed overnight to maintain our service, this effort would not have been maintained.

We thank each and every one who assisted us during those critical hours.

Lots Of Memories

Lincoln, Neb.

In regard to the feature, "Echoes, Memories — Are All That Is Left For Old House" in the Jan. 6 Star yes, there are memories for me of this old house north of Waverly.

Around 1915, 1916, or 1917 my brother-in-law bought an old church and moved it about a quarter of a mile down the road and remodeled it into a house. My Dad helped him and stuccoed it. It was a lovely home. I slept there many times.

Wanting more than an 80, my brother-in-law sold it and bought a 160-acre farm. The man who bought this place with the help of his brother from Omaha was the type who didn't keep it up, couldn't make a go of it and let his Omaha brother take it over.

To me, this place is a monument to neglect. I know, for I know who bought the place and also who lives across the road now. That place is now occupied by at least the third generation and they have children perhaps in the Waverly High School. Back three generations ago, it was not a new house and it looks better now than it did even then. They care.

Thanks for the memories.

Basis For Water Rate

Lincoln, Neb.

It seems as though people are very docile about the new water rate system that is soon to go into effect. An article in a local newspaper termed it a "very unique method" of determining the rate for water consumption. I think it is more ridiculous than unique.

Perhaps people haven't realized that the average homeowner will be helping subsidize the larger consumers in that the rates of the larger consumers will be considerably reduced and if the home-owner uses more than the base amount established for him, then his rate increases considerably as his usage increases, while the larger user or consumer of whom there are only a few will be using at this reduced rate.

If rates were on a balanced scale, it wouldn't be so bad. But as it is, there appears to be a great differential in favor of the few instead of the majority. I ask — is that fair?

People should inquire into this matter and make their wishes known before it is too late. They should make their feelings known on this important matter either by telephone or letter to the water department or the director of public works. They should not be quiescent about something as important as this might prove to be. Once it is in operation, it will be difficult to have it changed.

New Route Prospects

Lincoln, Neb.

The Star is quite right in its assessment (Jan. 10) that a second Amtrak route from Omaha to Cheyenne would not compete with the existing one to Denver; and we regard it as shameful that major Nebraska communities like Columbus, Grand Island and North Platte are without rail passenger service. For that reason, we support restoration of the City of Portland train.

It should be made clear, however, what that service would NOT do. If the scheduling of a revived City of Portland is arranged, as formerly, to provide scenic daytime service in the mountain states, it will pass through Omaha and much of the rest of the state in the middle of the night, just as Amtrak's present Denver train does. The potential for daytime Lincoln-Omaha-Chicago service, which would not force users to choose between more expensive Pullman accommodations and an all-night sit-up ride in a day-coach, will remain untapped.

For this reason, our organization places a high priority on the restoration of daytime Lincoln-Chicago service utilizing the Rock Island route through Des Moines, a city certainly larger than Boise, and one which is presently not served by Amtrak, at all. Persons interested in finding out more about the prospects of such a route are invited to contact us.

First Important Step

Lincoln, Neb.

Now that the Wounded Knee trials in Lincoln are completed and the Air Park barracks are empty, it is time that the citizens of Lincoln know of the dedication of a number of concerned people who cooperated to house, feed and sometimes clothe and transport the visiting Indians who lived in our community during the past half year.

As a late-comer to the Committee of Concerned People, I found an efficient organization of persons truly concerned with the welfare of our visitors. The response of churches and congregations who offered the contents of their pantries, their manpower and their funds for this cause was most gratifying. The unselfish devotion of individuals from many walks of life who gave innumerable hours and dollars to aid the Indians never ceased to amaze me. Even on his deathbed, one individual was still vitally concerned with the delivering of some foodstuffs to the barracks. Several Lincoln businesses also cooperated far beyond original expectations in feeding the Indians.

Those of the committee who dealt directly with the Indians came to know and understand a deeply spiritual culture much different than our own. And understanding is indeed the first step toward acceptance.

Here in Lincoln during the past six months, some Lincolnites took a first, if feeble, step toward a peaceful reconciliation with our native Americans. It was a task well done.

One Big Zilch Day

NEW YORK — Tomorrow, I am told, is "National Nothing Day."

Three non-existent cheers.

The news of this nationwide observation was announced on the radio. Appropriately, there was nothing by way of explanation, and a complete void of suggestions on how to celebrate. Just an announcer saying " 'National Nothing Day' will be held on January 16." Naught more . . .

☆ ☆ ☆

Every reporter knows that "national days" and "national weeks" all have sponsors. Pickle packers initiate "National Pickle Week," physicians inaugurate "National Health Observance Day," insecticiders launch "Take a Rat to Lunch Month," etc.

So "Nothing Day" must have a sponsor. But who?

The hefty N.Y. Telephone Director was little help. Although there is a name for virtually anything in this vast city, the only "nothing" listed is "Nothing To Wear, Ltd." A call to that number revealed they've changed their name and have nothing to do with nothing any more.

☆ ☆ ☆

Maybe "Nothing Day" could be sponsored by a Void? Clarence and Minnie Void wouldn't do a thing like that.

How about Naut? The Nauts in the book were not responsible.

There are plenty of Zeros in New York who conceivably might have initiated a Nothing celebration. But all of the Zeros,

NATIONAL NOTHING DAY SPONSOR

Striving for nothingness synonyms, we checked the directory for Empty; but Empty Pockets Publishers didn't start it all.

Then came Blank. There are 111 Blanks in New York City, from Abe to William, but it's doubtful they were the sponsors because they have no apparent corporate connection.

Unwilling to give up, it occurred that perhaps "National Nothing Day" could commemorate an ennui-ed state of mind, rather than a physical condition — but the "Blech" and "Ach" families must be declared innocent, and M. Yech didn't answer the phone.

In desperation, we wondered if "National Nothing Day" might connote — not emptiness or ennui at all, but economic nothingness. It might be an observance of the current recession. But to our amazement, there are no Broke families living in the city. No Penniless people either. There are 15 Poor folks in the phone book, but surely they are not responsible because most of them live on the wealthy East side of Manhattan, a far cry from Nothing.

After long hours of researching "National Nothing Day," we have come to the conclusion that it is a freak among celebrations — and that noone is sponsoring it.

And who lives in Washington.

Speaking of nothing, you can have great bunches of it if you respond to some of those advertisements that offer "Earn a good income, at home, in your spare time . . ."

According to the Better Business Bureau, if an ad asks "Why sit at home and be paid nothing?" what it really means is, "Why sit at home and pay us nothing?"

If the ad suggests that you send money (usually $3, $7 or $10, a small enough fee to keep you on the hook), warns the BBB, you will be supporting the ad-writer's career nicely.

And you can celebrate "National Nothing Day" all year round, thanks to that rat fink. (No relation, of course, to Ms. N. Rat of New York City, or any of our 158 resident Finks!)

Repeat Of History?

ROME — With the latest North Vietnamese military victories in South Vietnam prompting renewed assumptions that the communists are now virtually invincible in the South, it is particularly interesting to note what Khrushchev had to say about the strength of the Hanoi forces at the time of Bien Phu in 1954.

If the late Soviet leader told the truth in his memoirs, "Khrushchev Remembers" it is a startling revelation of how incredibly wrong the American and French governments were about Ho Chi Minh's power when the French gave up at Dien Bien Phu. It was the French collapse there that led to the 1954 Indochina Peace Conference, the partition of Vietnam, and eventually American involvement in the Vietnam.

Throughout the early months of 1954, the French government kept telling Washington its forces were no match for Ho Chi Minh's guerrillas and it could not hold out unless the United States intervened militarily.

In late March, General Paul Ely, French Chief of Staff, visited Washington on his way back to Paris from Vietnam. He reported the French military forces in desperate straits and that major American military intervention would be necessary to save the situation.

The following month, then Secretary of State John Foster Dulles cabled President Eisenhower from Paris that "the situation at Dien Bien Phu is desperate." He said the only alternatives were "massive B-29 bombings . . . or a request for cease-fire."

President Eisenhower made American intervention conditional on British participation, which Churchill and Eden refused. The French gave up at Dien Bien Phu and pulled out of Vietnam.

According to Khrushchev, they did so at a time when Ho Chi Minh's resistance movement was on the verge of collapse.

Referring to a 1954 conference in Moscow that was attended by Ho Chi Minh and Chou En-lai, Khrushchev said that at one of the sessions in the Kremlin's Catherine Hall, the then Chinese foreign minister took him into a corner and said:

"Comrade Ho Chi Minh has told me the situation in Vietnam is hopeless and that if we don't attain a cease-fire soon, the Vietnamese won't be able to hold out against the French. Therefore, they've decided to retreat to the Chinese border if necessary, and they want China to be ready to move troops into Vietnam as we did in North Korea.

"In other words, the Vietnamese want us to help them drive out the French. We simply can't grant Comrade Ho Chi Minh's request. We've already lost too many men in Korea — that war cost us dearly. We're in no condition to get involved in another war at this time."

Shortly thereafter the Vietnamese captured the fortress of Dien Bien Phu because of the French failure to reinforce it. Khrushchev described the capture as "a miracle." He said that when French Premier Mendes-France later offered to partition the country at the 17th parallel, "We gasped with surprise and pleasure. We hadn't expected anything like this. The 17th parallel was the absolute maximum we would have claimed ourselves."

If Congress does not renege on the American government's commitment to keep South Vietnam supplied with sufficient aid to maintain a reasonable military balance with North Vietnam, the prowess of Hanoi's forces may prove to be as overrated in the '70s as they were in the '50s.

Useless Post Revived?

Mayor Schwartzkopf has proposed that a Department of Public Safety be created as an umbrella to cover the Lincoln fire and police departments and as the possible first step toward the consolidation of law enforcement, fire protection and other emergency services in the city and county.

We're somewhat leery of the proposal, which the mayor and apparently some City Council members think will take "politics" out of the selection of the Lincoln fire and police chiefs.

Under the Schwartzkopf plan, the mayor would appoint a public safety director and the City Council would confirm that appointment. The public safety director would appoint (realistically, at the mayor's behest) the fire and police chiefs. This, it looks to us, would just add one more ingredient to the political stewpot. And if at such time there is consolidation of law enforcement, corrections and, we presume, fire protection, functions, the county board would, under the mayor's plan, have confirmation privileges with regard to the public safety director. Even if the chief law enforcement and fire protection officers presided over a countywide operation, the addition of another confirming body would provide considerably leeway for "politics."

The public safety department with its directorship was thrown out several years ago on the recommendation of the retiring director, Emmett Junge, and with the consent and encouragement of Mayor Schwartzkopf, who has remained opposed to re-establishing the office until recently.

How the establishment of another layer of bureaucracy will benefit the police and fire protection functions in Lincoln is beyond us. It would mean additional red tape and cost — it has been proposed that the annual salary of the director would range between $19,000 and $25,000. That is just for openers.

Thus a new bureaucratic layer would be created — or an old one brought back to life — while several years ago, as we recall, the fire and police chiefs and the mayor saw no need for a departmental superstructure; the last director saw no need for his own position and recommended that it be abolished and everybody was happy that it was.

What is happening, of course, is that controversy is building over the choice of the next Lincoln police chief, who will replace Chief Joe Carroll when he retires.

The mayor is said to want to elevate Assistant Chief Dale Adams, who has come up through the LPD ranks, while some members of the council reportedly believe that prior service with the Lincoln department need not be an overriding factor.

Parenthetically, and this is not meant as a comment on Adams' qualifications, we don't feel that the best training for the position of Lincoln police chief necessarily is received within the Lincoln department and prior service here should not be an absolute qualification. In our view, the best arrangement would be mayoral appointment and council confirmation of Lincoln police and fire chiefs. ☆ ☆ ☆

Every reporter knows that "national days" and "national weeks" all have sponsors. Pickle packers initiate "National Pickle Week," physicians inaugurate "National Health Observance Day," insecticiders launch "Take a Rat to Lunch Month," etc.

So "Nothing Day" must have a sponsor. But who?

The hefty N.Y. Telephone Director was little help. Although there is a name for virtually anything in this vast city, the only "nothing" listed is "Nothing To Wear, Ltd." A call to that number revealed they've changed their name and have nothing to do with nothing any more.

☆ ☆ ☆

Maybe "Nothing Day" could be sponsored by a Void? Clarence and Minnie Void wouldn't do a thing like that.

How about Naut? The Nauts in the book were not responsible.

There are plenty of Zeros in New York who conceivably might have initiated a Nothing celebration. But all of the Zeros,

NATIONAL NOTHING DAY SPONSOR

Striving for nothingness synonyms, we checked the directory for Empty; but Empty Pockets Publishers didn't start it all.

Then came Blank. There are 111 Blanks in New York City, from Abe to William, but it's doubtful they were the sponsors because they have no apparent corporate connection.

Unwilling to give up, it occurred that perhaps "National Nothing Day" could commemorate an ennui-ed state of mind, rather than a physical condition — but the "Blech" and "Ach" families must be declared innocent, and M. Yech didn't answer the phone.

In desperation, we wondered if "National Nothing Day" might connote — not emptiness or ennui at all, but economic nothingness. It might be an observance of the current recession. But to our amazement, there are no Broke families living in the city. No Penniless people either. There are 15 Poor folks in the phone book, but surely they are not responsible because most of them live on the wealthy East side of Manhattan, a far cry from Nothing.

After long hours of researching "National Nothing Day," we have come to the conclusion that it is a freak among celebrations — and that noone is sponsoring it.

And who lives in Washington.

Speaking of nothing, you can have great bunches of it if you respond to some of those advertisements that offer "Earn a good income, at home, in your spare time . . ."

According to the Better Business Bureau, if an ad asks "Why sit at home and be paid nothing?" what it really means is, "Why sit at home and pay us nothing?"

If the ad suggests that you send money (usually $3, $7 or $10, a small enough fee to keep you on the hook), warns the BBB, you will be supporting the ad-writer's career nicely.

And you can celebrate "National Nothing Day" all year round, thanks to that rat fink. (No relation, of course, to Ms. N. Rat of New York City, or any of our 158 resident Finks!)

BRANDO'S LATEST TANGO

KINGSBURY SMITH

Repeat Of History?

ROME — With the latest North Vietnamese military victories in South Vietnam prompting renewed assumptions that the communists are now virtually invincible in the South, it is particularly interesting to note what Khrushchev had to say about the strength of the Hanoi forces at the time of Bien Phu in 1954.

If the late Soviet leader told the truth in his memoirs, "Khrushchev Remembers" it is a startling revelation of how incredibly wrong the American and French governments were about Ho Chi Minh's power when the French gave up at Dien Bien Phu. It was the French collapse there that led to the 1954 Indochina Peace Conference, the partition of Vietnam, and eventually American involvement in the Vietnam.

Throughout the early months of 1954, the French government kept telling Washington its forces were no match for Ho Chi Minh's guerrillas and it could not hold out unless the United States intervened militarily.

In late March, General Paul Ely, French Chief of Staff, visited Washington on his way back to Paris from Vietnam. He reported the French military forces in desperate straits and that major American military intervention would be necessary to save the situation.

The following month, then Secretary of State John Foster Dulles cabled President Eisenhower from Paris that "the situation at Dien Bien Phu is desperate." He said the only alternatives were "massive B-29 bombings . . . or a request for cease-fire."

President Eisenhower made American intervention conditional on British participation, which Churchill and Eden refused. The French gave up at Dien Bien Phu and pulled out of Vietnam.

According to Khrushchev, they did so at a time when Ho Chi Minh's resistance movement was on the verge of collapse.

Referring to a 1954 conference in Moscow that was attended by Ho Chi Minh and Chou En-lai, Khrushchev said that at one of the sessions in the Kremlin's Catherine Hall, the then Chinese foreign minister took him into a corner and said:

"Comrade Ho Chi Minh has told me the situation in Vietnam is hopeless and that if we don't attain a cease-fire soon, the Vietnamese won't be able to hold out against the French. Therefore, they've decided to retreat to the Chinese border if necessary, and they want China to be ready to move troops into Vietnam as we did in North Korea.

"In other words, the Vietnamese want us to help them drive out the French. We simply can't grant Comrade Ho Chi Minh's request. We've already lost too many men in Korea — that war cost us dearly. We're in no condition to get involved in another war at this time."

Shortly thereafter the Vietnamese captured the fortress of Dien Bien Phu because of the French failure to reinforce it. Khrushchev described the capture as "a miracle." He said that when French Premier Mendes-France later offered to partition the country at the 17th parallel, "We gasped with surprise and pleasure. We hadn't expected anything like this. The 17th parallel was the absolute maximum we would have claimed ourselves."

If Congress does not renege on the American government's commitment to keep South Vietnam supplied with sufficient aid to maintain a reasonable military balance with North Vietnam, the prowess of Hanoi's forces may prove to be as overrated in the '70s as they were in the '50s.

Nichol Calm In Spite Of Dispute

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

The man on the spot during the opening days of the 1975 Legislature has maintained a calm and quiet demeanor in spite of unique pressures which do not confront his 48 colleagues.

Bill Nichol, the senator from Scottsbluff, doesn't know whether he'll still be in his legislative seat next month.

"It doesn't really upset me. I'm sort of used to it by now," the 56-year-old target of Terry Carpenter's election challenge noted in an interview Tuesday.

'Distracted'

"It does bother me though to be distracted from doing my legislative duties. It's taken some time. I'll be glad when it's over."

Nichol was declared the winner of the 48th District legislative contest in a recount supervised by Secretary of State Allen Beermann.

His 68-vote margin is being contested by Carpenter, the legendary figure of legislative affairs, who claims that dozens of invalidated write-in votes for him should have been counted.

The issue currently rests with a special seven-member legislative committee headed by Sen. Jerome Warner of Waverly.

"I think they (his fellow senators) did it the right way" in sending the issue to a special committee for consideration, Nichol said.

'Over With'

"And I think Mr. Carpenter and I feel the same way. We'd both like to get it over with."

Carpenter has signaled his intention to take the issue to the federal courts if the Legislature ultimately rejects his challenge and confirms Nichol's election.

Nichol declines to say what he would do in the event that he is ultimately unseated by the lawmakers.

"I don't want to bother the committee members with that," he said. "I want them to feel free to do what they think they should do.

"They should have free rein to call the shots as they think they should."

Actually, he said, he has "never considered the possibility of losing" the contest.

'Think I Won'

"I think I legally won the election," Nichol noted.

"There has been a great deal of hoopla about honoring the intent of the voter," he pointed out. "And that should include those voters who punched the card for candidates who were listed on the ballot."

The ballots which were thrown out in the recount (Carpenter had won the original count by three votes) were tossed out "not because of 'minor technicalities,' but because they didn't follow the law," Nichol suggested.

Despite the pressures of Carpenter's write-in effort and the subsequent election challenge, Nichol said he bears no animosity toward the former long-time Scottsbluff senator.

"I admire his good traits," Nichol said.

"I'm not like he is. But that's no criticism. He just operates differently than I do. But he has been successful in many ways, and he has been financially much more successful than me.

"I don't dislike him. I try to learn from him. I like him okay, really."

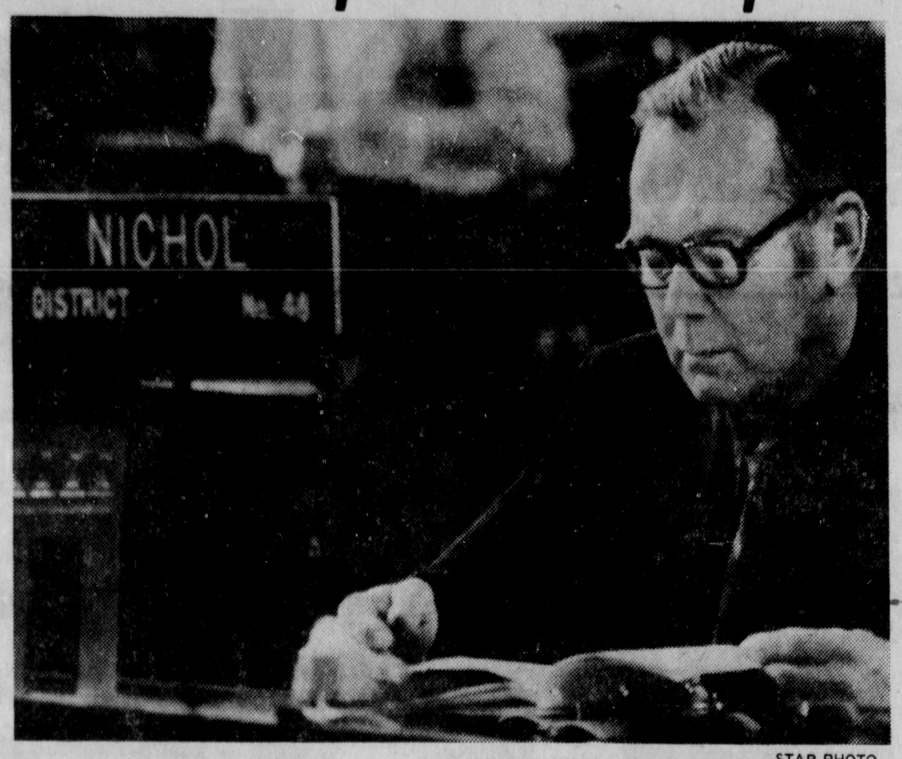

If Nichol is ultimately successful in retaining his four-year hold on the 48th District seat, he will be ready to add legislative experience to his eight years on the Scottsbluff City Council, his two years as mayor and his eight years as a county commissioner.

In the meantime, he has rented a Lincoln apartment which did not require a lease agreement.

"I told the owner my situation, and was told I could stay for three weeks or for the entire session," Nichol said.

As for his first week of senatorial duties, Nichol said he has found them "interesting and enjoyable.

"I'd like to stay," he smiled.

Committee May Need More Time

By BOB GUENTHER
Star Staff Writer

A special legislative committee may need more than the 15 days alloted it to examine the contested legislative race from the Scottsbluff area.

That possibility emerged Tuesday as the committee asked that all depositions on the election be submitted by Jan. 21. The committee has until Jan. 23 to report back to the Legislature.

Subpoenas Agreed To

The committee agreed Tuesday that anyone unable to meet the deadline for depositions should be subpoenaed to appear before the committee.

Senators rejected a suggestion by Sen. Ralph Kelly of Grand Island that the depositions be submitted sooner. Sen. Richard Lewis of Holbrook said the committee should be careful to allow enough time so that due process requirements are met.

Kelly said the deadline on the 21st only allowed the committee another two days before it is to report back to the Legislature.

But Lewis said the committee could provide a partial report and request added time to study the issue.

Recount Procedures

The depositions, at the request of Sen. Richard Marvel of Hastings, will include statements by Scottsbluff County election officials and Secretary of State Allen Beermann about instructions to voters and recount procedures.

Special Assistant Atty. Gen. Terry R. Schaaf offered the committee seven preliminary issues for committee consideration:

—validity of write-in ballots lacking a first name or initial.

—disposition of ballots where the write-in ballot designates Carpenter for other than "member of the Legislature from the 48th district."

—validity of ballots where there are two votes.

—determination whether any illegal campaign practices occurred.

Commitment Bill Specifies Person's Rights

By The Associated Press

A bill introduced in the Legislature Tuesday would provide a person facing possible commitment for a mental illness with certain specific rights.

The measure, LB159, was introduced by the Public Health and Welfare Committee. Sen. Tom Kennedy of Newman Grove, committee chairman, called the measure "a major piece of legislation, an important bill."

The law is titled the Nebraska Mental Health Commitment Act.

A law officer or physician could have someone taken into custody immediately if he certified that person was mentally ill and dangerous, and likely to harm himself or others before judicial proceedings could be held.

However, once an individual was in custody, authorities would have to indicate within 24 hours that they intend to conduct a hearing on the individual's status.

If the director of the mental health center where the person was taken did not feel the patient belonged in custody, the patient would be released at once.

In situations where immediate custody is not deemed necessary, the county attorney would file a petition with the district court, which would order a preliminary hearing and summon the person named in the petition to that hearing.

At any time during the proceedings the court could order the person named in the petition to be taken into custody.

The bill provides that those in custody prior to a final hearing will be insured of 13 specific rights, including the right to petition through an attorney, or by themselves, for their release.

The law provides that anyone who denies someone being detained his rights, and anyone guilty of filing false information in a petition alleging mental illness, would be guilty of a misdemeanor. Conviction would carry a penalty of a $1,000 fine and imprisonment for not less than six months, or both.

Indian Commission Changes Sought

The State Commission on Indian Affairs would undergo some substantive changes if a bill introduced Tuesday becomes law.

Crofton Sen. Jules Burbach's LB174 would create an executive board of the commission that would have authority to supervise the commision's programs relating to the affairs of Nebraska's three Indian tribes.

Robert Mackey, commission director, said the bill was "just aimed at giving us some accountability from the tribes. It's in no way aimed at interfering in their tribal government."

The bill would give the executive board power to enter into contracts up to $2,000.

The bill would also have the 15-member commission meet quarterly, instead of monthly. Members who missed meetings without a "valid excuse" would be dismissed. Mackey said there had been a problem with attendance, partly because of the monthly schedule.

The bill also sets up an interim legislative study committee that would evaluate the powers, duties and services of the commission and its executive director and staff.

Members of the Winnebago, Santee Sioux and Omaha tribes reside in Nebraska.

Bill Proposes Pay Raise For State Employes

Legislation introduced Tuesday would raise the pay of state employes and hike corporate income taxes.

Sen. Frank Lewis of Bellevue introduced LBs166 and 167. The first would raise corporate taxes from 2.5 to 4%. The second would give the Legislature tax-setting authority for 1976 and following years.

Tax rates are now set by the State Board of Equalization.

Sen. Steve Fowler of Lincoln introduced LB176, to upgrade the salaries of lower level state employes over a three-year period to $2.90 per hour. It would set a minimum wage of $2.40 in 1975 and $2.65 in 1976.

Fowler said the bill would affect employes at all pay levels because it has a section that would adjust their pay through their "established relationships with the minimum wage."

The Appropriations Committee currently is conducting hearings on the pay plan for state employes.

Nichol Calm In Spite Of Dispute

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

The man on the spot during the opening days of the 1975 Legislature has maintained a calm and quiet demeanor in spite of unique pressures which do not confront his 48 colleagues.

Bill Nichol, the senator from Scottsbluff, doesn't know whether he'll still be in his legislative seat next month.

"It doesn't really upset me. I'm sort of used to it by now," the 56-year-old target of Terry Carpenter's election challenge noted in an interview Tuesday.

'Distracted'

"It does bother me though to be distracted from doing my legislative duties. It's taken some time. I'll be glad when it's over."

Nichol was declared the winner of the 48th District legislative contest in a recount supervised by Secretary of State Allen Beermann.

His 68-vote margin is being contested by Carpenter, the legendary figure of legislative affairs, who claims that dozens of invalidated write-in votes for him should have been counted.

The issue currently rests with a special seven-member legislative committee headed by Sen. Jerome Warner of Waverly.

STAR PHOTO

NICHOL . . . 'I'm sort of used to it by now.'

"I think they (his fellow senators) did it the right way" in sending the issue to a special committee for consideration, Nichol said.

'Over With'

"And I think Mr. Carpenter and I feel the same way. We'd both like to get it over with."

Carpenter has signaled his intention to take the issue to the federal courts if the Legislature ultimately rejects his challenge and confirms Nichol's election.

Nichol declines to say what he would do in the event that he is ultimately unseated by the lawmakers.

"I don't want to bother the committee members with that," he said. "I want them to feel free to do what they think they should do.

"They should have free rein to call the shots as they think they should."

Actually, he said, he has "never considered the possibility of losing" the contest.

'Think I Won'

"I think I legally won the election," Nichol noted.

"There has been a great deal of hoopla about honoring the intent of the voter," he pointed out. "And that should include those voters who punched the card for candidates who were listed on the ballot."

The ballots which were thrown out in the recount (Carpenter had won the original count by three votes) were tossed out "not because of 'minor technicalities,' but because they didn't follow the law," Nichol suggested.

Despite the pressures of Carpenter's write-in effort and the subsequent election challenge, Nichol said he bears no animosity toward the former long-time Scottsbluff senator.

"I admire his good traits," Nichol said.

"I'm not like he is. But that's no criticism. He just operates differently than I do. But he has been successful in many ways, and he has been financially much more successful than me.

"I don't dislike him. I try to learn from him. I like him okay, really."

If Nichol is ultimately successful in retaining his four-year hold on the 48th District seat, he will be ready to add legislative experience to his eight years on the Scottsbluff City Council, his two years as mayor and his eight years as a county commissioner.

In the meantime, he has rented a Lincoln apartment which did not require a lease agreement.

"I told the owner my situation, and was told I could stay for three weeks or for the entire session," Nichol said.

As for his first week of senatorial duties, Nichol said he has found them "interesting and enjoyable.

"I'd like to stay," he smiled.

Committee May Need More Time

By BOB GUENTHER
Star Staff Writer

A special legislative committee may need more than the 15 days alloted it to examine the contested legislative race from the Scottsbluff area.

That possibility emerged Tuesday as the committee asked that all depositions on the election be submitted by Jan. 21. The committee has until Jan. 23 to report back to the Legislature.

Subpoenas Agreed To

The committee agreed Tuesday that anyone unable to meet the deadline for depositions should be subpoenaed to appear before the committee.

Senators rejected a suggestion by Sen. Ralph Kelly of Grand Island that the depositions be submitted sooner. Sen. Richard Lewis of Holbrook said the committee should be careful to allow enough time so that due process requirements are met.

Kelly said the deadline on the 21st only allowed the committee another two days before it is to report back to the Legislature.

But Lewis said the committee could provide a partial report and request added time to study the issue.

Recount Procedures

The depositions, at the request of Sen. Richard Marvel of Hastings, will include statements by Scottsbluff County election officials and Secretary of State Allen Beermann about instructions to voters and recount procedures.

Special Assistant Atty. Gen. Terry R. Schaaf offered the committee seven preliminary issues for committee consideration:

—validity of write-in ballots lacking a first name or initial.

—disposition of ballots where the write-in ballot designates Carpenter for other than "member of the Legislature from the 48th district."

—validity of ballots where there are two votes.

—determination whether any illegal campaign practices occurred.

Commitment Bill Specifies Person's Rights

By The Associated Press

A bill introduced in the Legislature Tuesday would provide a person facing possible commitment for a mental illness with certain specific rights.

The measure, LB159, was introduced by the Public Health and Welfare Committee. Sen. Tom Kennedy of Newman Grove, committee chairman, called the measure "a major piece of legislation, an important bill."

The law is titled the Nebraska Mental Health Commitment Act.

A law officer or physician could have someone taken into custody immediately if he certified that person was mentally ill and dangerous, and likely to harm himself or others before judicial proceedings could be held.

However, once an individual was in custody, authorities would have to indicate within 24 hours that they intend to conduct a hearing on the individual's status.

If the director of the mental health center where the person was taken did not feel the patient belonged in custody, the patient would be released at once.

In situations where immediate custody is not deemed necessary, the county attorney would file a petition with the district court, which would order a preliminary hearing and summon the person named in the petition to that hearing.

At any time during the proceedings the court could order the person named in the petition to be taken into custody.

The bill provides that those in custody prior to a final hearing will be insured of 13 specific rights, including the right to petition through an attorney, or by themselves, for their release.

The law provides that anyone who denies someone being detained his rights, and anyone guilty of filing false information in a petition alleging mental illness, would be guilty of a misdemeanor. Conviction would carry a penalty of a $1,000 fine and imprisonment for not less than six months, or both.

Indian Commission Changes Sought

The State Commission on Indian Affairs would undergo some substantive changes if a bill introduced Tuesday becomes law.

Crofton Sen. Jules Burbach's LB174 would create an executive board of the commission that would have authority to supervise the commision's programs relating to the affairs of Nebraska's three Indian tribes.

Robert Mackey, commission director, said the bill was "just aimed at giving us some accountability from the tribes. It's in no way aimed at interfering in their tribal government."

The bill would give the executive board power to enter into contracts up to $2,000.

The bill would also have the 15-member commission meet quarterly, instead of monthly. Members who missed meetings without a "valid excuse" would be dismissed. Mackey said there had been a problem with attendance, partly because of the monthly schedule.

The bill also sets up an interim legislative study committee that would evaluate the powers, duties and services of the commission and its executive director and staff.

School Districts May Sue For State Special Ed Aid

By DICK HOLMAN
Star Staff Writer

The imbroglio over state dollars for handicapped children could produce lawsuits by school districts that can't afford to pay for required special education programs, Millard Public Schools Supt. Don Stroh said Tuesay.

Because school districts have not received Dec. 30 payments, Stroh said districts that met State Education Department guidelines for the money "can sue the state of Nebraska."

"That's the action our (school) board's going to take this week, if we don't get the money," Stroh said.

Stroh is a member of the State Board of Education's LB403 Advisory Committee, which met Monday and Tuesday in Lincoln. Members, who represent all segments of Nebraska public education and education groups, are trying to make the 1974 law guidelines workable.

Committee Testy

Committee members were testy over Education Department mistakes in administering LB403 and the resulting financial burden on special education program sponsors.

The committee at last decided to offer an olive branch to the 1975 Legislature, asking for quick action to keep LB403 programs solvent.

The state board, on Friday, approved a request for $4.9 million more in state funds, because the initial $8.6 million appropriation is insufficient to educate Nebraska's 29,038 handicapped children.

The law said the $8.6 million was to be paid in four approximately equal installments, and the Education Department awarded a total of $2.1 million on Sept. 30.

But when part of that money was paid to school districts with no handicapped children, educators and state officials including the governor called for unraveling the growing confusion over LB403 payment methods.

90% Of Extra Costs

The state pays school districts 90% of the extra costs for special education programs, beyond normal per-pupil costs. Districts may operate programs themselves or buy them on contract from agencies such as educational service units (ESUs).

Because of the Dec. 30 payment delay, ESUs now face the possibility of ending their special education programs or reducing them, said State Education Commissioner Anne Campbell, who inherited the LB403 potboiler when she began her job on Jan. 1.

School districts are affected as well. "We're borrowing money," to pay for LB403 programs, Stroh said. Millard should have received $155,000 on Dec. 30. ESUs cannot borrow money.

Part of the problem, Francis Colgan said, stems from a $4 million need statewide for Dec. 30 payments, when only $2.4 million is available.

Colgan, Education Department special education administrator, has taken the brunt of criticism for mishandling LB403. Tuesday he admitted he made mistakes, but he placed the blame squarely on Gov. J. James Exon and Department of Administrative Services (DAS) officials.

Colgan said the governor and DAS advised him — before the November general election — to award LB403 money based on schools' "average daily membership" or attendance, contrary to the intent of the law.

It was "politically expedient to get the money out," Colgan said, and "I took the bait."

Deputy Commissioner LeRoy Ortgiesen said, "We should have known better, but the Education Department "made the wrong interpretation" of language in a section of the law.

It "was not intentional," Ortgiesen said, adding the department staff was "zealous about getting services to handicapped kids of the state." He said, "I guess we went too fast, too far."

LB403 committee members agreed unhappily they're dealing with a political football, but reitereated that districts which qualified for the Dec. 30 payment should get them immediately.

Meanwhile, members echoed Grand Island Schools Supt. Cliff Dale's observation that LB403 now is an "accounting monster" and an administrative disaster. He said he has never seen such paperwork required for state funds, not to mention the duplicative requests for information.

Simply to meet the paperwork loads, Dale said, districts would have to add clerical staff, resulting in more costs.

Lincoln Schools Supt. John Prasch said, "It seems to me there is a tremendous amount of expense that is taking away services from children in a program that is already underfunded."

The number of handicapped children in Nebraska increased from 23,000 last year to 29,038 in 1975, Colgan said, or 7.9% of all school-age children.

But Prasch pointed out the committee and Legislature "must face up" in LB403 the need to serve learning disabled youngsters, who "could run as high as 20%" of public school students.

Lewis Says Districts Face Financial Pinch

By The Associated Press

Many Nebraska school districts are facing a financial crunch because the state has not made payments for special education programs, according to State Sen. Frank Lewis of Bellevue.

Lewis said the state currently owes the districts $2.9 million. Lewis, chairman of the Legislature's Education Committee, called a public hearing for Tuesday.

Roy Bennett, budget officer for the Bellevue School District, said the state had not paid $150,000 due the school district on Dec. 30. He said the district was forced to sell some certificates of deposit and suffer interest penalties to pay bills.

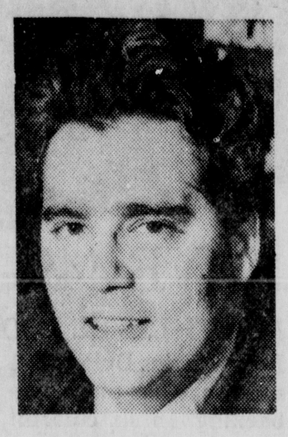

Bennett added that many of the Bellevue programs would not have been offered if it were not for the state mandate.

Don Stroh, superintendent of Millard schools, said a lack of communication between the Department of Administrative Services, the state auditor's office and the Department of Education seemed to be the cause of the delay.

Anne Campbell, commissioner of education, said Tuesday the Department of Education and the Department of Administrative Services were working to compile the data to back up the districts' claims. She said some districts had not produced the proper justification for their claims.

Campbell said "hopefully some (payments would be made) this week." But she said she had been saying that for several weeks. She said the payments would be made "just as fast as we can."

DAS Director Stan Matzke remained unavailable for comment.

John DeCamp

DeCamp Drive Near Goal To Reratify ERA

By The Associated Press

State Sen. John DeCamp of Neligh said Tuesday night Nebraska would reratify the Equal Rights Amendment to the U.S. Constitution if he could get six more senators to sign a petition.

DeCamp said he gained 19 signatures on his petition Tuesday and hoped to get the other six Wednesday morning.

The Legislature adopted the Equal Rights Amendment March 23, 1972, on a vote of 38-0.

But in 1973, Sen. Richard Proud of Omaha led a drive which saw the Legislature vote to deratify the amendment on a vote of 40 to 5.

The proposed amendment to the U.S. Consitution says, "Equality of rights under the law shall not be denied or abridged by the United States or by any state on account of sex."

DeCamp is attempting to reratify the amendment by an obscure procedure which allows the Legislature to ratify resolutions by petition without floor debate or public hearings.

The supporters of the amendment claim it will become part of the Constitution if it is approved in five more states. The supporters include Nebraska as one of the states which has ratified the amendment because they say the U.S. Constitution does not authorize states to deratify amendments.

DeCamp said his petition was signed by the first 19 senators he approached, but he said he selected the senators carefully.

However, DeCamp said several senators signed his petition who previously opposed the amendment.

He said he would know Wednesday whether he would be able to get the other six signatures.

Ag, Rules Panels To Eye Packing Firm's Bankruptcy

By The Associated Press

The Legislature Tuesday ordered the Administrative Rules and Agriculture Committees to determine whether violations of state laws or regulations contributed to the bankruptcy of American Beef Packing Co.

The motion offered by State Sen. John DeCamp of Neligh also ordered the committees to determine whether legislation was needed to prevent similar problems in the future.

Agriculture Committee Chairman Loran Schmit of Bellwood told the Legislature American Beef has issued $25 million in bad checks to cattle producers. Off the floor, he said the figure was an estimate.

Schmit said the committees would first wait for a report from Glenn Kreuscher, director of the Department of Agriculture. Schmit said the report should tell whether Kreuscher followed state laws and regulations pertaining to American Beef.

Schmit has said packers should be bonded.

But Schmit said legislation dealing with packers would be "putting vaseline on cancer" if the Legislature did not deal with the larger problems in the cattle industry.

He said "We can legislate this thing, but they are still going to be going broke."

Schmit produced copies of statements from American Beef sent to retailers. The statements had been discounted because of alleged short weight and damage. On some of the statements, Schmit pointed to figures which he said indicated the retail food chains dropped the price of beef one cent per pound after the sale had been completed.

Schmit said these costs reached $7.20 per head in August for cattle shipped by American Beef from Omaha.

Schmit said he was not saying all of the claims were unjustified, but added the short weight claims seemed unreasonable because American Beef began weighing their beef twice.

He said it was an example of the power the retail chains held over the cattle industry.

Campaign Finances Bill Introduced

By The Associated Press

Voters would have a chance to find out how much money candidates for state offices have received and spent before the election under a bill introduced Tuesday by Sen. Ralph Kelly of Grand Island.

Kelly said the bill, LB182, would "allow the public to be aware of candidates' income and expenses before the election."

"That's the key to a clean campaign in my book," Kelly said.

Under the bill, each candidate for state office would be required to open a special checking account for campaign transactions.

Candidates would be required to report all contributions and expenditures of more than $25 to a state campaign finance commission. Reports would be required twice a month during the last two months of the campaign. Final reports would be required just before the primary election and on the first day of the month following the general election.

Kelly said the bill would make it easier to audit a candidate's campaign finances.

The state campaign finance commission would be made up of five members, no more than three from the same political party, appointed by the governor.

School Districts May Sue For State Special Ed Aid

By DICK HOLMAN
Star Staff Writer

The imbroglio over state dollars for handicapped children could produce lawsuits by school districts that can't afford to pay for required special education programs, Millard Public Schools Supt. Don Stroh said Tuesay.

Because school districts have not received Dec. 30 payments, Stroh said districts that met State Education Department guidelines for the money "can sue the state of Nebraska."

"That's the action our (school) board's going to take this week, if we don't get the money," Stroh said.

Stroh is a member of the State Board of Education's LB403 Advisory Committee, which met Monday and Tuesday in Lincoln. Members, who represent all segments of Nebraska public education and education groups, are trying to make the 1974 law guidelines workable.

Committee Testy

Committee members were testy over Education Department mistakes in administering LB403 and the resulting financial burden on special education program sponsors.

The committee at last decided to offer an olive branch to the 1975 Legislature, asking for quick action to keep LB403 programs solvent.

The state board, on Friday, approved a request for $4.9 million more in state funds, because the initial $8.6 million appropriation is insufficient to educate Nebraska's 29,038 handicapped children.

The law said the $8.6 million was to be paid in four approximately equal installments, and the Education Department awarded a total of $2.1 million on Sept. 30.

But when part of that money was paid to school districts with no handicapped children, educators and state officials including the governor called for unraveling the growing confusion over LB403 payment methods.

90% Of Extra Costs

The state pays school districts 90% of the extra costs for special education programs, beyond normal per-pupil costs. Districts may operate programs themselves or buy them on contract from agencies such as educational service units (ESUs).

Because of the Dec. 30 payment delay, ESUs now face the possibility of ending their special education programs or reducing them, said State Education Commissioner Anne Campbell, who inherited the LB403 potboiler when she began her job on Jan. 1.

School districts are affected as well. "We're borrowing money," to pay for LB403 programs, Stroh said. Millard should have received $155,000 on Dec. 30. ESUs cannot borrow money.

Part of the problem, Francis Colgan said, stems from a $4 million need statewide for Dec. 30 payments, when only $2.4 million is available.

Colgan, Education Department special education administrator, has taken the brunt of criticism for mishandling LB403. Tuesday he admitted he made mistakes, but he placed the blame squarely on Gov. J. James Exon and Department of Administrative Services (DAS) officials.

Colgan said the governor and DAS advised him — before the November general election — to award LB403 money based on schools' "average daily membership" or attendance, contrary to the intent of the law.

It was "politically expedient to get the money out," Colgan said, and "I took the bait."

Deputy Commissioner LeRoy Ortgiesen said, "We should have known better, but the Education Department "made the wrong interpretation" of language in a section of the law.

It "was not intentional," Ortgiesen said, 'adding the department staff was "zealous about getting services to handicapped kids of the state." He said, "I guess we went too fast, too far."

LB403 committee members agreed unhappily they're dealing with a political football, but reiterated that districts which qualified for the Dec. 30 payment should get them immediately.

Meanwhile, members echoed Grand Island Schools Supt. Cliff Dale's observation that LB403 now is an "accounting monster" and an administrative disaster. He said he has never seen such paperwork required for state funds, not to mention the duplicative requests for information.

Simply to meet the paperwork loads, Dale said, districts would have to add clerical staff, resulting in more costs.

Lincoln Schools Supt. John Prasch said, "It seems to me there is a tremendous amount of expense that is taking away services from children in a program that is already underfunded."

The number of handicapped children in Nebraska increased from 23,000 last year to 29,038 in 1975, Colgan said, or 7.9% of all school-age children.

But Prasch pointed out the committee and Legislature "must face up" in LB403 the need to serve learning disabled youngsters, who "could run as high as 20%" of public school students.

Lewis Says Districts Face Financial Pinch

By The Associated Press

Many Nebraska school districts are facing a financial crunch because the state has not made payments for special education programs, according to State Sen. Frank Lewis of Bellevue.

Lewis said the state currently owes the districts $2.9 million. Lewis, chairman of the Legislature's Education Committee, called a public hearing for Tuesday.

Roy Bennett, budget officer for the Bellevue School District, said the state had not paid $150,000 due the school district on Dec. 30. He said the district was forced to sell some certificates of deposit and suffer interest penalties to pay bills.

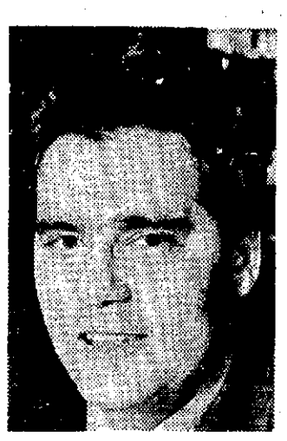

Bennett added that many of the Bellevue programs would not have been offered if it were not for the state mandate.

Don Stroh, superintendent of Millard schools, said a lack of communication between the Department of Administrative Services, the state auditor's office and the Department of Education seemed to be the cause of the delay.

Anne Campbell, commissioner of education, said Tuesday the Department of Education and the Department of Administrative Services were working to compile the data to back up the districts' claims. She said some districts had not produced the proper justification for their claims.

Campbell said "hopefully some (payments would be made) this week." But she said she had been saying that for several weeks. She said the payments would be made "just as fast as we can."

DAS Director Stan Matzke remained unavailable for comment.

DeCamp Drive Near Goal To Reratify ERA

By The Associated Press

State Sen. John DeCamp of Neligh said Tuesday night Nebraska would reratify the Equal Rights Amendment to the U.S. Constitution if he could get six more senators to sign a petition.

DeCamp said he gained 19 signatures on his petition Tuesday and hoped to get the other six Wednesday morning.

The Legislature adopted the Equal Rights Amendment March 23, 1972, on a vote of 38-0.

But in 1973, Sen. Richard Proud of Omaha led a drive which saw the Legislature vote to deratify the amendment on a vote of 40 to 5.

The proposed amendment to the U.S. Consitution says, "Equality of rights under the law shall not be denied or abridged by the United States or by any state on account of sex."

DeCamp is attempting to reratify the amendment by an obscure procedure which allows the Legislature to ratify resolutions by petition without floor debate or public hearings.

The supporters of the amendment claim it will become part of the Constitution if it is approved in five more states. The supporters include Nebraska as one of the states which has ratified the amendment because they say the U.S. Constitution does not authorize states to deratify amendments.

DeCamp said his petition was signed by the first 19 senators he approached, but he said he selected the senators carefully.

However, DeCamp said several senators signed his petition who previously opposed the amendment.

He said he would know Wednesday whether he would be able to get the other six signatures.

Ag, Rules Panels To Eye Packing Firm's Bankruptcy

By The Associated Press

The Legislature Tuesday ordered the Administrative Rules and Agriculture Committees to determine whether violations of state laws or regulations contributed to the bankruptcy of American Beef Packing Co.

The motion offered by State Sen. John DeCamp of Neligh also ordered the committees to determine whether legislation was needed to prevent similar problems in the future.

Agriculture Committee Chairman Loran Schmit of Bellwood told the Legislature American Beef has issued $25 million in bad checks to cattle producers. Off the floor, he said the figure was an estimate.

Schmit said the committees would first wait for a report from Glenn Kreuscher, director of the Department of Agriculture. Schmit said the report should tell whether Kreuscher followed state laws and regulations pertaining to American Beef.

Schmit has said packers should be bonded.

But Schmit said legislation dealing with packers would be "putting vaseline on cancer" if the Legislature did not deal with the larger problems in the cattle industry.

He said "We can legislate this thing, but they are still going to be going broke."

Schmit produced copies of statements from American Beef sent to retailers. The statements had been discounted because of alleged short weight and damage. On some of the statements, Schmit pointed to figures which he said indicated the retail food chains dropped the price of beef one cent per pound after the sale had been completed.

Schmit said these costs reached $7.20 per head in August for cattle shipped by American Beef from Omaha.

Schmit said he was not saying all of the claims were unjustified, but added the short weight claims seemed unreasonable because American Beef began weighing their beef twice.

He said it was an example of the power the retail chains held over the cattle industry.

Campaign Finances Bill Introduced

By The Associated Press

Voters would have a chance to find out how much money candidates for state offices have received and spent before the election under a bill introduced Tuesday by Sen. Ralph Kelly of Grand Island.

Kelly said the bill, LB182, would "allow the public to be aware of candidates' income and expenses before the election."

"That's the key to a clean campaign in my book," Kelly said.

Under the bill, each candidate for state office would be required to open a special checking account for campaign transactions.

Candidates would be required to report all contributions and expenditures of more than $25 to a state campaign finance commission. Reports would be required twice a month during the last two months of the campaign. Final reports would be required just before the primary election and on the first day of the month following the general election.

Kelly said the bill would make it easier to audit a candidate's campaign finances.

The state campaign finance commission would be made up of five members, no more than three from the same political party, appointed by the governor.

ACTION LINE

DIAL 477-2121

Or Write P.O. Box 81689, Lincoln, NE 68501

In July of 1974, I sent a broken bull whip back to the M. L. Liddy & Sons Inc., Ft. Worth, Tex. Since then I have mailed three letters with only one reply from Mark Dunlap who said their stock had been depleted and the situation would receive his prompt attention. How much longer do I have to wait?

—Steve Honen, Lincoln

ACTION LINE: A representative of M. L. Liddy & Sons Inc. didn't know how much longer you'd have to wait. He said the supplier in Texas had been notified numerous times to speed the delivery of the $20 bull whip.

"But until we get some reply from them," he said, "there's not much else we can do."

ACTION TIP: Whether you're a young person employed full time, a retiree, a working woman or a person with a low income, you have a right to credit. But with that right, of course, goes the responsibility to use credit wisely and to make payments on time.

A five-part reprint from the U.S. Office of Consumer Affairs discusses these rights and responsibilities. A copy of "Your Right to Credit" may be obtained free from Consumer Information, Pueblo, Colo. 81009.

In October, I ordered some material from Fabrizaar in the Indianapolis Creative Village. One piece of material was out of stock. I was told I would receive a $15.73 refund or credit on my account. Recently, I ordered more material and deducted the $15.73. Later I received a bill for the amount. Could you please help Fabrizaar get its books straightened out?

—Nancy Vossler, Friend

ACTION LINE: You'll have to pull yourself away from your sewing to straighten this one out, Nancy. A Fabrizaar customer service representative said she needs copies of the order forms and the item numbers, plus a complete explanation of the dealings in question, before she can send a refund or straighten out your account.

That address is Fabrizarr, Creative Village, 1357 West 18th, Indianapolis Ind.

In early June our daughter competed in a Region 7 Amateur Athletic Union (AAU) track meet in Hastings organized by Father Patrick O'Byrne. Ribbons and medals were not available at the meet. Repeated promises since that time by Father O'Byrne to send them haven't been kept in spite of numerous long distance calls and personal contacts. Could you please lift the spirits of some 200 kids who are still waiting for their awards?

—Mrs. J. Larry Fuerst, Lincoln

ACTION LINE: Father Patrick O'Byrne apologized for the inconvenience and wondered why you did not receive the letter of explanation sent out to all parents concerning the missing medals.

He said the medals have been at Hogan's Sporting Goods in Hastings for engraving. The engraving work had been done, but because of a misunderstanding, the wrong medals had been engraved. This meant ordering new medals and having them engraved.

But there's good news, Mrs. Fuerst. Father O'Byrne says the mix-up is practically over. The medals should be in the mail within the next week.

On March 8, 1974, I sent our calculator to Commodore Business Machines Inc., Santa Clara, Calif. In May I received a letter requesting $18 repair charges, which I sent promptly. But the repairs haven't been prompt. We're still waiting for our calculator. Please help.

—J.J., Denton

ACTION LINE: Hans Hoogendoorn of Commodore Business Machines Inc. promised Action Line he'd look into the matter and get the calculator in the mail immediately.

What can we do to stop RCA Music Service, Indianapolis, Ind., from sending us records that we did not order. We've just been sending them back and we're tired of that. We have written the company many times with no results.

—Priscilla G. Rech, Davey

ACTION LINE: A customer service representative for the RCA Music Service in Indianapolis said she'd cancel your name and address from the computerized mailing list immediately. She said you would receive a couple more record shipments, but the whole ordeal should be over after that.

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

☆ By SIDNEY OMARR ☆

Forecast For Wednesday

I've enjoyed meeting them through astrology: Steve Allen, Capricorn; Jayne Meadows, Libra; Mae West, Leo; Joe Louis, Taurus; Jane Russell, Gemini; Fernando Lamas, Capricorn; Lawrence Durrell, Pisces. The list is long and varied. Friends of astrology are the luminaries of our time, the "Who's Who in Theater and Literature." The sports world is included, too. Floyd Patterson and Muhammad Ali, Capricorn; Tom Harmon, Libra.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Look behind the scenes. Get involved. Socialize, co-operate in charity effort for hospital, institution. You may be called upon to be a special representative or to make a speech before the media. Go ahead!

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Accent on affection, desire, willingness to sacrifice for an ideal. Aquarius, Leo and Scorpio could be involved. Love rules. You strive for logic, but it is shoved aside by emotional onslaught. You'll see!

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Spotlight is on how you respond to challenge, responsibility, rare opportunity to elevate position. Dig for information. Get facts, files in order. Ride with tide — be ready for change, variety, correspondence and travel.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Good Moon aspect coincides now with long-range plans, journeys, communications from afar — and publishing. Key is to get priorities in order. Family reunion could be featured. Barrier to understanding can — and should — be removed.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): You find that subtle nuances can tell a complete story. Be sensitive, alert, aware. One who works in administrative capacity confides woes. Be discreet. Refuse to pass judgment. Pisces figures prominently.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Accent is on marriage, partnership arrangement, public relations — understanding those who hold opposing views. You are called upon to decide, to issue a statement or directive. Be sure you have expert legal guidance.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): You reach more persons than in recent past. You could strike chord of universal appeal. Means you get ear to ground of what public wants and will pay for — so go to it! Aries is in picture and so is another Libran.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Emphasis in on love, children, variety, special appearances. Take lead. Imprint your style. Leave your mark. Refuse to be second. Highlight originality, independance, inventiveness. Leo, Aquarius figure prominently.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): You find that basic issues, though not so romantic, are more important than claims of sensational variety. You get together with one who is conservative, familiar with costs, appraisals, property values. You live and learn!

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Accent is on variety, versatility and diversity. Get thoughts, ideas committed to paper. Protect concepts and formats. Relative who has traveled could impart information of value. Short trip may be on agenda in connection with appointment that is both social and business.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Spotlight is on what you do with assets, how much you get from savings, how to protect valuables. Another Aquarian, a Leo and Scorpio are likely to be involved. You are due for a solid profit. You've earned it!

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Cycle is high — you make contact which could lead to something big. Have faith in your ideas. Push for direct answers. Trust judgment and follow through on hunch. Gemini, Virgo persons are likely to be involved.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you have unusual voice, a sweet tooth, often fall madly in love with persons not deserving and you started something last year which could bear fruit in June of 1975. Taurus, Libra persons play key roles in your life. Two years ago you suffered emotional bruise. It now is healing — if you so permit.

Minimum Road Standards Snag Pending Legal Study

By GERRY SWITZER
Star Staff Writer

Lancaster County commissioners Tuesday delayed action on proposed minimum standards for roads and streets in platted and unincorporated areas of the county after receiving recommended changes from new County Engineer Marvin Nuernberger.

The commissioners agreed to have the county attorney examine the proposals and answer some legal questions prior to acting on a set of standards or setting another public hearing if necessary.

Nuernberger, who disagreed with some of the proposals recommended by the City-County Planning Commission, contends that the developer of a subdivision should have the option of gravel or hard-surfacing.

He said he feels that the minimum requirement should be gravel and if the developer chooses to hard surface, that decision should be one for the developer to make.

Nuernberger Proposal

Nuernberger proposes that all streets or roads should have as a minimum three inches of crushed rock and one inch of gravel.

When streets or roads are located within a platted area which is adjacent to a hard surface street, road or highway, Nuernberger recommends that hard surfacing should be installed only from the edge of the existing hard surfaced street, road or highway to the right-of-way line.

City-County Planning Director Douglas Brogden disagrees on that point and recommends that all streets in a platted area adjacent to a hard-surfaced street must be hard surfaced if the platted area is composed of lots averaging five acres or less.

Nuernberger further recommends that density of population in such platted areas should be 60% with a minimum of six occupied lots.

50% Density

When posed with questions from county board members regarding the alleged high cost of maintaining gravel roads, the new county surveyor said that he anticipates no problems with maintenance of gravel or rock roads.

"I don't think it costs the county more over a long period," he said, noting that the roads which have the most traffic require the most maintenance.

"A gravel road is a good road only until it has a high volume of traffic," he said, adding that most subdivisions don't have fast or large volumes of traffic.

'Should Be Allowed'

He said paving costs more and "if gravel will suffice, and until people want something better, they should be allowed gravel."

In reference to one of the arguments that subdivisions nearer the city should be required to have hard-surface streets, Nuernberger said that many streets within the city are not hard-surfaced.

Nuernberger also noted that snow removal on a gravel road is less costly than on a paved road and at the same time is safer during icy and snowy weather.

Gauger Elected As Head Of County Commissioners

Lancaster County Commissioner Jan Gauger Tuesday was elected chairwoman of the Lancaster County Board for 1975.

In the annual reorganization of the board, Robert Colin stepped down from last year's chairmanship to vice-chairman for the current year, and chairman of the Board of Equalization.

Bruce Hamilton, who was sworn in last week as the board's newest member, was elected chairman of the Welfare Board.

Gauger said that the various committee assignments for the board will be announced next week.

Stereo Studio Is Burglarized

More than $4,000 worth of stereo equipment was taken in a burglary at Stereo Studio, 414 S. 11th, according to police reports Tuesday.

Police said the burglar or burglars apparently removed glass from a restroom in the store and then carried the equipment out the back door.

Hollingsworth To Head Mission Trustees

Robert Hollingsworth has been installed as chairman of the board of trustees for the People's City Mission/Family Shelter in Lincoln.

George Joy is the 1975 vice chairman, Alfred Zoller is treasurer and Paul Stoehr is secretary.

The Rev. Jerry Dunn, mission superintendent, explained that 50% of the financing comes from the United Fund; 18% is income from fees men pay for staying at the mission after they have a job. The remaining 32% comes from local churches and some revenue sharing funds.

By the end of 1974, Dunn said, 41 local churches were supporting the mission and shelter by giving an average of $224 per congregation. A year earlier, only 27 local churches donated money.

"If 80 churches gave us $1 a day, we could meet our budget and expansion needs," he said. "Maybe this is the year we'll hit that 80."

In his annual report on programs and projects, Dunn said men staying at the mission performed more than 8,500 odd jobs last year.

Use of the family shelter at 84th and Adams increased by 43% during 1974, he said. An average of 28 families a month sought temporary shelter there. Of those, 50% were from Lincoln and Lancaster County.

Eastern Nebraskans Still Clearing Roads

Highway surfaces were normal across Nebraska late Tuesday, except in the eastern fourth of the state where some problems persisted due to the state's weekend blizzard which directly or indirectly caused 14 deaths.

The latest victim added to the list was 72-year-old Edward Henningsen of Omaha who was dead on arrival at an Omaha hospital Monday after collapsing while shoveling snow outside his home, according to acting Douglas County Coroner James Keenan. Henningsen had a history of heart trouble, Keenan said.

Near Normal

In the Norfolk area, near normal highway conditions existed except occasional one-way spots on Nebraska 57 north of Laurel, on Nebraska 94 between Pender and Walthill, and on Nebraska 32 from Madison east to Nebraska 57.

For the Fremont-Omaha area, there were some one-way spots along Nebraska 91 east of U.S. 30 and along Nebraska 36 east of U.S. 275.

Scattered Snowpack

In southeast Nebraska, Nebraska 43 south of Eagle and Nebraska 67 north of Dunbar had some one-way spots.

Meanwhile, the Omaha area, hardest hit with from 11 to 19 inches of snow, was slowly returning to normalcy although major streets were not expected to be cleared until sometimes Wednesday.

Maj. Donald Collatz, assistant National Guard officer in Omaha, said Guardsmen would continue to help Omaha rescue squads and fire stations with emergencies.

Civil Defense officials in Omaha have coordinated the transportation of doctors and nurses to and from Omaha hospitals, in addition to arranging snowmobile deliveries of food to some persons whose supplies had run out.

Choppers Join Battle

Army green helicopters joined in the battle against the snow in eastern Nebraska, flying storm-related medical evacuation and reconnaissance missions.

Classes were scheduled to reopen Wednesday in the Omaha public schools, Omaha parochial schools, District 66, and Ralston and Millard schools.

Since Omahans weren't able to move around much Friday and Saturday, they spent much time on the telephone, according to Northwestern Bell Telephone Co. records.

A spokesman for the telephone company said about 5 million local calls were made in Omaha Friday, more than double the normal number. The spokesman said the Friday load was centered on commercial and business exchanges, but on Saturday and Sunday it shifted more to residential exchanges.

The long-distance switching center in Omaha handled about 50% more calls than usual on Friday, about 100% more on Saturday and about 50% more on Sunday.

Sesostris Shrine Temple Elects W. Cook Potentate

Cook the youngest potentate in the shrine's history, is also the first potentate ever elected from outside of Lincoln.

Cook is president and chief executive officer of the Beatrice National Bank and Trust Company. He is a group president of the Nebraska Bankers Association.

He also served as president of the Beatrice Chamber of Commerce and as president of the Beatrice Community Chest. A trustee of the University of Nebraska Foundation, Cook also was on the board of Directors of the University of Nebraska Alumni Association.

Other elected shrine officers were: Waldo W. Winter, chief rabban; Richard Randolph, assistant rabban; Lewis Ricketts, high priest and prophet; Robert E. Colin Sr., oriental guide; J. Bernard Dresselhaus, treasurer; Morris Siegel, recorder-secretary.

William W. Cook Jr.

Coordinating Council Will Meet

The Voluntary Public Postsecondary Coordinating Council will meet at 1:30 p.m. Jan. 23 in the Regents Hall board room, 3835 Holdrege.

The council operates separately from the statutory Nebraska Coordinating Council for Postsecondary Education, commonly called the "1202 Commission."

Agenda items before the voluntary council include a report by the student financial aid committee, the final report on the "financial Considerations in Educational and Occupational Choice" study, a 1202 commission report, and a nursing education report by the Comprehensive Health Planning Department.

Education Linked To Farm Profits

"Increases in farm profitability are positively associated with increased education of farm couples," according to Dr. Duane Acker, vice chancellor for agriculture and natural resources at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln.

"There is a tremendous range in management ability among farmers and ranchers," he said. "Farmers who make good management decisions have a consistently higher per cent of calf crop, lower machinery costs and higher yields per acre of crops.

"There is a high correlation between education and money-making ability on Nebraska's farms and ranches."

Education and research have permitted highly productive American agriculture, Acker said. "This productivity is based on good soil, good climate, adequate rainfall, and highly educated and motivated men and women."

New technology, the kind that flows from the Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources, or the Agricultural Research Service of USDA, is essential, Acker added.

"If Nebraska is to maintain its share of the total U.S. food business, if Nebraska is to maintain and enhance the beauty of its landscape, then Nebraska residents must do all they can to insure that this flow of new technology continues," he declared.

Omaha Court Upholds Obscenity Convictions

Omaha (AP) — Obscenity convictions and $4,000 in fines levied in Omaha Municipal Court last October against two corporations have been upheld on appeal by District Court Judge John E. Murphy.

Fined on two counts each of distributing obscene material were the American Theater Corp., owner of the Pussycat Theater in downtown Omaha, and Downtown Books Inc., which owns the Adult Peep Show store.

Each company was fined $1,000 each on the two counts, the maximum under the law. The same fines originally were imposed by Municipal court Judge Robert Vondrasek after juries found the materials involved to be obscene.

The American Theater Corp. was fined in connection with two films seized at the Pussycat Theater March 29, 1974.

Elevator Takeover Thwarted

"Are you people sane?" he asked the riders at a downtown hotel.

Those men set up three chairs — one for the pilot, one for the copilot and one for the navigator — and were "flying" the elevator.

The man easily entered the elevator but was unable to leave until the craft "landed." After a few trips up and down the shaft, the man was allowed to deplane.

The crew, he said, was from Los Angeles and snowbound at the hotel, probably looking for something to do.

Pattavina Rejoins Omaha Police

Omaha (AP) — Former Omaha Public Safety Director Al Pattavina has returned to the Omaha Police Division in the long-vacant job of police-community relations coordinator.

He resigned his $25,805-a-year post as safety director last April to become director of security for American Beef Packers Inc.

Pattavina will be under Police Chief Richard Andersen in his police job. He was formerly Andersen's boss.

American Beef Packers has filed for reorganization under the Federal Bankruptcy Act, and Pattavina said "things are in a state of uncertainty.

He said because of that and wanting to protect his pension rights with the city, he returned to the police divison.

Pattavina, 50, has been on leave of absence from the coordinator's job since 1969, when he was appointed safety director by then-Mayor Eugene Leahy.

His leave would have run out Jan. 29, and it's unlikely he would have received an extension in leave from the City Personnel Board, a spokesman said. He received a one-year extension last January.

Education Linked To Farm Profits

"Increases in farm profitability are positively associated with increased education of farm couples," according to Dr. Duane Acker, vice chancellor for agriculture and natural resources at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln.

"There is a tremendous range in management ability among farmers and ranchers," he said. "Farmers who make good management decisions have a consistently higher per cent of calf crop, lower machinery costs and higher yields per acre of crops.

"There is a high correlation between education and money-making ability on Nebraska's farms and ranches."

Education and research have permitted highly productive American agriculture, Acker said. "This productivity is based on good soil, good climate, adequate rainfall, and highly educated and motivated men and women."

New technology, the kind that flows from the Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources, or the Agricultural Research Service of USDA, is essential, Acker added.

"If Nebraska is to maintain its share of the total U.S. food business, if Nebraska is to maintain and enhance the beauty of its landscape, then Nebraska residents must do all they can to insure that this flow of new technology continues," he declared.

Omaha Court Upholds Obscenity Convictions

Omaha (AP) — Obscenity convictions and $4,000 in fines levied in Omaha Municipal Court last October against two corporations have been upheld on appeal by District Court Judge John E. Murphy.

Fined on two counts each of distributing obscene material were the American Theater Corp., owner of the Pussycat Theater in downtown Omaha, and Downtown Books Inc., which owns the Adult Peep Show store.

Each company was fined $1,000 each on the two counts, the maximum under the law. The same fines originally were imposed by Municipal court Judge Robert Vondrasek after juries found the materials involved to be obscene.

The American Theater Corp. was fined in connection with two films seized at the Pussycat Theater March 29, 1974.

G.I. Council Likes Mobile Home Law

Grand Island (UPI) — The Grand Island City Council has voted to accept a proposed amendment calling for a revision in the city's laws pertaining to mobile homes.

The amendment had been recommended by the Hall County Regional Planning Commission.

An ordinance will be brought in after further clarification on whether attached or unattached buildings on the prospective mobile home lot will be subject to mobile home building codes or regular city building codes.

Planning Director Nelson Helm said the approved changes would give mobile home owners the option of placing their homes on permanent foundations. Current law holds they can only be placed on stands.

Another prospective change would allow the homeowner to place the mobile home on an individual lot without applying for a park license.

The revisions met opposition from City Building Inspector Robert Lang, who asked council members to withhold action until the matter could be further studied.

Lang charged that the revision would set up a double standard by allowing citizens to have a mobile home on their property with less stringent regulations than those on conventional homes.

Omahan Sentenced In Rape Of Lincolnite

Omaha (UPI) — Reginald Country, 30, of Omaha was sentenced Monday to 10 to 30 years in the Nebraska Penal Complex for the rape of a young Lincoln woman last August, only hours after she had been raped by another man on I-80.

Country entered a no contest plea to the rape charge last month. Police said he raped the 26-year-old woman, mother of three children, in a house on the Near North Side.

Last July 31, the woman received a telephone call about 10 p.m. from an unidentified man who said her husband had been injured in an automobile accident. The call was a hoax.

When the woman arrived at the hospital where the caller said her husband was being taken, she was abducted in the parking lot.

She told police she was taken to the Gretna interchange on I-80 where she was raped in the car, then strangled until she lost consciousness.

The woman, thinking she was in Lincoln, started to run but had gone only a short distance when she met her second abductor — the man police later said was Country.

The woman told police the man offered to help her, but instead took her to a house where he raped and beat her.

Scheduled Dams Topic At Brainard NRD Meet

Brainard — Three dams scheduled for construction east of Brainard in 1975 will be discussed at the public meeting here at 2 p.m. Monday of the Lower Platte South Natural Resources District.

NRD General Manager Hal Schroeder said the North Oak Watershed Project will be explained at the meeting, to be held at the Brainard American Legion Hall.

NRD officials will explain the design, construction and benefits of the three structures, as well as the land requirements.

Schroeder said about 10 landowners will be requested to grant easements for construction and floodwater impoundments on their property. About 20 additional landowners in the drainage area have been invited so NRD officials can discuss with them conservation practices to reduce silt deposits in the reservoirs, which reduces their useful life.

Construction has begun on four of the sixteen structures to be built in the North Oak Project. These structures will provide flood control in portions of Butler, Saunders and Lancaster counties.

Omaha Truck Driver Is Killed

Omaha (AP) — An employe of the Douglas County surveyor's office was killed Tuesday in Omaha while working on a dump truck used to plow snow.

Ronald J. Jordan, 38, was crushed under the box of the dump truck, said Lou Lamberty, Douglas county surveyor.

Lamberty said Jordan had apparently raised the box of the dump truck to check a malfunction and was crushed when the box fell on him.

He said Jordan was working with another truck and that truck had gone ahead, so no one actually witnessed the mishap. However, Lamberty said a malfunction was the apparent cause of the death.

Jordan had been employed by the surveyor's office 3½ years and was married with two children.

G.I. Council Likes Mobile Home Law

Grand Island (UPI) — The Grand Island City Council has voted to accept a proposed amendment calling for a revision in the city's laws pertaining to mobile homes.

The amendment had been recommended by the Hall County Regional Planning Commission.

An ordinance will be brought in after further clarification on whether attached or unattached buildings on the prospective mobile home lot will be subject to mobile home building codes or regular city building codes.

Planning Director Nelson Helm said the approved changes would give mobile home owners the option of placing their homes on permanent foundations. Current law holds they can only be placed on stands.

Another prospective change would allow the homeowner to place the mobile home on an individual lot without applying for a park license.

The revisions met opposition from City Building Inspector Robert Lang, who asked council members to withhold action until the matter could be further studied.

Lang charged that the revision would set up a double standard by allowing citizens to have a mobile home on their property with less stringent regulations than those on conventional homes.

Omahan Sentenced In Rape Of Lincolnite

Omaha (UPI) — Reginald Country, 30, of Omaha was sentenced Monday to 10 to 30 years in the Nebraska Penal Complex for the rape of a young Lincoln woman last August, only hours after she had been raped by another man on I-80.

Country entered a no contest plea to the rape charge last month. Police said he raped the 26-year-old woman, mother of three children, in a house on the Near North Side.

Last July 31, the woman received a telephone call about 10 p.m. from an unidentified man who said her husband had been injured in an automobile accident The call was a hoax.

When the woman arrived at the hospital where the caller said her husband was being taken, she was abducted in the parking lot.

She told police she was taken to the Gretna interchange on I-80 where she was raped in the car, then strangled until she lost consciousness.

The woman, thinking she was in Lincoln, started to run but had gone only a short distance when she met her second abductor — the man police later said was Country.

The woman told police the man offered to help her, but instead took her to a house where he raped and beat her

Livestock In Relatively Good Condition After Blizzard

Marvin Carlson at the Saunders County Extension office at Wahoo said they had received isolated reports of a steer lost in the blizzard. Some herds had pushed through electric fences and become scattered, he reported.

"We had a few hogs smothered when drifts covered their shelters and one or two steers died after the storm due to stress. Some hogs appear to be suffering after effects, but most are expected to recover," he said.

Ron Radenz of the State Federal Division of Agricultural Statistics said their weekly report was a monthly one during the winter months, but they would conduct a survey for a report to be issued on Feb. 3.

"We do have two reports, one of a cow that was discovered dead in a road by a snowplow and another of a cow dead near a road. We haven't had any reports of other losses, but that doesn't mean there weren't any," he said.

Ranchers in particular could find they have some dead animals they weren't aware of after the snow melts.

Bids For Education Building In Grand Island OKd

Grand Island (AP) — The Central Nebraska Technical Community College Area Board of Governors gave final acceptance Monday night to bids for an adult and continuing education building in Grand Island.

The board also said it intended to obligate up to $95,000 of its capital improvement fund for changes in various aspects of the contract. These included a provision for 4,200 more square feet of space in the building, making a total of 16,500 square feet.

Dr. Chester Gausman, the college area president, reported to the board he had been informed that two Grand Island Catholic elementary schools scheduled to be closed would not be available for possible use by the college.

Livestock In Relatively Good Condition After Blizzard

Marvin Carlson at the Saunders County Extension office at Wahoo said they had received isolated reports of a steer lost in the blizzard. Some herds had pushed through electric fences and become scattered, he reported.

"We had a few hogs smothered when drifts covered their shelters and one or two steers died after the storm due to stress. Some hogs appear to be suffering after effects, but most are expected to recover," he said.

Ron Radenz of the State Federal Division of Agricultural Statistics said their weekly report was a monthly one during the winter months, but they would conduct a survey for a report to be issued on Feb. 3.

"We do have two reports, one of a cow that was discovered dead in a road by a snowplow and another of a cow dead near a road. We haven't had any reports of other losses, but that doesn't mean there weren't any," he said.

Ranchers in particular could find they have some dead animals they weren't aware of after the snow melts.

Plutonium Plant Violations Found

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla. (AP) — The Atomic Energy Commission has issued notices and a warning to Kerr-McGee Nuclear Corp. for four apparent violations of AEC regulations at its plutonium plant near Crescent.

"Such failures, if allowed to continue, could have adverse effects on the health and safety controls of your radiation and criticality protection program," the AEC's James Keppler told the company.

Jan Strasma, a spokesman for Keppler's regional office in Glen Ellyn, Ill., said Tuesday the "criticality" referred to the possibility of a nuclear chain reaction.

The AEC has said, however, the plant presented no community hazard.

Keppler also said in a letter that "in addition to the apparent violations of AEC requirements . . . we are concerned about the number of incidents where your employes failed to follow your internal procedures."

Strasma said the apparent violations were identified during an AEC investigation in November of the contamination of Karen Silkwood, a plant employe, and its investigation into allegations presented by the Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers International Union about working conditions at the plant.

Miss Silkwood died in a traffic accident while en route to meet with a union official and a New York Times newsman to discuss plant safety. The Oklahoma Highway patrol said the death was accidental.

In a report released last week, the AEC said its investigation indicated Miss Silkwood had ingested plutonium and that plutonium had been added to two of her urine samples after the samples were taken.

In addition, it said plutonium was taken from the plant — whether on purpose or accidentally wasn't known — and resulted in the contamination of Miss Silkwood's apartment. Her roommate, who also works at the plant, and a friend were found to be contaminated too, the report said.

Strasma said the probe resulted in an alleged violation involving company failure to maintain records indentifying two urine samples from an earlier contamination incident involving Miss Silkwood.

The other three violations were found in a second investigation — failure of the company to report to the AEC about a processing equipment problem; exceeding on two occasions the amount of plutonium permitted in a work area, and use in a work area of a small amount of plutonium in a form different from that authorized by Kerr-McGee's license from the AEC.

The plant produces fuel rods for nuclear reactors.

Jurors Have Problem

San Francisco (AP) — "Remember," Municipal Judge Ray Williamson admonished the jury, "all 12 of you must agree upon a verdict." So saying, he dispatched the deliberative dozen to the jury room, from whence came a note two hours later from the foreman: "Judge, we are deadlocked 7-4-2. What shall we do?" The jury was advised to subtract one.

Young Women, Boy, 3, Found Dead In Kansas

Hill City, Kan. (AP) — Two young women who were found shot to death in an abandoned farmhouse near Hill City have been tentatively identified as members of a travel party which disappeared Dec. 13 on a trip from Denver to Fort Madison, Iowa.

The Kansas Bureau of Investigation said Tuesday after autopsies were performed that Cheryl Lynn Young, 21, Downey, Calif., was shot twice at close range with a shotgun, and Diane Lynn Lovett, 19, Fort Madison, was sexually molested and also shot at close range.

Mrs. Young's 3-year-old son, Guy Young, whose body also was found in the farmhouse Monday, apparently died of exposure.

A car which was being driven by Mrs. Young was found Dec. 13 near the Ogallah interchange on Interstate 70, about 30 miles southeast of Hill City in northwest Kansas.

The car had a flat tire. No trace of the occupants could be found.

Authorities did not determine immediately if the two women were related.

They and the little boy had stopped in Denver to visit Mrs. Young's father.

Dividend To Be Good As Gold

The firm, Gold Placers, Inc., is mining for gold in Blewett Pass between Ellensburg and Cashmere at the village of Liberty.

Details of how to ship gold to holders of the company's 29 million shares of outstanding stock "will have to be worked out," said Bud Thorp, president of Gold Placers.

Heart Attack Clues Evident Beforehand

CHICAGO (AP) — Researchers in St. Louis have found a way to identify in advance many persons who might die of sudden heart attack.

Some 675,000 Americans die each year from heart attacks, and half of these are sudden deaths, some of which might be prevented, the researchers say.

At Washington University School of Medicine, cardiologist G. Charles Oliver and his colleagues have been following persons who have been treated in the hospital for myocardial infarction, a common type of heart attack.

The findings, which could eventually help the general populace, are preliminary and the research is continuing.

Oliver said they have found that those who have relatively frequent minor variations in heart beat, called premature ventricular contractions — PVCs — are the most likely to die later of sudden heart attack.

Premature ventricular contractions often precede more serious irregular heartbeats, called arrhythmias, which can lead to cardiac arrest.

Oliver said in a telephone interview that the next step is for medical researchers to determine the best of several possible means for preventing the fatal heart attack.

Going to move? Then notify the Circulation Dept. so you won't miss your paper. Be sure to give both old and new address.

Plutonium Plant Violations Found

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla. (AP) — The Atomic Energy Commission has issued notices and a warning to Kerr-McGee Nuclear Corp. for four apparent violations of AEC regulations at its plutonium plant near Crescent.

Such failures, if allowed to continue, could have adverse effects on the health and safety controls of your radiation and criticality protection program," the AEC's James Keppler told the company.

Jan Strasma, a spokesman for Keppler's regional office in Glen Ellyn, Ill., said Tuesday the "criticality" referred to the possibility of a nuclear chain reaction.

The AEC has said, however, the plant presented no community hazard.

Keppler also said in a letter that "in addition to the apparent violations of AEC requirements . . . we are concerned about the number of incidents where your employes failed to follow your internal procedures."

Strasma said the apparent violations were identified during an AEC investigation in November of the contamination of Karen Silkwood, a plant employe, and its investigation into allegations presented by the Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers International Union about working conditions at the plant.

Miss Silkwood died in a traffic accident while en route to meet with a union official and a New York Times newsman to discuss plant safety. The Oklahoma Highway patrol said the death was accidental.

In a report released last week, the AEC said its investigation indicated Miss Silkwood had ingested plutonium and that plutonium had been added to two of her urine samples after the samples were taken.

In addition, it said plutonium was taken from the plant — whether on purpose or accidentally wasn't known — and resulted in the contamination of Miss Silkwood's apartment. Her roommate, who also works at the plant, and a friend were found to be contaminated too, the report said.

Strasma said the probe resulted in an alleged violation involving company failure to maintain records indentifying two urine samples from an earlier contamination incident involving Miss Silkwood.

The other three violations were found in a second investigation — failure of the company to report to the AEC about a processing equipment problem; exceeding on two occasions the amount of plutonium permitted in a work area, and use in a work area of a small amount of plutonium in a form different from that authorized by Kerr-McGee's license from the AEC.

The plant produces fuel rods for nuclear reactors.

Jurors Have Problem

San Francisco (AP) — "Remember," Municipal Judge Ray Williamson admonished the jury, "all 12 of you must agree upon a verdict." So saying, he dispatched the deliberative dozen to the jury room, from whence came a note two hours later from the foreman: "Judge, we are deadlocked 7-4-2 What shall we do?" The jury was advised to subtract one

Young Women, Boy, 3, Found Dead In Kansas

Hill City, Kan (AP) — Two young women who were found shot to death in an abandoned farmhouse near Hill City have been tentatively identified as members of a travel party which disappeared Dec. 13 on a trip from Denver to Fort Madison, Iowa

The Kansas Bureau of Investigation said Tuesday after autopsies were performed that Cheryl Lynn Young, 21, Downey, Calif., was shot twice at close range with a shotgun, and Diane Lynn Lovett, 19, Fort Madison, was sexually molested and also shot at close range.

Mrs Young's 3-year-old son, Guy Young, whose body also was found in the farmhouse Monday, apparently died of exposure.

A car which was being driven by Mrs. Young was found Dec. 13 near the Ogallah interchange on Interstate 70, about 30 miles southeast of Hill City in northwest Kansas.

The car had a flat tire. No trace of the occupants could be found.

Authorities did not determine immediately if the two women were related

They and the little boy had stopped in Denver to visit Mrs. Young's father.

Dividend To Be Good As Gold

The firm, Gold Placers, Inc., is mining for gold in Blewett Pass between Ellensburg and Cashmere at the village of Liberty

Details of how to ship gold to holders of the company's 2.9 million shares of outstanding stock "will have to be worked out," said Bud Thorp, president of Gold Placers

Heart Attack Clues Evident Beforehand

CHICAGO (AP) — Researchers in St. Louis have found a way to identify in advance many persons who might die of sudden heart attack.

Some 675,000 Americans die each year from heart attacks, and half of these are sudden deaths, some of which might be prevented, the researchers say.

At Washington University School of Medicine, cardiologist G. Charles Oliver and his colleagues have been following persons who have been treated in the hospital for myocardial infarction, a common type of heart attack.

The findings, which could eventually help the general populace, are preliminary and the research is continuing.

Oliver said they have found that those who have relatively frequent minor variations in heart beat, called premature ventricular contractions — PVCs — are the most likely to die later of sudden heart attack.

Premature ventricular contractions..often precede more serious irregular heartbeats, called arrhythmias, which can lead to cardiac arrest.

Oliver said in a telephone interview that the next step is for medical researchers to determine the best of several possible means for preventing the fatal heart attack.

Going to move? Then notify the Circulation Dept. so you won't miss your paper. Be sure to give both old and new address.

Ed Board Against More Fingers In Tax Pie

By DICK HOLMAN
Star Staff Writer

In a self-described move to protect its own financial base, the Lincoln Board of education Tuesday declared opposition to any legislation allowing more agencies or institutions to levy local property taxes.

The position also in effect opposes local support for the state's technical community colleges.

The State Supreme Court seven months ago declared unconstitutional the one-mill property tax allowed each of the six community college areas. The 1975 Legislature must decide on the two-year colleges' future funding, as well as on a bill introduced to put them under state college system control.

The Lincoln board took its legislative stance on a 5-0 vote, with Marvin Stewart abstaining. The position, however, put the board on record supporting "measures to coordinate all phases of higher education," especially to prevent "duplication of services and programs."

Increase Supported

On other legislative issues, the board supported an increase in state aid to operate the public schools, favored a better teacher retirement plan and tenure laws with due process provisions for Nebraska teachers' employment.

The board also agreed fully "with the general intent of LB403," providing state funds for special education programs. However, the board statement criticized the administration of LB403 — now embroiled in controversy — and called for legislative clarification of the law.

Board members also went on record in favor of a new law to define more specifically residency and non-residency for tuition purposes. That position follows the board's own involvement in seesawing tuition decisions that drew public criticism.

In other business, staff development specialist Jody Batten reported to the board on programs for academically gifted students. Since September, 530 more students have been identified, bringing the district total to 2,390.

"By the end of the 1975-76 school year," Mrs. Batten said, "we will have taken care of identifying all the academically gifted. From then on, we'll identify kindergarteners and transfers into the city."

Programs Vary

Individualized programs vary in each school, she said. Gifted elementary students are helped to use thinking skills and problem-solving techniques, and secondary students participate in courses specifically geared for them. Each school gets extra money for supplies, based on the number of gifted students identified.

But board member Lou Roper told Mrs. Batten, "I'm concerned that it's operating more in theory than in practice." Roper has a child identified as gifted, and he said all he sees is "the school getting a point or two for it, and that's it."

Williamette Shafer agreed: Since one of her children was identified last spring, she said, she hasn't "seen any productive thinking materials," and teachers are little inclined to follow up.

Supt. John Prasch noted the programs for the gifted aren't highly visible to parents; he and instruction superintendent Ron Brandt said the programs rather are designed to meet each child's needs and challenge him over a period of time.

'Work To Do'

"We have a great deal of work to do beyond this," Prasch said, adding that gifted programs are "much easier" to run in secondary schools, compared to challenging a second-grader.

He noted that teachers' skills vary in challenging students. Mrs. Batten reported that teachers may participate in special workshops and in-school courses to learn how to develop their students' thinking abilities and to use instructional materials.

Staff Development Director Betty Dillon said letting each student progress at his own rate is "perfectly defensible although it's not very visible," a method aided by multi-unit schools.

To Board member John Lux's question, whether the program will be expanded to develop student leadership and affective roles, Mrs. Dillon said the staff has "no intention of stopping here" with academically gifted youngsters.

The board also:

— Adopted in part a report on extra-standard pay for teachers who handle extra activities, establishing an objective method to determine dollar amounts. Pay for sponsors of junior high yearbooks and drill teams will be considered later.

— Granted a $100 option to the City Parks Department to buy six acres of school-owned land in Salt Valley View in extreme southwest Lincoln to build a park. The land is on a 12-acre potential school site that was declared surplus propoerty.

— Authorized temporary office space not currently used in Havelock School for Lancaster County Health Department nurses, as an area staff operations base.

— Renewed exclusive recognition to the Lincoln Education Association for collective bargaining with the board on teacher contracts.

— Noted that the district complies with competitive bidding practices for contract jobs in reply to the Lincoln Union Label Council's complaint about printing materials being sold to students.

— Named Peat, Marwick, Mitchell and Co. auditors for the 1974-75 school year, for $5,720.

'Ambitious' Improvement, Maintenance Plans Outlined

Warning that the Lincoln School District must carefully watch its dollars, Supt. John Prasch Tuesday outlined a $6 million-plus building improvement and maintenance plan he said is "probably more ambitious than we can handle."

The plan for calendar 1975 includes a $1 million joint city-school recreation center at Irving Junior High, 2745 S. 22nd. Cost to the schools will be $700,000.

Prasch and the Lincoln Board of Education reviewed architects' drawings of the center, approved Friday by the City Parks and Recreation Department board. But the school board delayed its approval Tuesday, because Prasch said the Irving staff is "not completely pleased with the plan."

Before making a final recommendation to the board, Prasch said, he'll meet first with the Irving staff to discuss objections about divided instructional space in the gym area.

Architect Bob Dawson explained the plans for the 37,748-square-foot addition to the southwest corner of Irving, which includes two gyms, dressing rooms and storage for the schools, and city space for offices, a canteen, lounge, game rooms, TV area, two craft rooms, a kiln room and kitchen.

To the west in Irvingdale Park, the center complex will include four tennis courts, a basketball area, swimming pool, play areas, a football field and 440-yard track.

Street To Close

Prasch said 21st St. north of Van Dorn will be closed to accommodate the park area, and additional parking lots will be added.

For the remainder of the district's 46 buildings, Prasch said "some of the projects will spill over into the next calendar year." But even so, "We must watch much more closely" the expenditures than during the past several years.

Based on recommendations from building principals' designated needs, the work schedule is tentative, Prasch noted, and some improvement needs will doubtless be passed up.

High school buildings scheduled for the most work include a $1 million renovation project at Lincoln High and completion of the Northeast addition with almost $1.4 million in costs outstanding. East High and Southeast are designated for minor improvements.

Everett, Irving

Everett and Irving will get the most attention among the junior high schools in 1975. The new center is to satisfy gym needs at Irving and major remodeling is set for Everett. Prasch noted that Irving and Lefler have each requested the highly acclaimed individualized industrial arts program now operating at Goodrich. It would require extensive remodeling.

Among elementary schools, the new Hill School is under construction, at a cost of $1.2 million, and $600,000 more is allocated for the Morley addition. The Riley auditorium will be remodeled for $22,300, and site improvement is being eyed at Prescott and Pyrtle.

Kahoa Elementary will get safety matting around its playground equipment and an experimental use project in place of gravel.

The work schedule for all district buildings is set up in priority order for each. Parents and others who wish to have more details should contact Prasch's office.

Funds for the projects are included in the school district budget, produced from part of the mill levy receipts designed to reduce reliance on bond issues.

Body Found Floating

Boston (UPI) — The Coast Guard said it found a body floating in the ocean 25 miles south of Portland, Maine, and it was believed to be from the 54-foot research vessel Gulf Stream, missing since Saturday with a crew of six.

Playboy's Hefner Blasts 'Witchhunt'

CHICAGO (AP) — Playboy publisher Hugh Hefner, visibly upset over the suicide of his executive secretary, described a federal investigation of alleged drug use at his mansions Tuesday as a "politically motivated, anti-Playboy witchhunt."

The body of Bobbie Arnstein, 34, was found Monday in a Near North Side hotel room. Authorities said she died of a drug overdose.

Hefner told a news conference that because of pressure on her to supply information against him, "an already troubled girl was pushed beyond her endurance and killed herself."

He also said that if Miss Arnstein had concocted evidence of hard drug use against him, she would not have been indicted.

U.S. Atty. James R. Thompson, whose office prosecuted Miss Arnstein, was reported out of town and his first assistant, Samuel Skinner, was not immediately available for comment.

Miss Arnstein had returned to work for Hefner while she appealed her conviction for conspiracy to distribute cocaine. She had been sentenced to 15 years in prison, pending a psychiatric examination. Twice before she had tried suicide, Hefner said.

Hefner's comments were his first public remarks on Miss Arnstein's conviction and on twin grand jury investigations involving current or former Playboy employes.

In addition to a federal grand jury investigation, State's Atty. Bernard Carey said a Cook County grand jury that is looking into the Sept. 6, 1973, death of a Playboy bunny who died of a drug overdose also was given the Arnstein case.

"It's difficult to describe the inquisitional atmosphere of Bobbie Arnstein's trial and of the related Playboy probe," said Hefner. He said he was the target of a goverment conspiracy because of his Playboy social philosophy.

Hefner said he will testify before the grand jury, if he is asked, and doesn't expect to be indicted unless the charges are "conjured out of smoke."

AP

HEFNER . . . comments on suicide.

He said there is evidence Miss Arnstein was convicted on the basis of perjured testimony and added that government prosecutors could not accept that he was not involved in hard drugs.

Hefner said he never encouraged the use of narcotics at his mansions in Chicago and Los Angeles and he and his staff never distributed hard drugs to his guests.

He declined to answer whether he used or distributed marijuana.

Hefner said he believes the federal drug investigation, which he said has been going on for a year, was initiated with the U.S. attorney's strike force in Chicago and has the approval of Washington officials.

Hefner didn't name anyone he suspected involved in the alleged government conspiracy.

King Faisal Pledges Support To Fight Israel

DAMASCUS, Syria (AP) — King Faisal of Saudi Arabia, launching a tour of Arab countries he bankrolls, declared Tuesday he will put all his oil-rich nation's resources at their disposal in the struggle against Israel. But he gave no figures.

"Arab unity is realized," a Syrian radio announcer shouted over and over as Faisal made a triumphant entrance into Damascus through hundreds of thousands of cheering Syrians.

Syrian President Hafez Assad told Faisal their meeting will strengthen Arab solidarity, which he called "the only way to get what we want, liberation of the occupied lands and restoration of usurped Palestinian rights."

The two leaders exchanged their countries' highest decorations after meeting at Damascus airport, where doves of peace relesed in the ceremonies flew through puffs of white smoke from a 21-gun salute. They then drove into Damascus along a 20-mile route lined with wildly cheering Syrians.

In other Middle East developments:

—U.N. Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim held out the possibility that U.N. troops separating the Syrians and Israelis on the Golan Heights would have to pull out at the end of May.

He told a news conference in New York that when Assad agreed last November to extend the mandate of the force on the Golan front to May 31, "he made crystal clear that this does not mean that Syria is ready to accept a further extension of the mandate beyond six months."

Waldheim said a further extension could not be expected without progress toward a political settlement. He said he was "worried" because there had been no such progress and added that without a break-through, an "extremely serious" situation would result.

— President Anwar Sadat of Egypt indicated Tuesday he also would not agree to extension of the U.N. troop mandate unless Israel undertakes further withdrawals from Arab lands. Sadat was quoted by the semiofficial Cairo newspaper Al Ahram as telling a delegation of French law professors: "Further extension depends on Israel's attitude because the situation is grave and it is necessary that Israel make more withdrawals from the three Arab fronts."

—The Shah of Iran, in Vienna for a routine medical checkup, said in an Austrian television interview his country would favor the Arab cause but would not get involved directly should a new conflict with Israel develop.

He said Iran's "sympathies are with the Arabs, not only because we are brothers and we belong to the same faith, but because the other side is occupying the land of the Arabs . . . But directly we cannot get obviously involved."

Saudi sources said during four days of talks in Damascus, Faisal is expected to take a look at how his oil billions are being spent and translate his growing financial clout into political influence over joint Arab policy.

On Thursday he will see a display of Soviet weapons at a Syrian air base, weapons he partially paid for. But as a fierce anti-Communist, Faisal has made it clear he wants to lessen Soviet influence in the Arab world.

Arab diplomatic sources said the 68-year-old Saudi monarch may also meet in Damascus with Yasir Arafat, leader of the Palestine Liberation Organization, another recipient of Saudi money to support the guerrilla struggle against Israel.

Both Syria and the PLO feel they deserve a bigger share of the Arab oil wealth and are aware that Faisal, an absolute ruler, holds the purse strings to nearly $25 billion of surplus left over from 1974 oil income.

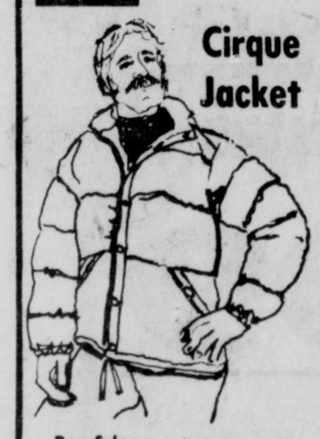

Sources in Damascus said Syria and the PLO want Faisal to intervene with King Hussein of Jordan to permit Palestinian guerrillas to operate once again from Jordan, which has the longest border with Israel.

Ed Board Against More Fingers In Tax Pie

By DICK HOLMAN
Star Staff Writer

In a self-described move to protect its own financial base, the Lincoln Board of education Tuesday declared opposition to any legislation allowing more agencies or institutions to levy local property taxes.

The position also in effect opposes local support for the state's technical community colleges.

The State Supreme Court seven months ago declared unconstitutional the one-mill property tax allowed each of the six community college areas. The 1975 Legislature must decide on the two-year colleges' future funding, as well as on a bill introduced to put them under state college system control.

The Lincoln board took its legislative stance on a 5-0 vote, with Marvin Stewart abstaining. The position, however, put the board on record supporting "measures to coordinate all phases of higher education," especially to prevent "duplication of services and programs."

Increase Supported

On other legislative issues, the board supported an increase in state aid to operate the public schools, favored a better teacher retirement plan and tenure laws with due process provisions for Nebraska teachers' employment.

The board also agreed fully "with the general intent of LB403," providing state funds for special education programs. However, the board statement criticized the administration of LB403 — now embroiled in controversy — and called for legislative clarification of the law.

Board members also went on record in favor of a new law to define more specifically residency and non-residency for tuition purposes. That position follows the board's own involvement in seesawing tuition decisions that drew public criticism.

In other business, staff development specialist Jody Batten reported to the board on programs for academically gifted students. Since September, 530 more students have been identified, bringing the district total to 2,390.

"By the end of the 1975-76 school year," Mrs. Batten said, "we will have taken care of identifying all the academically gifted. From then on, we'll identify kindergarteners and transfers into the city."

Programs Vary

Individualized programs vary in each school, she said. Gifted elementary students are helped to use thinking skills and problem-solving techniques, and secondary students participate in courses specifically geared for them. Each school gets extra money for supplies, based on the number of gifted students identified.

But board member Lou Roper told Mrs. Batten, "I'm concerned that it's operating more in theory than in practice." Roper has a child identified as gifted, and he said all he sees is "the school getting a point or two for it, and that's it."

Williamette Shafer agreed: Since one of her children was identified last spring, she said, she hasn't "seen any productive thinking materials," and teachers are little inclined to follow up.

Supt. John Prasch noted the programs for the gifted aren't highly visible to parents; he and instruction superintendent Ron Brandt said the programs rather are designed to meet each child's needs and challenge him over a period of time.

'Work To Do'

"We have a great deal of work to do beyond this," Prasch said, adding that gifted programs are "much easier" to run in secondary schools, compared to challenging a second-grader.

He noted that teachers' skills vary in challenging students. Mrs. Batten reported that teachers may participate in special workshops and in-school courses to learn how to develop their students' thinking abilities and to use instructional materials.

Staff Development Director Betty Dillon said letting each student progress at his own rate is "perfectly defensible although it's not very visible," a method aided by multi-unit schools.

To Board member John Lux's question, whether the program will be expanded to develop student leadership and affective roles, Mrs. Dillon said the staff has "no intention of stopping here" with academically gifted youngsters.

The board also:

— Adopted in part a report on extra-standard pay for teachers who handle extra activities, establishing an objective method to determine dollar amounts. Pay for sponsors of junior high yearbooks and drill teams will be considered later.

— Granted a $100 option to the City Parks Department to buy six acres of school-owned land in Salt Valley View in extreme southwest Lincoln to build a park. The land is on a 12-acre potential school site that was declared surplus propoerty.

— Authorized temporary office space not currently used in Havelock School for Lancaster County Health Department nurses, as an area staff operations base.

— Renewed exclusive recognition to the Lincoln Education Association for collective bargaining with the board on teacher contracts.

— Noted that the district complies with competitive bidding practices for contract jobs in reply to the Lincoln Union Label Council's complaint about printing materials being sold to students.

— Named Peat, Marwick, Mitchell and Co. auditors for the 1974-75 school year, for $5,720.

Body Found Floating

Boston (UPI) — The Coast Guard said it found a body floating in the ocean 25 miles south of Portland, Maine, and it was believed to be from the 54-foot research vessel Gulf Stream, missing since Saturday with a crew of six.

'Ambitious' Improvement, Maintenance Plans Outlined

Warning that the Lincoln School District must carefully watch its dollars, Supt. John Prasch Tuesday outlined a $6 million-plus building improvement and maintenance plan he said is "probably more ambitious than we can handle."

The plan for calendar 1975 includes a $1 million joint city-school recreation center at Irving Junior High, 2745 S. 22nd. Cost to the schools will be $700,000.

Prasch and the Lincoln Board of Education reviewed architects' drawings of the center, approved Friday by the City Parks and Recreation Department board. But the school board delayed its approval Tuesday, because Prasch said the Irving staff is "not completely pleased with the plan."

Before making a final recommendation to the board, Prasch said, he'll meet first with the Irving staff to discuss objections about divided instructional space in the gym area.

Architect Bob Dawson explained the plans for the 37,748-square-foot addition to the southwest corner of Irving, which includes two gyms, dressing rooms and storage for the schools, and city space for offices, a canteen, lounge, game rooms, TV area, two craft rooms, a kiln room and kitchen.

To the west in Irvingdale Park, the center complex will include four tennis courts, a basketball area, swimming pool, play areas, a football field and 440-yard track.

Street To Close

Prasch said 21st St. north of Van Dorn will be closed to accommodate the park area, and additional parking lots will be added.

For the remainder of the district's 46 buildings, Prasch said "some of the projects will spill over into the next calendar year." But even so, "We must watch much more closely" the expenditures than during the past several years.

Based on recommendations from building principals' designated needs, the work schedule is tentative, Prasch noted, and some improvement needs will doubtless be passed up.

High school buildings scheduled for the most work include a $1 million renovation project at Lincoln High and completion of the Northeast addition with almost $1.4 million in costs outstanding. East High and Southeast are designated for minor improvements.

Everett, Irving

Everett and Irving will get the most attention among the junior high schools in 1975. The new center is to satisfy gym needs at Irving and major remodeling is set for Everett. Prasch noted that Irving and Lefler have each requested the highly acclaimed individualized industrial arts program now operating at Goodrich. It would require extensive remodeling.

Among elementary schools, the new Hill School is under construction, at a cost of $1.2 million, and $600,000 more is allocated for the Morley addition. The Riley auditorium will be remodeled for $22,300, and site improvement is being eyed at Prescott and Pyrtle.

Kahoa Elementary will get safety matting around its playground equipment and an experimental use project in place of gravel.

The work schedule for all district buildings is set up in priority order for each. Parents and others who wish to have more details should contact Prasch's office.

Funds for the projects are included in the school district budget, produced from part of the mill levy receipts designed to reduce reliance on bond issues.

So now you can get meaningful savings on many frequently purchased items.

2. WEEKLY SPECIALS TOO... IN ALL DEPARTMENTS.

Outstanding weekly specials to include meat, fresh fruits and vegetables and grocery items. And when A&P saves you money on meat, that really means something. Because at A&P, you know you're always getting fully matured meat that's cut, trimmed and priced for value. Take our beef, for instance. We sell only one quality of beef at A&P. So if you like what you see in the store, you'll love what you see at home.

3. AWARE LIST CONTINUES.

We're continuing our Early Warning System against price increases: The Aware List. Every week we will voluntarily post a list of price increases, such as those received from manufacturers, a full seven days before we actually change our price. That gives you one week to purchase at the old price, subject, of course, to product availability. You'll also find "Be Aware" shelf tags on many frequently purchased items with the day of the price increase right on the tag. Of course, the Aware List won't include perishables like meat, eggs or fresh fruit and vegetables, where markets fluctuate daily, items controlled by law; or advertised specials.

4. CONSUMER PROTECTION POLICY.

We're of course continuing our committment to making you an Aware Shopper by reminding you of what every A&P store owes you and by informing you of ways to get the most for your money. Look for the signs in A&P stores spelling out all the protection A&P gives you: 1. Guaranteed Satisfaction. 2. Exceptional Value. 3. Low Price with Absolutely No Compromise in Quality. 4. Playboy's Hefner Blasts 'Witchhunt'

CHICAGO (AP) — Playboy publisher Hugh Hefner, visibly upset over the suicide of his executive secretary, described a federal investigation of alleged drug use at his mansions Tuesday as a "politically motivated, anti-Playboy witchhunt."

The body of Bobbie Arnstein, 34, was found Monday in a Near North Side hotel room. Authorities said she died of a drug overdose.

Hefner told a news conference that because of pressure on her to supply information against him, "an already troubled girl was pushed beyond her endurance and killed herself."

He also said that if Miss Arnstein had concocted evidence of hard drug use against him, she would not have been indicted.

U.S. Atty. James R. Thompson, whose office prosecuted Miss Arnstein, was reported out of town and his first assistant, Samuel Skinner, was not immediately available for comment.

Miss Arnstein had returned to work for Hefner while she appealed her conviction for conspiracy to distribute cocaine. She had been sentenced to 15 years in prison, pending a psychiatric examination. Twice before she had tried suicide, Hefner said.

Hefner's comments were his first public remarks on Miss Arnstein's conviction and on twin grand jury investigations involving current or former Playboy employes.

In addition to a federal grand jury investigation, State's Atty. Bernard Carey said a Cook County grand jury that is looking into the Sept. 6, 1973, death of a Playboy bunny who died of a drug overdose also was given the Arnstein case.

"It's difficult to describe the inquisitional atmosphere of Bobbie Arnstein's trial and of the related Playboy probe," said Hefner. He said he was the target of a goverment conspiracy because of his Playboy social philosophy.

Hefner said he will testify before the grand jury, if he is asked, and doesn't expect to be indicted unless the charges are "conjured out of smoke."

HEFNER . . . comments on suicide.

He said there is evidence Miss Arnstein was convicted on the basis of perjured testimony and added that government prosecutors could not accept that he was not involved in hard drugs.

Hefner said he never encouraged the use of narcotics at his mansions in Chicago and Los Angeles and he and his staff never distributed hard drugs to his guests.

He declined to answer whether he used or distributed marijuana.

Hefner said he believes the federal drug investigation, which he said has been going on for a year, was initiated with the U.S. attorney's strike force in Chicago and has the approval of Washington officials.

Hefner didn't name anyone he suspected involved in the alleged government conspiracy.

King Faisal Pledges Support To Fight Israel

DAMASCUS, Syria (AP) — King Faisal of Saudi Arabia, launching a tour of Arab countries he bankrolls, declared Tuesday he will put all his oil-rich nation's resources at their disposal in the struggle against Israel. But he gave no figures.

"Arab unity is realized," a Syrian radio announcer shouted over and over as Faisal made a triumphant entrance into Damascus through hundreds of thousands of cheering Syrians.

Syrian President Hafez Assad told Faisal their meeting will strengthen Arab solidarity, which he called "the only way to get what we want, liberation of the occupied lands and restoration of usurped Palestinian rights."

The two leaders exchanged their countries' highest decorations after meeting at Damascus airport, where doves of peace relesed in the ceremonies flew through puffs of white smoke from a 21-gun salute. They then drove into Damascus along a 20-mile route lined with wildly cheering Syrians.

In other Middle East developments:

—U.N. Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim held out the possibility that U.N. troops separating the Syrians and Israelis on the Golan Heights would have to pull out at the end of May.

He told a news conference in New York that when Assad agreed last November to extend the mandate of the force on the Golan front to May 31, "he made crystal clear that this does not mean that Syria is ready to accept a further extension of the mandate beyond six months."

Waldheim said a further extension could not be expected without progress toward a political settlement. He said he was "worried" because there had been no such progress and added that without a break-through, an "extremely serious" situation would result.

— President Anwar Sadat of Egypt indicated Tuesday he also would not agree to extension of the U.N. troop mandate unless Israel undertakes further withdrawals from Arab lands. Sadat was quoted by the semiofficial Cairo newspaper Al Ahram as telling a delegation of French law professors: "Further extension depends on Israel's attitude because the situation is grave and it is necessary that Israel make more withdrawals from the three Arab fronts."

—The Shah of Iran, in Vienna for a routine medical checkup, said in an Austrian television interview his country would favor the Arab cause but would not get involved directly should a new conflict with Israel develop.

He said Iran's "sympathies are with the Arabs, not only because we are brothers and we belong to the same faith, but because the other side is occupying the land of the Arabs . . . But directly we cannot get obviously involved."

Saudi sources said during four days of talks in Damascus, Faisal is expected to take a look at how his oil billions are being spent and translate his growing financial clout into political influence over joint Arab policy.

On Thursday he will see a display of Soviet weapons at a Syrian air base, weapons he partially paid for. But as a fierce anti-Communist, Faisal has made it clear he wants to lessen Soviet influence in the Arab world.

Arab diplomatic sources said the 68-year-old Saudi monarch may also meet in Damascus with Yasir Arafat, leader of the Palestine Liberation Organization, another recipient of Saudi money to support the guerrilla struggle against Israel.

Both Syria and the PLO feel they deserve a bigger share of the Arab oil wealth and are aware that Faisal, an absolute ruler, holds the purse strings to nearly $25 billion of surplus left over from 1974 oil income.

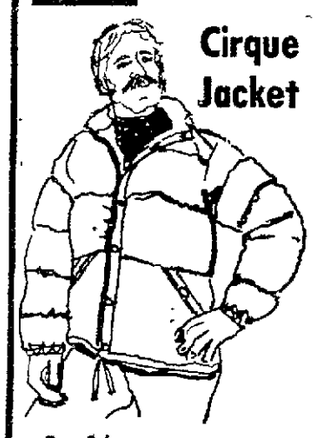

Sources in Damascus said Syria and the PLO want Faisal to intervene with King Hussein of Jordan to permit Palestinian guerrillas to operate once again from Jordan, which has the longest border with Israel.

Volume Of Garbage Is Astounding

By LIANE GUENTHER
Star Staff Writer

If someone had the time and inclination to analyze the tons of garbage Lincoln residents throw away, the results would likely be astounding.

Consider, for example, that a typical American city Lincoln's size — approximately 160,000 persons — dumps about 1,000 pounds of beef in the garbage every week.

At least $442,000 worth of vegetables and a comparable amount of pastry also goes into the waste can annually in a city this size.

Didn't Want It

Apparently, the people who had just moved out didn't want to carry it along, she said.

"We ate on that almost the whole semester. There were macaroni and cheese dinners and pizza mixes," she said. "I even found a couple of nice barrettes I still wear."

Lincoln isn't alone. This same sort of waste — $80 to $100 worth of food per family per year — goes on all over the country.

Dr. William Rathje of the University of Arizona, along with his students, has been analyzing garbage in the Tucson, Ariz., area for several years. He said the increase in prices hasn't cut down on the waste. In fact, last year's straight waste, as distinguished from leftovers, was up 10% from the previous year.

'Anything, Everything'

The wife of a local garbage hauler said her husband has found "just about anything and everything" in people's garbage cans.

One thing that stuck in her husband's mind was how much people waste after the holidays, she said, "like how much meat is left on a turkey carcass when it's thrown away."

Sometimes he finds radios and small appliances, she said. "It may be just the matter of a new cord of a new plug, but people don't take the time to fix 'em.

"We usually don't bother either," she said, "because my husband doesn't like to drag that stuff home all the time."

One time her husband did salvage an antique mirror that one of his customers had dumped. He has since refinished the wooden frame and they have it in their home.

She also noted the amounts of stale bread, fruits, vegetables and meats thrown out by local grocery stores.

"They've thrown stuff away that makes us sick," she said, "like boxes and boxes of bread. Everybody keeps talking about food shortages. This seems such a waste."

Not Enough Space

Phillip Knaub, whose family has operated a refuse service in Lincoln for the past 58 years, said he's worried there won't be enough space for things people throw away.

"We're finding out you can't bury it in low-lying areas because water filters through the garbage and runs into streams and rivers.

"What are you going to do with it?"

Several city agencies are looking into the possibility of trading trash for cash by processing solid waste for fuel. The process is costly to initiate, but the issue is still very much alive.

Knaub said that within the past 10 years the amount of garbage from a single family residence has tripled. And for a business, it's 10 times more than a decade ago.

The average person throws about 17 pounds of trash away each day, he said. "Although a lot of it could be recycled, it's faster, easier and sometimes cheaper to just dump it."

Dr. Dale R. Henning, associate professor of anthropology at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln, said he's often thought of having his archeology students conduct research on garbage.

"When I teach an archeology course, I always have my students consider what might happen if 2,000 years from now someone tried to analyze our culture from what they find.

"When we dig at a prehistoric site, what we basically look at is their garbage," he noted.

He pointed out that 2,000 years hence a scientist might unearth some non-perishable chunks of our era, such as ceramic bathroom fixtures.

Since sinks, stools and bathtubs would be found at every home site and abound at city dumps, it would be logical to assume they were something important — like family shrines.

There is but one thing to say about food waste in this country: 'Urp!'

Create Less Garbage

Why all this waste in the midst of higher and higher food prices?

Harriet Kohn, nutrition specialist for the University of Nebraska's Cooperative Extension Service, said perhaps it's because people don't realize how quickly small amounts add up to dollars.

Secondly, she said, housewives are buying food in larger quantities to combat higher prices. However, much of it may spoil before it's used.

"The principle is to buy the largest amount you need but can still use while the food is top rate," she said. "If you buy more than you really need, it's no savings if part of it goes to waste."

Don't overbuy on fresh produce, she advised, even though it's on sale. Avoid spoilage through careful planning; cook just what's needed because little dabs of leftovers will probably spoil before they're eaten.

In terms of more obvious food wastes, Mrs. Kohn urged using the entire vegetable rather than peeling it and throwing the skins away.

One method is to scrub vegetables well before cooking and eat skins and all. If that isn't appealing, try scrubbing first, peeling and throwing the skins in the stew pot.

"Vegetables have higher concentrations of vitamins and minerals just under the skins," she pointed out. "Another plus is that eating skins increases bulk in your diet."

Mrs. Kohn stressed that people should learn to be creative with leftovers:

— Instead of pouring vegetable cooking water down the drain, mix it half and half with tomato juice for a V-8 cocktail. As much as 50% of the water-soluble nutrients can soak out while a vegetable is cooking, she said. Another idea is to add beef or chicken bouillon cubes to vegetable water for soup.

— Throw those rubbery carrots in the soup — or these days the crockpot. "The nutrients are good as ever."

— Turn out some kind of exotic foreign dish with leftover beef, chicken or vegetables. A little imagination and you can have your own version of chicken chow mein, curried vegetables or a bean-meat casserole.

— Canned fruit juices, drained off when fruit is added to salads, can be added to a tea base for fruit punches. "It's a good substitute for soda pop and saves on sugar," she said.

— Use turkey, beef or ham bones to make a soup stock. Add a few cut-up vegetables for "a fragrant, delicious, hardy soup."

Another "awful waste" comes in plastic wraps, foils, waxed paper and plastic bags, she noted. Use washable, recyclable containers instead. It's also less expensive.

The person who lives alone or the small family has special problems, she acknowledged.

She suggested they share that less expensive 10-pound bag of potatoes with a neighbor or friend instead of letting half of it go to waste.

Cook up a pot roast or meat loaf, but divide it into individual portions and freeze them until needed, she advised, noting that a lot of leftovers dry out in the refrigerator.

"I think we're going into a whole new era in the way we view food," she said. "Everyone is starting to look at it as an important resource that needs to be treated very, very carefully.

"It's not as plentiful or as inexpensive as it used to be. It's not an unlimited resource. Between the extra cost to a family and wasting resources, people are starting to use food more wisely."

There are some benefits, she pointed out, such as decreasing heart disease and cutting down on overweight and dental problems.

"If we had less of some things, it might be good, but let's not waste what we do have."

Ordinance Would Ban Newsrack Nudity

San Francisco (AP) — No nudes on newsracks.

That's the word from Supervisor John Barbagelata who proposed an ordinance that would ban nude pictures from newsracks in the city.

Barbagelata's law would make it illegal for newspapers or periodicals sold in racks on public sidewalks to display nudity that could be seen by passersby.

Not A Typical Senator

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

Steve Fowler is not your typical Nebraska state senator.

Fowler is 24 years old. He walks to the Legislature's morning session clad in blue jeans and a sweater.

His Nebraska Blue Book biography lists memberships in Common Cause, Nebraskans for Peace and Citizens for Environmental Improvement.

But despite differences in life style and background, his legislative colleagues have chosen him to head the Unicameral's Urban Affairs Committee.

"I don't quite know how to interpret that," the soft-spoken senator from Lincoln's 27th District said in an interview.

"Obviously, there was no great fear in my being in charge of the committee. But I certainly don't see any overwhelming mandate to go out and change the urban areas, either."

In typical low-key Fowler style, the Legislature's youngest member also pointed out the fact that no other senator sought election to the chairmanship.

Fowler believes urban areas get a fair shake from what is normally described as a rural-oriented Legislature, but he is not so sure some of the cities are doing their part.

"I detect a certain lack of creativity in city administrators as they approach problems like housing, in particular, and community social services," he said.

Fowler is not inclined to automatically accept what might be described as the Chamber of Commerce approach to city problems.

For instance, he is not happy with the public financing method chosen by the city for funding the downtown parking facilities which will be included in Lincoln's so-called Centrum project.

"I wish they would create a downtown special assessment district and let downtown businesses pay for it," Fowler said.

Location of the project between 11th and 12th on O is also questionable, he suggested.

"I always understood that parking should be located at the periphery of the downtown, rather than in the core," he said.

"It seems to me this will be an obstacle to plan around over the next few years, an obstacle which will be sucking traffic into the downtown area."

As for state government, Fowler said, "it's time we evaluated the 'new federalism' to see what changes we need to make to adjust to it."

One of them, he said, is statutory authority to allow cities to use federal revenue sharing funds for social services.

Fowler will sponsor such a bill.

His legislative package also includes a proposal to increase the minimum salary base for state employes, a measure requiring mandatory deposits on all beer and soft drink bottles and cans and a bill providing more due process guarantees in school employe suspension and dismissal cases.

Fowler says his fellow senators (whose average age exceeds his by three decades) have not subjected him to "any condescending attitude" because of his youth.

"I really haven't faced that much discrimination," he said, "although it is sometimes difficult to communicate across differing personal experiences."

Fowler has not charted out any long-term political goals, although he does plan to seek re-election to the Legislature in 1976.

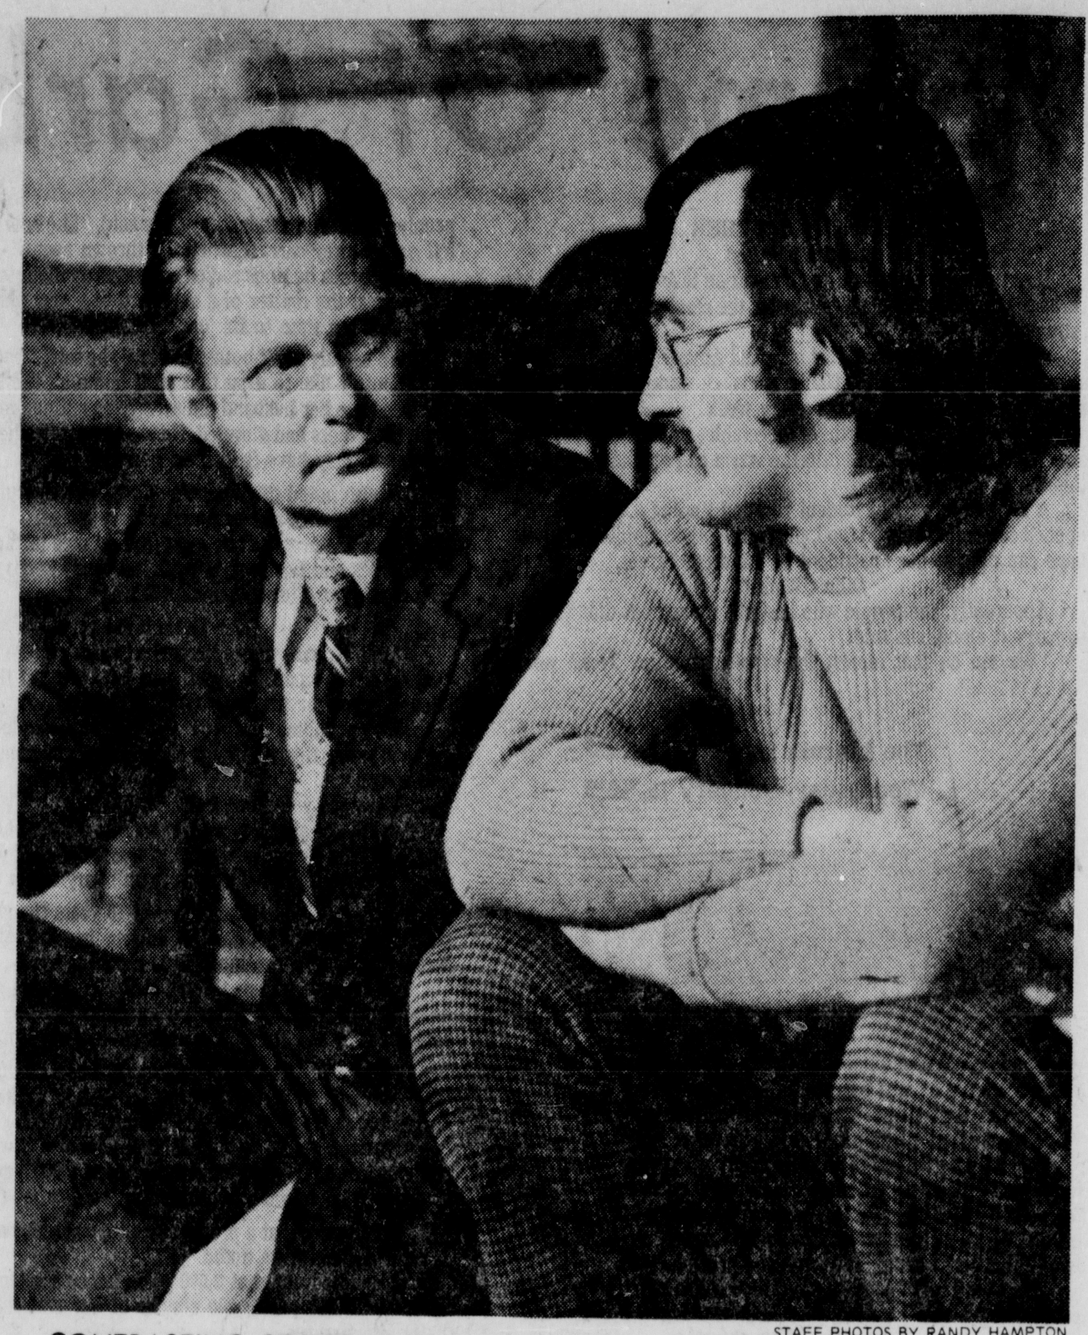

His out-of-session activities have included a part-time job as co-coordinator of Nebraskans for Peace and involvement in Democratic Party politics. Fowler was an alternate delegate to last month's Democratic national mini-convention in Kansas City.

The former student body president at the University of Nebraska's Lincoln campus may also return to school one day to complete one more year's requirements for his undergraduate degree once he better identifies his "area of interest."

A history major, Fowler has discovered that "in terms of education, the Legislature is a lot more broadening, practical and enlightening than academic courses."

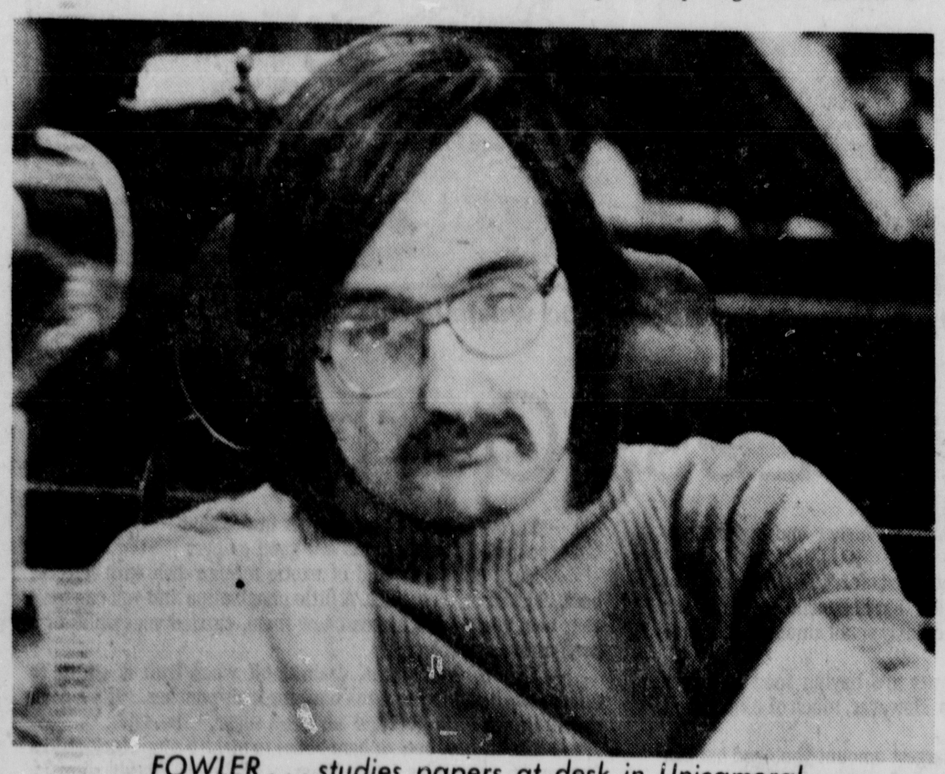

Suddenly, a smile crosses Fowler's face.

"I may just wait for an honorary degree," he laughs.

Volume Of Garbage Is Astounding

By LIANE GUENTHER
Star Staff Writer

If someone had the time and inclination to analyze the tons of garbage Lincoln residents throw away, the results would likely be astounding.

Consider, for example, that a typical American city Lincoln's size — approximately 160,000 persons — dumps about 1,000 pounds of beef in the garbage every week.

At least $442,000 worth of vegetables and a comparable amount of pastry also goes into the waste can annually in a city this size.

Didn't Want It

Apparently, the people who had just moved out didn't want to carry it along, she said.

"We ate on that almost the whole semester. There were macaroni and cheese dinners and pizza mixes," she said. "I even found a couple of nice barrettes I still wear."

Lincoln isn't alone. This same sort of waste — $80 to $100 worth of food per family per year — goes on all over the country.

Dr. William Rathje of the University of Arizona, along with his students, has been analyzing garbage in the Tucson, Ariz., area for several years. He said the increase in prices hasn't cut down on the waste. In fact, last year's straight waste, as distinguished from leftovers, was up 10% from the previous year.

'Anything, Everything'

The wife of a local garbage hauler said her husband has found "just about anything and everything" in people's garbage cans.

One thing that stuck in her husband's mind was how much people waste after the holidays, she said, "like how much meat is left on a turkey carcass when it's thrown away."

Sometimes he finds radios and small appliances, she said. "It may be just the matter of a new cord of a new plug, but people don't take the time to fix 'em.

"We usually don't bother either," she said, "because my husband doesn't like to drag that stuff home all the time."

One time her husband did salvage an antique mirror that one of his customers had dumped. He has since refinished the wooden frame and they have it in their home.

She also noted the amounts of stale bread, fruits, vegetables and meats thrown out by local grocery stores.

"They've thrown stuff away that makes us sick," she said, "like boxes and boxes of bread. Everybody keeps talking about food shortages. This seems such a waste."

Not Enough Space

Phillip Knaub, whose family has operated a refuse service in Lincoln for the past 58 years, said he's worried there won't be enough space for things people throw away.

"We're finding out you can't bury it in low-lying areas because water filters through the garbage and runs into streams and rivers.

"What are you going to do with it?"

Several city agencies are looking into the possibility of trading trash for cash by processing solid waste for fuel. The process is costly to initiate, but the issue is still very much alive.

Knaub said that within the past 10 years the amount of garbage from a single family residence has tripled. And for a business, it's 10 times more than a decade ago.

The average person throws about 17 pounds of trash away each day, he said. "Although a lot of it could be recycled, it's faster, easier and sometimes cheaper to just dump it."

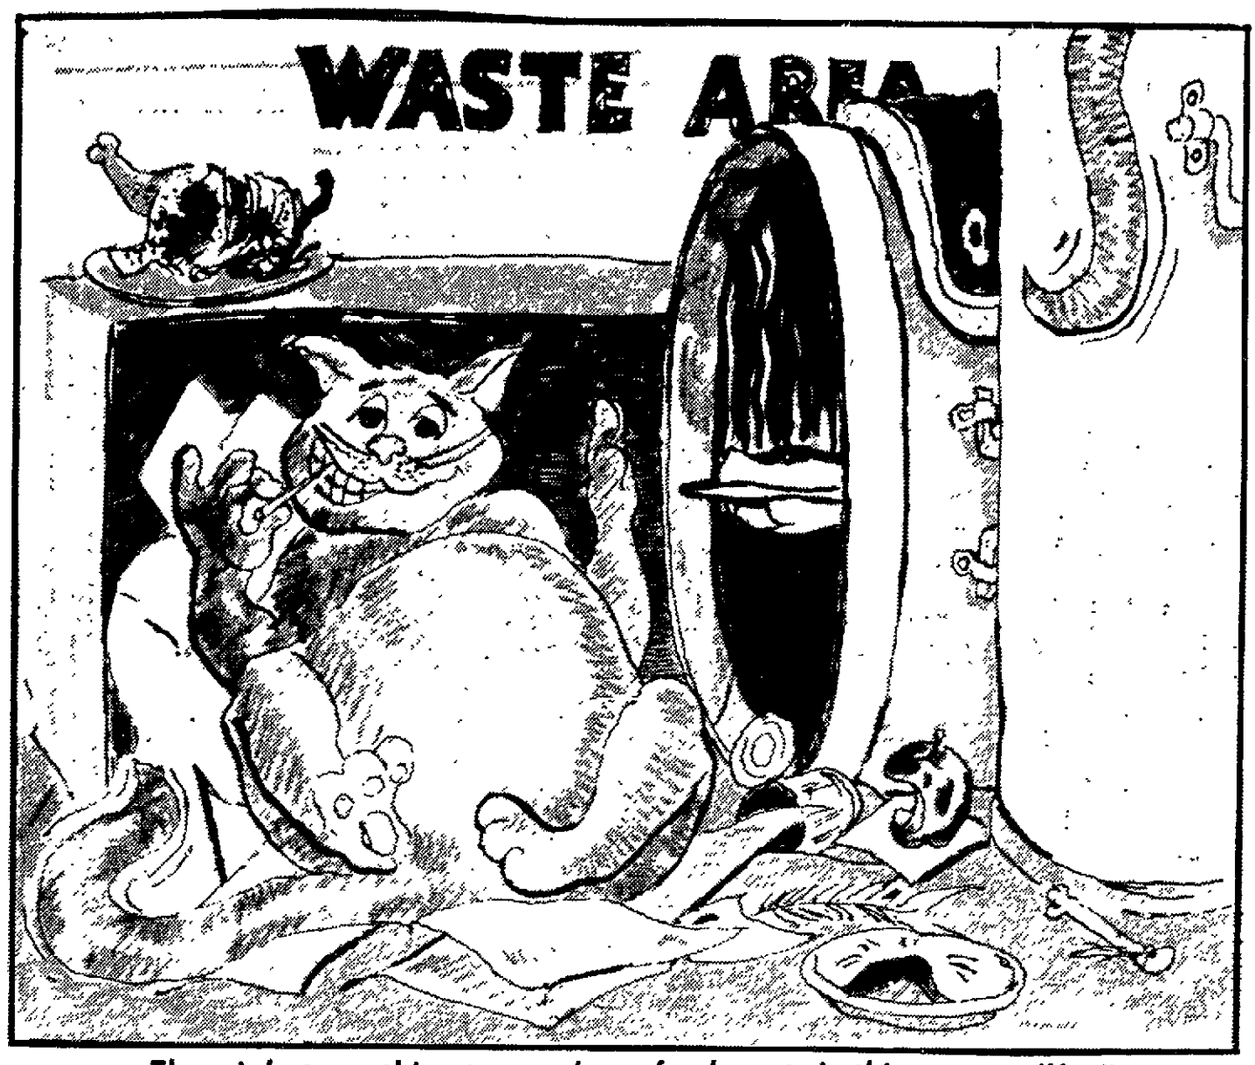

Dr. Dale R. Henning, associate professor of anthropology at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln, said he's often thought of having his archeology students conduct research on garbage.

"When I teach an archeology course, I always have my students consider what might happen if 2,000 years from now someone tried to analyze our culture from what they find.

"When we dig at a prehistoric site, what we basically look at is their garbage," he noted.

He pointed out that 2,000 years hence a scientist might unearth some non-perishable chunks of our era, such as ceramic bathroom fixtures.

Since sinks, stools and bathtubs would be found at every home site and abound at city dumps, it would be logical to assume they were something important — like family shrines.

There is but one thing to say about food waste in this country: 'Urp!'

Create Less Garbage

Why all this waste in the midst of higher and higher food prices?

Harriet Kohn, nutrition specialist for the University of Nebraska's Cooperative Extension Service, said perhaps it's because people don't realize how quickly small amounts add up to dollars.

Secondly, she said, housewives are buying food in larger quantities to combat higher prices. However, much of it may spoil before it's used.

"The principle is to buy the largest amount you need but can still use while the food is top rate," she said. "If you buy more than you really need, it's no savings if part of it goes to waste."

Don't overbuy on fresh produce, she advised, even though it's on sale. Avoid spoilage through careful planning; cook just what's needed because little dabs of leftovers will probably spoil before they're eaten.

In terms of more obvious food wastes, Mrs. Kohn urged using the entire vegetable rather than peeling it and throwing the skins away.

One method is to scrub vegetables well before cooking and eat skins and all. If that isn't appealing, try scrubbing first, peeling and throwing the skins in the stew pot.

"Vegetables have higher concentrations of vitamins and minerals just under the skins," she pointed out. "Another plus is that eating skins increases bulk in your diet."

Mrs. Kohn stressed that people should learn to be creative with leftovers:

— Instead of pouring vegetable cooking water down the drain, mix it half and half with tomato juice for a V-8 cocktail. As much as 50% of the water-soluble nutrients can soak out while a vegetable is cooking, she said. Another idea is to add beef or chicken bouillon cubes to vegetable water for soup.

— Throw those rubbery carrots in the soup — or these days the crockpot. "The nutrients are good as ever."

— Turn out some kind of exotic foreign dish with leftover beef, chicken or vegetables. A little imagination and you can have your own version of chicken chow mein, curried vegetables or a bean-meat casserole.

— Canned fruit juices, drained off when fruit is added to salads, can be added to a tea base for fruit punches. "It's a good substitute for soda pop and saves on sugar," she said.

— Use turkey, beef or ham bones to make a soup stock. Add a few cut-up vegetables for "a fragrant, delicious, hardy soup."

Another "awful waste" comes in plastic wraps, foils, waxed paper and plastic bags, she noted. Use washable, recyclable containers instead. It's also less expensive.

The person who lives alone or the small family has special problems, she acknowledged.

She suggested they share that less expensive 10-pound bag of potatoes with a neighbor or friend instead of letting half of it go to waste.

Cook up a pot roast or meat loaf, but divide it into individual portions and freeze them until needed, she advised, noting that a lot of leftovers dry out in the refrigerator.

"I think we're going into a whole new era in the way we view food," she said. "Everyone is starting to look at it as an important resource that needs to be treated very, very carefully.

"It's not as plentiful or as inexpensive as it used to be. It's not an unlimited resource. Between the extra cost to a family and wasting resources, people are starting to use food more wisely."

There are some benefits, she pointed out, such as decreasing heart disease and cutting down on overweight and dental problems.

"If we had less of some things, it might be good, but let's not waste what we do have."

Ordinance Would Ban Newsrack Nudity

San Francisco (AP) — No nudes on newsracks.

That's the word from Supervisor John Barbagelata who proposed an ordinance that would ban nude pictures from newsracks in the city.

Barbagelata's law would make it illegal for newspapers or periodicals sold in racks on public sidewalks to display nudity that could be seen by passersby.

The offending periodicals would be confiscated.

Jolted Into 'Cold Turkey'

DEAR ABBY: I thought you might be interested in the following true story:

On November 29, I flew from Dallas, Texas to Little Rock, Arkansas. The flight was filled, and because I got on at the last minute I was given a seat in the NO SMOKING section.

I wanted a cigarette, so I took one out of the pack and put it in my mouth, but before lighting it, I turned to the very attractive lady who was my seat partner, and asked, "Do you mind if I smoke?

She smiled a pretty smile and replied, "Why don't you do us both a favor, sir, and refrain?"

I was jolted. I put the cigarette back in the package and haven't had one since. In other words, I quit — cold turkey! After being a two-pack-a-day man, that's quite an accomplishment. Nobody can believe it.

It took a few words from a stranger to get me to do something I've been putting off for years. Why am I telling you this, Abby? Because you were that woman. How can I thank you?

COLD TURKEY IN ARKANSAS

DEAR COLD: You just did. Write to me next year at this time, and if you're still "clean," I'll send you a present!

DEAR ABBY: I read in your column that the Number One complaint of wives is, "My husband doesn't appreciate me."

Well, my husband must be an exception because he never leaves the table without saying, "Thanks for the dinner, honey."

Gerald phones me from work every day just to ask how things are going with our five sons and me. He reminds me often that he loves me, and he never fails to tell me I look nice when I do.

I could fill a book with his good points, and couldn't even fill a page with his bad points.

We just celebrated our 12th wedding anniversary, and this was the best. They keep getting better every year, Abby.

I know this won't make your column because you have so many more important letters to print, but I just had to let you know that there's a wife in Monroe, N.Y. whose husband really does appreciate her.

MAUREEN HARAN

DEAR MAUREEN: I think it's important to let people know that there are good marriages, too, so accept my belated anniversary congratulations. And take good care of Gerald. He soulds like a prince. And you must be a pretty special wife to deserve such royal treatment.

DEAR ABBY: So the Number One complaint of husbands is, "My wife nags me!" Well, put me down as one husband whose wife nags him — and he's glad of it. Thank God she nags me. It shows she loves me.

I kept putting off going to the doctor to get a checkup, and she finally nagged me into going. The doc said I had to lose 25 pounds, and I kept putting off going on a diet, but my wife nagged me until I went to Weight Watchers. God love her. I finally went — and I lost 32 pounds! And I'm maintaining that weight.

Now my wife is nagging me to see a lawyer and have a will made. I haven't done it yet, but I hope she doesn't quit nagging me before I get hit by a bus.

So, Abby, old girl, please tell your readers that if a wife doesn't nag her husband, she doesn't really love him. Sign me . . .

NAGGED IN TUCSON

DEAR ABBY: My husband has started walking to work every morning because he thinks it's healthier than driving. (It's a 20-minute walk.)

Recently, a pretty dark-haired young girl, who lives across the street, has started to wait for my husband to come out of our front door so she can walk with him. She is new in the city and she doesn't know her way around town very well. My husband assures me that it's the only reason she wants to walk with him.

I know I can trust my husband, but I still don't like the idea of this girl walking to work with him every morning. I think it's time she learned her way around.

Should I play hurt every day as I did the past two weeks, or should I keep quiet for a while and see how things develop?

FEELING HURT

DEAR FEELING: Quit playing "hurt." If you insist on making an issue of it, you may give your husband ideas he never had.

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Copper Cent Coming Back Into Circulation

(c) Chicago Sun-Times

Chicago — The copper penny has been saved from the inexorable workings of Gresham's Law and is circulating properly once more.

"We have had no problems here in Chicago in recent months," said a Federal Reserve Bank official. "Compared to the early part of last spring and summer, things have definitely eased."

What happened, he said, was that the price of copper came down and U.S. Mint production of pennies was up. "It's no longer profitable to hoard them," he said.

Under Gresham's Law, hoarding results when the intrinsic value of a coin is worth more than its monetary value.

Early last year, it appeared that was going to happen to the penny when copper prices were soaring.

The penny, which is 95% copper and 5% zinc, was in danger of becoming worth more than a penny and hoarding spread.

Worried officials in the Bureau of the Mint saw the moment coming when it would cost more than a penny to make a penny and went to Congress seeking permission for an aluminum cent. The Senate quickly agreed, but the House Banking and Currency Committee stalled the measure.

"They didn't like the idea of taking the copper out of the penny," said Miklos Lonkay, legal counsel to the Mint.

In October, a compromise measure was signed into law by President Ford. Lonkay said it permits the treasury secretary to reduce the copper content as a temporary measure or to abandon copper entirely after giving Congress 60 days' notice of the proposed change with descriptions of the physical properties of the new penny.

The authorization to tamper with the penny expires Dec. 31, 1977.

Lonkay said he couldn't foresee any changes in the penny since the price of copper has dropped considerably from last year's peaks. "It is getting better," he said. "They (pennies) are flowing back into circulation."

Declarer Misses Basic Safety Play

Opening lead - six of spades.

There are more safety plays in bridge than you can shake a stick at, and indeed one might say that they are of infinite variety. Recognizing them is often a serious challenge, and many a declarer falls flat on his face at the crucial moment.

Consider this deal where East doubled three notrump on the bidding shown, thus asking West to lead the first suit bid by dummy.

West duly led a spade, East winning dummy's jack with the king and continuing with the ace and another spade. Declarer's only reasonable chance, after winning the third spade with the queen, was to rely on a diamond finesse.

But when in the fullness of time he attempted it, East won with the king and cashed two more spades to put the contract down one.

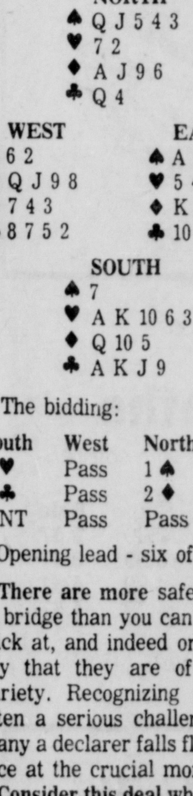

Declarer missed a good chance to sew up the contract when he played the jack of spades from dummy at trick one. He should have realized that, by following low from dummy on the opening lead, no lie of the cards could defeat three notrump.

At worst, the defense would score three spades and a diamond, and at the same time South could feel sure of scoring two hearts, four clubs and three diamonds — even if the diamond finesse, when attempted, lost.

Of course, it may seem odd to follow low from dummy on the spade lead, but the principle that governs the hand is certainly simple enough. If declarer plays low from dummy he assures the contract against every possible lie of the cards, while if he plays the jack he jeopardizes the contract and, in the actual case, goes down.

There is only one sensible choice between these two extremes, and the safety play eloquently speaks for itself.

Engineers Probe Wave Power

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Harnessing nature's power for the benefit of the consumer continues to be a real puzzler for scientists and engineers. Jane Ross reports for McGraw-Hill World News from Scotland on a new technique that's being tried.)

By JANE ROSS

Edinburgh, Scotland — Extracting the immense power of waves to make electricity may sound futuristic, but some engineers in Britain see "wave power" as an attractive and feasible power source. They point out that it is non-polluting, inexhaustible and free. Another plus is that waves in the Atlantic Ocean off Britain, which average seven to ten feet all year around, are highest in winter when the demand for electricity is also at its peak.

These reasons alone justify the interest of experts in waves. It has been calculated that there is an average of 80 kilowatts in every meter (a little more than three feet) of a wave's frontage in the Atlantic. But how can the vast potential be tapped?

Design is the key. Whatever the final shape of the wave trapping device it must absorb a large part of the available power. Too rigid a structure will simply reflect the wave back to sea. Make it too soft and the wave would just keep on going toward land, having given up none of its stored power.

"Nodding Duck"

A design that seems both rigid and soft at the same time, and in the right proportions, is the "nodding duck." Stephen Salter, working on the problem in Edinburgh University's department of mechanical ngineering, developed a duck whose head is above water, bobbing back and forth as waves hit it in a tank. But the duck's bottom and back appear stable. At peak performance, 90% of the wave's power is trapped and water on the landward side of the duck is calm.

Imagine a duck measuring 60 feet from top to bottom and weighing 40 to 60 tons. Then, if you can, imagine a whole string of ducks stretching for about ½ kilometer, (roughly a quarter of a mile) loosely anchored in water 200 or 300 feet deep, well away from shipping lanes. The ducks could be joined at the bottom where wave motion is almost entirely dissipated but would be able to move freely at the top in response to differing wave conditions.

"A few hundred kilometers of such structures could meet the total present energy needs of the United Kingdom," Salter says. "There's still much work to be done at the computer and in the wave tank — even making the right kind of waves isn't easy — but we hope to test a small model at sea in a couple of years and, if all goes well, a big one within 10 years."

Luck, Funds Needed

The timetable depends on good luck at every step of the way and adequate financing. At this early stage, it's difficult to estimate the ultimate cost of electricity generated by wave power. Significantly, though, small prototypes can be tested without the enormous outlays of money required to test tidal power, for example.

Physicist D. T. Swift-Hook, with Britain's Central Electricity Generating Board, suggests that the huge structures in which wave power might be trapped could also serve as "floating factories" separating uranium and gold and perhaps other precious metal particles from the sea water. Relatively cheap and virtually limitless supplies of uranium could have a profound effect on nuclear power developments and "fast breeder reactors would no longer be essential for nuclear fuel economy," he says.

He envisages a huge rectangular cement and steel boom that would displace about 1,000,000 tons — about the same as the largest supertankers being built — and that could be loosely tethered to the ocean floor. Power could either be used to drive on board generating equipment or to pump water into storage tanks for later, controled release into a generating system.

Or, as Salter suggests, the string of "nodding ducks" could be permitted to drift landward, perhaps separating hydrogen as it went, discharging its valuable cargo on shore and then going out to sea again under its own hydrogen power, to repeat the process.

Jolted Into 'Cold Turkey'

DEAR ABBY: I thought you might be interested in the following true story:

On November 29, I flew from Dallas, Texas to Little Rock, Arkansas. The flight was filled, and because I got on at the last minute I was given a seat in the NO SMOKING section.

I wanted a cigarette, so I took one out of the pack and put it in my mouth, but before lighting it, I turned to the very attractive lady who was my seat partner, and asked, "Do you mind if I smoke?

She smiled a pretty smile and replied, "Why don't you do us both a favor, sir, and refrain?"

I was jolted. I put the cigarette back in the package and haven't had one since. In other words, I quit — cold turkey! After being a two-pack-a-day man, that's quite an accomplishment. Nobody can believe it.

It took a few words from a stranger to get me to do something I've been putting off for years. Why am I telling you this, Abby? Because you were that woman. How can I thank you?

COLD TURKEY IN ARKANSAS

DEAR COLD: You just did. Write to me next year at this time, and if you're still "clean," I'll send you a present!

DEAR ABBY: I read in your column that the Number One complaint of wives is, "My husband doesn't appreciate me."

Well, my husband must be an exception because he never leaves the table without saying, "Thanks for the dinner, honey."

Gerald phones me from work every day just to ask how things are going with our five sons and me. He reminds me often that he loves me, and he never fails to tell me I look nice when I do.

I could fill a book with his good points, and couldn't even fill a page with his bad points.

We just celebrated our 12th wedding anniversary, and this was the best. They keep getting better every year, Abby.

I know this won't make your column because you have so many more important letters to print, but I just had to let you know that there's a wife in Monroe, N.Y. whose husband really does appreciate her.

MAUREEN HARAN

DEAR MAUREEN: I think it's important to let people know that there are good marriages, too, so accept my belated anniversary congratulations. And take good care of Gerald. He soulds like a prince. And you must be a pretty special wife to deserve such royal treatment.

DEAR ABBY: So the Number One complaint of husbands is, "My wife nags me!" Well, put me down as one husband whose wife nags him — and he's glad of it. Thank God she nags me. It shows she loves me.

I kept putting off going to the doctor to get a checkup, and she finally nagged me into going. The doc said I had to lose 25 pounds, and I kept putting off going on a diet, but my wife nagged me until I went to Weight Watchers. God love her. I finally went — and I lost 32 pounds! And I'm maintaining that weight.

Now my wife is nagging me to see a lawyer and have a will made. I haven't done it yet, but I hope she doesn't quit nagging me before I get hit by a bus.

So, Abby, old girl, please tell your readers that if a wife doesn't nag her husband, she doesn't really love him. Sign me . . .

NAGGED IN TUCSON

DEAR ABBY: My husband has started walking to work every morning because he thinks it's healthier than driving. (It's a 20-minute walk.)

Recently, a pretty dark-haired young girl, who lives across the street, has started to wait for my husband to come out of our front door so she can walk with him. She is new in the city and she doesn't know her way around town very well. My husband assures me that it's the only reason she wants to walk with him.

I know I can trust my husband, but I still don't like the idea of this girl walking to work with him every morning. I think it's time she learned her way around.

Should I play hurt every day as I did the past two weeks, or should I keep quiet for a while and see how things develop?

FEELING HURT

DEAR FEELING: Quit playing "hurt." If you insist on making an issue of it, you may give your husband ideas he never had.

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Copper Cent Coming Back Into Circulation

(c) Chicago Sun-Times

Chicago — The copper penny has been saved from the inexorable workings of Gresham's Law and is circulating properly once more.

"We have had no problems here in Chicago in recent months," said a Federal Reserve Bank official. "Compared to the early part of last spring and summer, things have definitely eased."

What happened, he said, was that the price of copper came down and U.S. Mint production of pennies was up. "It's no longer profitable to hoard them," he said.

Under Gresham's Law, hoarding results when the intrinsic value of a coin is worth more than its monetary value.

Early last year, it appeared that was going to happen to the penny when copper prices were soaring.

The penny, which is 95% copper and 5% zinc, was in danger of becoming worth more than a penny and hoarding spread.

Worried officials in the Bureau of the Mint saw the moment coming when it would cost more than a penny to make a penny and went to Congress seeking permission for an aluminum cent. The Senate quickly agreed, but the House Banking and Currency Committee stalled the measure.

"They didn't like the idea of taking the copper out of the penny," said Miklos Lonkay, legal counsel to the Mint.

In October, a compromise measure was signed into law by President Ford. Lonkay said it permits the treasury secretary to reduce the copper content as a temporary measure or to abandon copper entirely after giving Congress 60 days' notice of the proposed change with descriptions of the physical properties of the new penny.

The authorization to tamper with the penny expires Dec. 31, 1977.

Lonkay said he couldn't foresee any changes in the penny since the price of copper has dropped considerably from last year's peaks. "It is getting better," he said. "They (pennies) are flowing back into circulation."

Declarer Misses Basic Safety Play

The bidding:

2 ♣	Pass	2 ♦	Pass

Opening lead - six of spades.

There are more safety plays in bridge than you can shake a stick at, and indeed one might say that they are of infinite variety. Recognizing them is often a serious challenge, and many a declarer falls flat on his face at the crucial moment.

Consider this deal where East doubled three notrump on the bidding shown, thus asking West to lead the first suit bid by dummy.

West duly led a spade, East winning dummy's jack with the king and continuing with the ace and another spade. Declarer's only reasonable chance, after winning the third spade with the queen, was to rely on a diamond finesse.

But when in the fullness of time he attempted it, East won with the king and cashed two more spades to put the contract down one.

Declarer missed a good chance to sew up the contract when he played the jack of spades from dummy at trick one. He should have realized that, by following low from dummy on the opening lead, no lie of the cards could defeat three notrump.

At worst, the defense would score three spades and a diamond, and at the same time South could feel sure of scoring two hearts, four clubs and three diamonds — even if the diamond finesse, when attempted, lost.

Of course, it may seem odd to follow low from dummy on the spade lead, but the principle that governs the hand is certainly simple enough. If declarer plays low from dummy he assures the contract against every possible lie of the cards, while if he plays the jack he jeopardizes the contract and, in the actual case, goes down.

There is only one sensible choice between these two extremes, and the safety play eloquently speaks for itself.

POSTCARD by Stan Delaplane

San Francisco — Wet and blowy days around Snug Harbor. When I go out to get the paper, the cold, cold wind blows off the bay. It is a comfort to get in beside the fire. Hot coffee. Even if the front page reads nothing but disaster.

It is close to Chinese New Year. The Year of the Rabbit. Being a rabbit child might seem downbeat to you. You would rather be born in the Year of the Tiger. (I have a Tiger Year daughter. Very tigerish little chick.)

But of the 12 animals of the Chinese zodiac, the rabbit is well looked upon.

The rabbit is faithful to his family. He is a hard worker — always out there, lipperty, lopperty around the carrot patch.

Besides, eating all those carrots with Vitamin A, he has good night vision.

☆ ☆ ☆

The rabbit does not threaten to make war on people who won't sell him oil at reduced prices. A rabbit does not use oil.

He does not make speeches in favor of political rabbits.

Doesn't break into other rabbits' campaign headquarters.

The rabbit is the perfect animal of today's culture. He does not go to three-martini lunches which annoy the rabbit liver.

He makes love, not war. (And man, does he make love! The rabbit is not an endangered species.)

☆ ☆ ☆

Chinatown is lively at the New Year. The other night we went down to Westbury Hotel to celebrate the opening days of the Year of the Rabbit.

Lot of lovely Chinese chicks wearing chest banners that said they were running for "Miss Chinatown." They came from all over: Honolulu. Stockton. Los Angeles. New York.

Chinese girls are getting taller. That's something I noticed as a long and observant reporter of Chinese New Years. These were all five feet, seven or eight inches.

They are getting more bosomy. Miss Chinatowns of 20 years ago were flat as ironing boards.

I think they were bra-saddled. It was not considered good taste for a Chinatown girl to be too outstanding.

Though I spent a year as a Chinatown reporter, I never solved this interesting question. I knew a lot of high caliber officials in Chinatown. But when I brought up the question, they simply looked the other way and said:

"Let's go over to Shanghai Low and have a bowl of noodles."

No matter the time of day, if the question was delicate and they didn't want to offend you by not answering:

"Let's go have a bowl of noodles."

Man, I was full of questions. But not nearly as full of questions as I was full of noodles.

☆ ☆ ☆

I talked to some of the Miss Chinatowns the other night. Bright and saucy fortune cookies.

"I don't know why I entered. I asked my mother and she said it was OK if I wanted to."

When I was swinging on noodles, we couldn't even talk to Miss Chinatown contestants. Girls from Chinatown were never allowed to go out with anyone except Chinese boys.

We were the racial outcasts: "I have nothing against newspaper reporters," said the Chinese mothers. "In fact, some of them are my best friends."

And the Chinatown elders said: "He seems well brought up. But would you want him to marry your sister?"

My best friend was Albert Chow. He had plenty of juice — he was president then of the Powerful Six Companies.

I said to him: "Albert, that Miss Chinatown contestant Lily Toy. Don't you think I should take her out some evening? Just for an interview?"

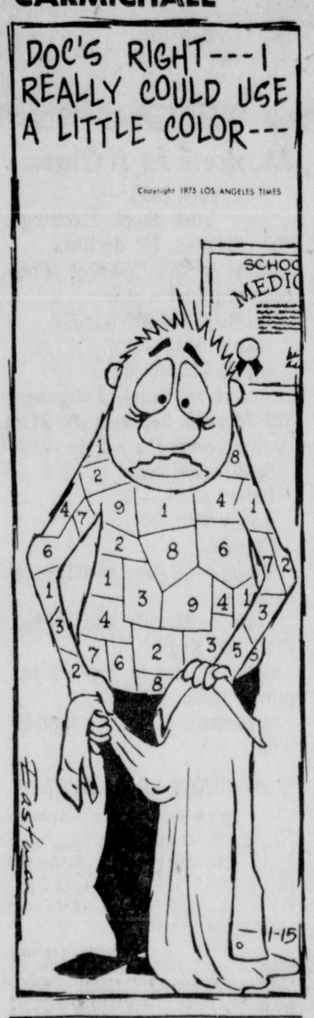

But he only said gently: "Let's go over and get a bowl of noodles."

HEALTH TIP

FROM THE NEBRASKA MEDICAL ASSOCIATION

In children, those symptoms can be the beginning of almost any communicable diseases, according to the Nebraska Medical Association. Sometimes these same symptoms indicate an allergy.

However, at any age, these may be the first signs of influenza. If the symptoms persist, it may mean involvement of the breathing tubes, lungs, sinuses and sometimes, the ears with infections which may prove serious.

The Nebraska Medical Association says that cold symptoms should not be ignored, especially if a fever persists. Practicing good health habits like getting plenty of rest and drinking plenty of liquids, can help alleviate a common cold.

Many colds must simply run their course, reports the association. However, the cold victim should take as much care as possible so a common cold does not become a more serious illness through neglect of good health practices. If symptoms persist for more than three days accompanied by a fever, call your physician.

Oil Meeting Urged

Paris (UPI) — President Valery Giscard d'Estaing called for a conference of oil producers, industrialized oil consumers and developing countries "as soon as possible" in an effort to solve the world energy crisis.

Success At Last

Tucuman, Argentina (AP) — Ramon Adrian Araujo, president of the provincial supreme court, complained to the telephone company for weeks that his home phone was dead — in vain. So the court ordered the arrest of company president Pedro Giori, and the justices questioned him for a few hours — until they had been advised that Araujo's telephone was back in working order.

Dehydrated Food Firms Enjoy Business Boom

By JANE BRYANT QUINN

New York — The leaders of the Mormon Church counsel the faithful to store at least a year's supply of food, fuel and clothing in case of a personal crisis like unemployment, or a grave national emergency. This teaching is linked to the Mormons' traditional views on the need for self-sufficiency.

To provide the dehydratred food that church members need to store away, a number of small companies, often headed by Mormons, have sprung up over the years.

Recently, their business has tripled and quadrupled. Americans of all beliefs must be reading their newspapers, which lead them to believe that a little protection now might not be a bad idea.

"Early this year I was selling at the rate of $100,000 a month," says George Murdock Jr., a Mormon and president of Rainy Day Foods in Provo, Utah. "Now we're running at $1 million a month. We've been advertising in the Wall Street Journal, and its readers send us checks without even asking any questions. They know what's going on."

Kent C. Esplin, president of Perma-Pak in Salt Lake City and also a Mormon, says that for the past two years his business has been grossing around $2.5 million, three or four times its previous rate. And United Commodities International in Colton, Calif., proprietors of the Sam Andy brand of dehydrated foods, grossed $9.8 million in the fiscal year ending last July, compared with $3 million the year earlier.

People stash food for all kinds of reasons, United Commodities' Glenn Shields told me. Some are hedging against spot shortages such as the run on sugar. Others want to lay away as many meals as possible at today's prices.

Families that fear unemployment may feel safer if they have a six-month supply of food in the basement. And there are some people so frightened by current events that they buy in anticipation of agricultural collapse, transportation breakdowns, food riots and a return to the barter system.

There's a fairly wide variety of food available in dehydrated and freeze-dried form. (Dehydrated items are much cheaper and less bulky to store, but such freeze-dried foods as beef patties and ice cream give meals some variety.) You can order item by item, to create your own menus. Or the companies will ship you a prepackaged unit, selected to last for whatever period of time you specify.

You can survive on a diet of wheat, rice, honey and milk, but it isn't very interesting. A typical storage unit of dehydrated foods will contain grains (cereals, corn meal, rice, pasta), proteins (flavored soybean mixtures, pinto beans, powdered milk), fruits and vegetables, sugar and honey, and supplements such as powdered cheese, eggs and peanut butter, salt, shortening, gelatin and breakfast drinks. Vitamin supplements are recommended.

You might want extra wheat and a mill for grinding bread flour.

Foods that have been properly dehydrated and stored in a cool, dry place have a shelf life of at least five years, and up to 20 years for fruits, vegetables and grains. If an emergency hasn't occurred by then, you should break open your hoard and use it up.

Curtis Asks American Beef Probe

Washington (UPI) — U.S. Sens. Dick Clark, D-Iowa, and Carl Curtis, R-Neb., Tuesday asked for an immediate federal investigation of the financial crisis facing American Beef Processing, Inc., a major meat-packing firm operating in their two states.

In letters to the Senate Agriculture Committee, the Securities and exchange Commission and the secretary of agriculture, Clark and Curtis said a thorough review of the case "is essential." The two said they not only want to determine what happened to the firm but also to learn how to prevent similar situations in the future.

American Beef filed for bankruptcy Jan. 7 and owes its creditors an estimated minimum of $82 million. More than 4,000 of the firm's employes already have been laid off.

The Packers and Stockyards Administration is already reviewing certain aspects of the case, and the two lawmakers said other appropriate federal agencies should investigate the company's financial collapse.

"There have been reports that criminal behavior may have been involved, that large amounts of the firm's stock was sold and large amounts of livestock were purchased before the bankruptcy petition was filed," said Curtis and Clark. "While we cannot attest to the accuracy of these reports, the potential problems in this case are obvious and serious."

Market Loss Is Moderate; Trade Slows

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market had some trouble deciding how to react to emerging details of President Ford's economic and energy proposals Tuesday, winding up with a moderate loss in slackened trading.

Losers outnumbered gainers 791 to 609 among the 1,799 issues traded on the Big Board.

Investors were confronted with a broad array of proposals from the Ford Administration in the President's televised address Monday night and additional statements from the White House Tuesday.

One broker sifting through the plans for increased energy taxes and reduced levies on corporate and personal income remarked, "I'm still trying to figure out whether the whole thing is inflationary or deflationary."

With the President due to speak further on the subject in his State of the Union address Wednesday, it appeared a good many investors had decided to sit back and wait.

Even when Ford's proposals were fully spelled out, analysts noted, uncertainty would remain over how a strongly Democratic Congress will treat them.

Meanwhile, the market's own internal forces appeared to be pulling it back somewhat after the broad gains recorded since the start of the year.

Expectations of increased oil taxes tended to weigh down auto issues, which posted fractional losses, and such other travel and leisure industry issues as Marriott, which dropped a point to 9⅛; Howard Johnson, down ⅜ at 5¼, and Ramada Inns, off ¼ at 2¾.

Warner Communications, the Big Board volume leader, rose ⅜ to 9¾ in trading that included a 350,000-share block at 10. The company's executive board authorized it to buy back up to one million of its shares in the open market.

Phillip Morris, second on the active list, fell 4⅝ to 43⅝.

Steer, Heifer Prices Weak

OMAHA, Neb. (AP)—Slaughter steers were 25-75 lower and heifers weak to 50 lower at Omaha Tuesday as moderately expanded supplies collided with narrowing demand outlets.

Beef trade was adjusting to the delayed shipments from much of this slaughtering area and limited Tuesday morning sales were cited as steady, however, trading was on a very small volume of completed sales.

Butcher hogs were 1.00 lower, instances 1.50 off as the industry attempted to resume normal operations following the effects of the storm on transportation and cope with rather liberal marketings the two days since.

POSTCARD by Stan Delaplane

San Francisco — Wet and blowy days around Snug Harbor. When I go out to get the paper, the cold, cold wind blows off the bay. It is a comfort to get in beside the fire. Hot coffee. Even if the front page reads nothing but disaster.

It is close to Chinese New Year. The Year of the Rabbit. Being a rabbit child might seem downbeat to you. You would rather be born in the Year of the Tiger. (I have a Tiger Year daughter. Very tigerish little chick.)

But of the 12 animals of the Chinese zodiac, the rabbit is well looked upon.

The rabbit is faithful to his family. He is a hard worker — always out there, lipperty, lopperty around the carrot patch.

Besides, eating all those carrots with Vitamin A, he has good night vision.

☆ ☆ ☆

The rabbit does not threaten to make war on people who won't sell him oil at reduced prices. A rabbit does not use oil.

He does not make speeches in favor of political rabbits.

Doesn't break into other rabbits' campaign headquarters.

The rabbit is the perfect animal of today's culture. He does not go to three-martini lunches which annoy the rabbit liver.

He makes love, not war. (And man, does he make love! The rabbit is not an endangered species.)

☆ ☆ ☆

Chinatown is lively at the New Year. The other night we went down to Westbury Hotel to celebrate the opening days of the Year of the Rabbit.

Lot of lovely Chinese chicks wearing chest banners that said they were running for "Miss Chinatown." They came from all over: Honolulu. Stockton. Los Angeles. New York.

Chinese girls are getting taller. That's something I noticed as a long and observant reporter of Chinese New Years. These were all five feet, seven or eight inches.

They are getting more bosomy. Miss Chinatowns of 20 years ago were flat as ironing boards.

I think they were bra-saddled. It was not considered good taste for a Chinatown girl to be too outstanding.

Though I spent a year as a Chinatown reporter, I never solved this interesting question. I knew a lot of high caliber officials in Chinatown. But when I brought up the question, they simply looked the other way and said:

"Let's go over to Shanghai Low and have a bowl of noodles."

No matter the time of day, if the question was delicate and they didn't want to offend you by not answering:

"Let's go have a bowl of noodles."

Man, I was full of questions. But not nearly as full of questions as I was full of noodles.

☆ ☆ ☆

I talked to some of the Miss Chinatowns the other night. Bright and saucy fortune cookies.

"I don't know why I entered. I asked my mother and she said it was OK if I wanted to."

When I was swinging on noodles, we couldn't even talk to Miss Chinatown contestants. Girls from Chinatown were never allowed to go out with anyone except Chinese boys.

We were the racial outcasts: "I have nothing against newspaper reporters," said the Chinese mothers. "In fact, some of them are my best friends."

And the Chinatown elders said: "He seems well brought up. But would you want him to marry your sister?"

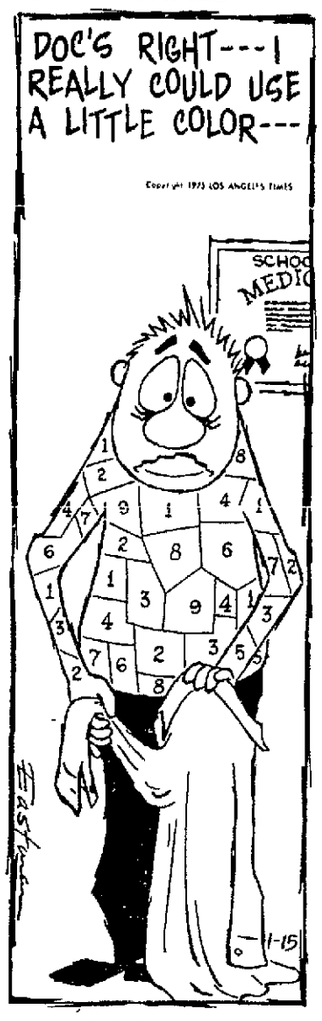

My best friend was Albert Chow. He had plenty of juice — he was president then of the Powerful Six Companies.

I said to him: "Albert, that Miss Chinatown contestant Lily Toy. Don't you think I should take her out some evening? Just for an interview?"

But he only said gently: "Let's go over and get a bowl of noodles."

HEALTH TIP

FROM THE NEBRASKA MEDICAL ASSOCIATION

In children, those symptoms can be the beginning of almost any communicable diseases, according to the Nebraska Medical Association. Sometimes these same symptoms indicate an allergy.

However, at any age, these may be the first signs of influenza. If the symptoms persist, it may mean involvement of the breathing tubes, lungs, sinuses and sometimes, the ears with infections which may prove serious.

The Nebraska Medical Association says that cold symptoms should not be ignored, especially if a fever persists. Practicing good health habits like getting plenty of rest and drinking plenty of liquids, can help alleviate a common cold.

Many colds must simply run their course, reports the association. However, the cold victim should take as much care as possible so a common cold does not become a more serious illness through neglect of good health practices. If symptoms persist for more than three days accompanied by a fever, call your physician.

Oil Meeting Urged

Paris (UPI) — President Valery Giscard d'Estaing called for a conference of oil producers, industrialized oil consumers and developing countries "as soon as possible" in an effort to solve the world energy crisis.

Success At Last

Tucuman, Argentina (AP) — Ramon Adrian Araujo, president of the provincial supreme court, complained to the telephone company for weeks that his home phone was dead — in vain. So the court ordered the arrest of company president Pedro Giori, and the justices questioned him for a few hours — until they had been advised that Araujo's telephone was back in working order.

Total Savings In '74 Set Record For Provident Savings And Loan

The highest total savings in the history of Provident Savings and Loan Association was recorded in 1974, president Phil H. Sidles reported at the annual meeting Tuesday.

Sidles reported total mortgages outstanding increased 9% to $9,221,446, while total earnings of the association increased 30% over the previous year. Total assets increased 7% to reach $10,244,242.

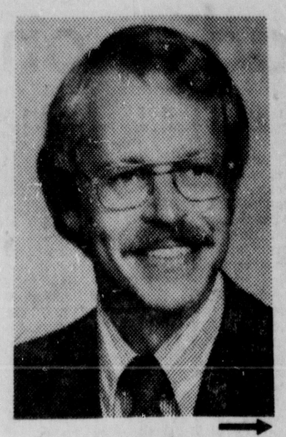

In terms of personal and consumer service, 1974 was a record year, Sidles said. The association paid out more funds in the form of dividends than ever before.

In veiw of the savings shortage and the reduced inflow of savings, the mortgage lending field was curtailed, Sidles said. The loan demand has maintained a very high level, he added.

In looking ahead to 1975 Sidles said he is optimistic, although the immediate outlook remains "clouded." He anticipates savings flows into the industry would start up slowly during the first quarter of the year and pick up to a greater extent during the second half of 1975.

Phil L. Sidles and Frank C. Sidles were re-elected to the board of directors, as were Paul C. Schorr III, W. H. Howey, Earl Carter, Jesse Williams and Carl W. Olson.

Following the annual meeting of shareholders, the board of directors elected the following officers: Phil Sidles, president; W. H. Howey, vice president; Frank C. Sidles, secretary-treasurer, and Elsa J. Kaiser, assistant secretary.

Dan Leahy

Leahy Head Of Citizens State Bank

Dan Leahy, former Tecumseh resident and 1959 graduate of the University of Nebraska, Tuesday was named president and chief executive officer of Citizens State Bank of Lincoln.

The announcement was made following the bank's annual stockholders' meeting.

Leahy was formerly president of the Kellogg Savings Bank at Kellogg, Iowa, and controller and assistant secretary-treasurer of Hawkeye Bancorporation of Iowa.

E.A. Langley of Des Moines, Iowa, was elected chairman of the board, and Charles E. Knight was named vice chairman.

Board To Meet

The State Board of Technical Community Colleges will meet at 1:15 p.m. Jan. 24 in the Beatrice Room of the Nebraska Center, 33rd and Holdrege, according to Robert C. Schleiger, executive director.

Good Year Seen For Building

Lincoln home builder and land developer Ervin E. Peterson, chairman of the board of Peterson Construction Co., said Tuesday the firm sees a good year ahead for home building.

During the annual board meeting of the firm, Peterson reported:

—The firm had the highest dollar volume of business in its 43-year history in 1974.

—The commercial department of the firm had the largest number of projects and the highest dollar volume in company history this past year.

—Residential building was the fourth largest in history in terms of number of housing units produced.

Peterson pointed out several indications that 1975 will also be a "solid" year for the housing industry.

Mortgage money for homes has been available to qualified buyers in 1974, and will continue to be available in 1975, he said. In some instances, it is available for as low as 7¾%, he noted.

Peterson said the firm will proceed immediately on plans for Skyline Highlands, a 113-lot single-family development on S. 14th Street, just south of Old Cheney Road.

Southwood is in the final stages of construction, he said, and Southwood Hills, an adjacent subdivision, is "rapidly being built out."

Cornhusker Bank's Assets Increase 15%

Cornhusker Bank stockholders, at their annual meeting in Lincoln Tuesday, were told that total assets of $7,774,855 in 1974 represented a 15% increase over assets of Dec. 31, 1973.

Mrs. Alice M. Dittman, vice president and board secretary, reported that "net additions to capital accounts totaled $54,819, a $27.41 per share retained earnings, in addition to a 6% dividend."

The new total of capital surplus and undivided profits, she said, is $563,729, which is up approximately 10% over 1973.

Mrs. Dittman said the bank showed an increase of more than $950,000 in total deposits over 1973.

At the meeting, Rosalie VanArsdale was elected assistant cashier.

Officers re-elected were G. A. Frampton, president and chairman; James A. Mastera, executive vice president; Robert E. Frampton, vice chairman; Cecil Frampton, vice president; Mrs. Dittman, vice president and secretary, and Mel A. Hain and Marilyn Horky, assistant cashiers.

Gladstone Grain Co. Sues Railroad

The Gladstone Grain Co. has filed a suit seeking $73,300.88 from the Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific Railroad in connection with its abandonment of about 40 miles of track between Ruskin and Fairbury.

The railroad stopped using the track in March, 1973, citing unsafe conditions. U.S. District Judge Warren K. Urbom said in November, 1974, that he would issue an order blocking the railroad from abandoning service on the line. The order has not yet been given.

Urbom's ruling came in response to a suit filed by the Nebraska Public Service Commission, which was later joined by the Interstate Commerce Commission (ICC).

The suit claims that abandonment of the track was illegal because the ICC had not given its approval to stop using the track.

The Gladstone Grain Co. claimed in its suit that it has had to ship 203,590.17 bushels of milo and 137,350.05 bushels of wheat by other means of transportation to the nearest railroad terminal because of the abandonment.

In addition, the suit claimed, the grain company has lost contracts with area farmers and profits from government storage of grain.

State Securities Re-Elects Card

The financial report showed loans up 25% to $16 million, deposits up 25% to about $17.8 million and total assets up about 17% to $20.9 million.

All officers were re-elected, Card said, including Alfred H. Adams, president; Jack F. Card, executive vice president; Richard E. Kosman, senior vice president; Herbert H. Heumann, Kenneth E. Zimmerman and Lowell A. Miller, vice presidents; Thomas C. Brandzel, secretary-treasurer, and Erna Gillaspie, cashier.

Alcoa Will Cut Production Level

Pittsburgh (AP) — The Aluminum Company of America (Alcoa) said it will reduce its production level to 91% of capacity by March 1, because of energy and demand shortages.

The nation's largest aluminum maker said the cutback to an annual production rate of 1,435,000 tons from 1,575,000 tons will cost about 1,000 jobs at various smelting plants around the country.

Commonwealth Company Reports Overall Increase

Savings, certificates and loans of The Commonwealth Company showed substantial increases in 1974 over last year, S.E. Copple, president, said at the company's annual meeting.

At the end of the year, saving sand certificates amounted to $22,332,198, compared with $19,074,068 in 1973. Loans totaled $20,705,859, compared, to last year's total of $16,869,072. Capital increased from $2,109,482 in 1973 to $2,399,541 in 1974.

The following officers were re-elected: S.E. Copple, president; M.E. Copple, S. Edward Copple, Dale Cushing and Dennis Barker, vice presidents; Tekla R. Copple, secretary-treasurer, and James Lonergan and Steven Knittle, loan officers.

Film Producers Drop Venture

Fellini said the Italian Cineriz Co. gave him no reason for dropping the venture. But film industry sources said Fellini's proposed film based on the life of Casanova, the 18th century Venetian lover, was scapped because of its high cost, estimated at $7.5 million.

Dehydrated Food Firms Enjoy Business Boom

By JANE BRYANT QUINN

Jane Bryant Quinn

New York — The leaders of the Mormon Church counsel the faithful to store at least a year's supply of food, fuel and clothing in case of a personal crisis like unemployment, or a grave national emergency. This teaching is linked to the Mormons' traditional views on the need for self-sufficiency.

To provide the dehydratred food that church members need to store away, a number of small companies, often headed by Mormons, have sprung up over the years.

Recently, their business has tripled and quadrupled. Americans of all beliefs must be reading their newspapers, which lead them to believe that a little protection now might not be a bad idea.

"Early this year I was selling at the rate of $100,000 a month," says George Murdock Jr., a Mormon and president of Rainy Day Foods in Provo, Utah. "Now we're running at $1 million a month. We've been advertising in the Wall Street Journal, and its readers send us checks without even asking any questions. They know what's going on."

Kent C. Esplin, president of Perma-Pak in Salt Lake City and also a Mormon, says that for the past two years his business has been grossing around $2.5 million, three or four times its previous rate. And United Commodities International in Colton, Calif., proprietors of the Sam Andy brand of dehydrated foods, grossed $9.8 million in the fiscal year ending last July, compared with $3 million the year earlier.

People stash food for all kinds of reasons, United Commodities' Glenn Shields told me. Some are hedging against spot shortages — such as the run on sugar. Others want to lay away as many meals as possible at today's prices.

Families that fear unemployment may feel safer if they have a six-month supply of food in the basement. And there are some people so frightened by current events that they buy in anticipation of agricultural collapse, transportation breakdowns, food riots and a return to the barter system.

There's a fairly wide variety of food available in dehydrated and freeze-dried form. (Dehydrated items are much cheaper and less bulky to store, but such freeze-dried foods as beef patties and ice cream give meals some variety.) You can order item by item, to create your own menus. Or the companies will ship you a prepackaged unit, selected to last for whatever period of time you specify.

You can survive on a diet of wheat, rice, honey and milk, but it isn't very interesting. A typical storage unit of dehydrated foods will contain grains (cereals, corn meal, rice, pasta), proteins (flavored soybean mixtures, pinto beans, powdered milk), fruits and vegetables, sugar and honey, and supplements such as powdered cheese, eggs and peanut butter, salt, shortening, gelatin and breakfast drinks. Vitamin supplements are recommended.

You might want extra wheat and a mill for grinding bread flour.

Foods that have been properly dehydrated and stored in a cool, dry place have a shelf life of at least five years, and up to 20 years for fruits, vegetables and grains. If an emergency hasn't occurred by then, you should break open your hoard and use it up.

Curtis Asks American Beef Probe

Washington (UPI) — U.S. Sens. Dick Clark, D-Iowa, and Carl Curtis, R-Neb., Tuesday asked for an immediate federal investigation of the financial crisis facing American Beef Processing, Inc., a major meat-packing firm operating in their two states.

In letters to the Senate Agriculture Committee, the Securities and exchange Commission and the secretary of agriculture, Clark and Curtis said a thorough review of the case "is essential." The two said they not only want to determine what happened to the firm but also to learn how to prevent similar situations in the future.

American Beef filed for bankruptcy Jan. 7 and owes its creditors an estimated minimum of $52 million. More than 4,000 of the firm's employes already have been laid off.

The Packers and Stockyards Administration is already reviewing certain aspects of the case, and the two lawmakers said other appropriate federal agencies should investigate the company's financial collapse.

"There have been reports that criminal behavior may have been involved, that large amounts of the firm's stock was sold and large amounts of livestock were purchased before the bankruptcy petition was filed," said Curtis and Clark. "While we cannot attest to the accuracy of these reports, the potential problems in this case are obvious and serious."

Market Loss Is Moderate; Trade Slows

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market had some trouble deciding how to react to emerging details of President Ford's economic and energy proposals Tuesday, winding up with a moderate loss in slackened trading.

Losers outnumbered gainers 791 to 609 among the 1,799 issues traded on the Big Board.

Investors were confronted with a broad array of proposals from the Ford Administration in the President's televised address Monday night and additional statements from the White House Tuesday.

One broker sifting through the plans for increased energy taxes and reduced levies on corporate and personal income remarked, "I'm still trying to figure out whether the whole thing is inflationary or deflationary."

With the President due to speak further on the subject in his State of the Union address Wednesday, it appeared a good many investors had decided to sit back and wait.

Even when Ford's proposals were fully spelled out, analysts noted, uncertainty would remain over how a strongly Democratic Congress will treat them.

Meanwhile, the market's own internal forces appeared to be pulling it back somewhat after the broad gains recorded since the start of the year.

Expectations of increased oil taxes tended to weigh down auto issues, which posted fractional losses, and such other travel and leisure industry issues as Marriott, which dropped a point to 9⅛; Howard Johnson, down ⅜ at 5¼, and Ramada Inns, off ¼ at 2¾.

Steer, Heifer Prices Weak

OMAHA, Neb. (AP)—Slaughter steers were 25-75 lower and heifers weak to 50 lower at Omaha Tuesday as moderately expanded supplies collided with narrowing demand outlets.

Beef trade was adjusting to the delayed shipments from much of this slaughtering area and limited Tuesday morning sales were cited as steady, however, trading was on a very small volume of completed sales.

Butcher hogs were 1.00 lower, instances 1.50 offers the industry attempted to resume normal operations following the effects of the storm on transportation and cope with rather liberal marketings the two days since.

Claussen Peps Benson Upset Of LNE

By RANDY YORK
Prep Sports Editor

Dan Claussen, a 6-6, 15-year-old sophomore center, punctured Lincoln Northeast's defense for 25 points Tuesday night to give unranked Omaha Benson a 54-53 upset win over the seventh-ranked Rockets at Ira Taylor Gym.

"I've said all year he's a comer. I'm so very, very proud of what he did tonight against such a fine team and in front of so many screaming fans," Benson coach Don Knauss said of Claussen.

An overflow crowd of 2,900 stayed at a high-pitched scream throughout the last six minutes as the traditional rivals jousted.

Northeast failed to capitalize on a number of winning opportunities in the last two minutes. Sophomore Gary Karthauser's two misses at the 9-second and 7-second marks dashed the Rockets' hopes to record their third win.

"I'm not disappointed in the way we played — just disappointed that we lost," veteran Northeast coach Ed Johnson said after his team's first game since before the Christmas holidays.

The fast-paced contest, which totaled 42 fouls and 34 turnovers, featured shifting momentum. Benson spurted to a 27-21 lead midway through the second quarter before the Rockets caught fire to forge a 34-33 halftime lead.

Northeast then used Russ Fiala's five third quarter buckets to assume 46-42 control at the third quarter stop before faltering down the stretch.

Claussen, despite sitting out three minutes of the fourth quarter when he collected his fourth foul, inflicted Benson's offensive damage from the outset.

He deposited 4 of 5 shots in the first quarter, hit 3 of 3 in the second period, 2 of 4 in the third frame and 2 of 3 in the final stanza to finish 11 of 15.

"He got 22 points and 20 rebounds against Council Bluffs TJ," Knauss said of Claussen, "but tonight was by far his best effort because it came against better competition."

Northeast's Johnson didn't want to take anything away from Benson's sophomore standout "because he played very well. But we also did a poor job of defensing him."

Jeff Weideman, who started fast for the Rockets with five first quarter baskets, tapered off in the last three quarters.

He missed the front end of two crucial one-and-one free throw opportunities in the fourth quarter, the last with 53 seconds remaining and the score 54-53.

Weideman, however, canned a pair of charities with 1:54 remaining to pull the Rockets within one point, then both teams frittered away opportunities down the stretch.

Weideman finished with 18 points to lead the Rockets while Fiala, who didn't shoot in the fourth quarter after his hot third period effort, chipped in 16.

Frazier Paces East Over West, 108-102

PHOENIX (UPI) — The law of averages was about the only thing able to catch up with Walt Frazier Tuesday night.

Frazier scored 30 points, the fourth-highest total in All-Star history to lead the underdog East to a 108-102 victory over the West in the 25th renewal of the National Basketball Association's mid-season classic.

"I guess the law of averages finally caught up with me after six All-Star games," said Frazier, an eight-year veteran, while being presented the game's Most Valuable Player trophy by NBA commissioner Walter Kennedy.

The only players to surpass Frazier's 30 points in the 25-year history of the All-Star game are Wilt Chamberlain with 42 in 1962, Rick Barry with 38 in 1967 and Elgin Baylor with 32 in 1962.

"The MVP award is one of the nicest things ever to happen to me," said Frazier, who pointed out that he has played on two NBA championship teams with the New York Knicks and "won about everything else."

Frazier, the Knicks' leading scorer this season with a 21.4 average, led West guards Gail Goodrich of Los Angeles, Charlie Scott of Phoenix and Jim Price of Milwaukee on a merry chase as West coach Al Attles of Golden State sought in vain to find a player able to contain Frazier, who hit on 10 of his 17 field goal attempts.

"It was too much Clyde (Frazier's nickname)," said Attles. "He got hot and we kept sending people after him. I thought Price did the best job."

John Havlicek of Boston, a 13-year veteran making his ninth All-Star appearance, was the second high scorer for the East with 16 points. Buffalo's Bob McAdoo, the NBA's second leading scorer with a 33.1 average and the top vote-getter among the fans who selected the starting lineups for the game, was the only other East player in double figures with 11 points.

The combination of Frazier and Havlicek helped offset the scoring efforts of Kansas City-Omaha's Nate Archibald and Golden State's Rick Barry, who combined for 49 points for the West. Archibald, at 6-foot-1 the smallest player in the game, tallied 27 points while Barry, the NBA's top scorer with a 33.2 average, finished with 22.

AP Honor To Evert

NEW YORK (AP) — Chris Evert, whose Midas touch with a tennis racquet turned 15 tournaments into triumphs and earned her more than $250,000 in official money, is The Associated Press Female Athlete of the Year for 1974.

Miss Evert reached the pinnacle of tennis after a mere four years on the international circuit. She replaced Billie Jean King not only as the premier player in the United States, but in the world. It was the first challenge to Ms. King's reign in America since 1965.

Miss Evert won two of the Big Four tennis championships in 1974—the French Open and Wimbledon—after bowing to Evonne Goolagong in the Australian. She also took the Italian, John Player, U. S. Clay Courts, Canadian Open, a tournament in Japan and eight on the U. S. Lawn Tennis Association women's circuit.

Miss Evert was the overwhelming choice as the Athlete of the Year, announced Tuesday. She received 296 votes in nationwide balloting, compared with 97 for Ms. King. Olympic gymnast Olga Korbut was third with 29, teen-age track star Mary Decker fourth with 27 and veteran golfer JoAnne Carner fifth with 25.

Guarding Taller Players No Bother To NU's Cox

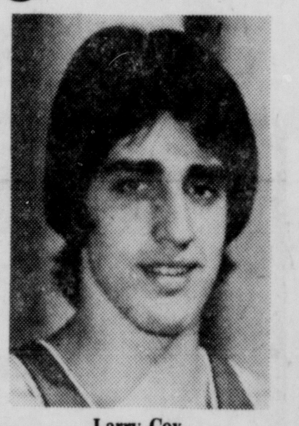

By MARK GORDON
Star Sports Writer

Larry Cox doesn't really have a complex about being so "short." After all, your average person isn't quite 6-6.

However . . .

"I've been playing against bigger centers for so long, that if the guy I'm covering isn't four inches taller than me, then I don't even think it's a game," grinned Nebraska's junior center-forward. "In high school (at Denver's Thomas Jefferson), I was a little taller than the average center in the Denver area, but the team that took the state tournament had a 6-11 center, so I guess I was getting used to playing taller centers in high school."

A starter in 13 of the 19 games he saw action in last year as a sophomore, Cox has played against all the league's big men last season and against three of the Big Eight's centers this season. So it's perfectly logical whom Cox selects as his toughest center.

Larry Cox Meets Taller Foes

"I'd have to say it's Alvan Adams (Oklahoma's 6-9 junior all-American)," relates Cox. "He's quicker than most of the big men and he really moves around for someone his height."

"But there are a lot of tough centers in the Big Eight," he added. "Each week, I've got to play someone who is physical. You just con't coast through any of the conference games."

Cox has played well in Nebraska's first 12 games. He's the team leader in field goal percentage (.542 on 39 of 72 attempts) and in free throw percentage (.776).

He is averaging 5.8 rebounds-per-game, and 9.8 points-per-game, including a high-effort of 17 points in a 69-67 victory over Southern Methodist in the Indiana Classic.

Despite earning all-city recognition during his high school career, even Cox admits he was not heavily recruited by major colleges. He received four offers — from Missouri, Nebraska and Colorado of the Big Eight and Wyoming of the WAC conferences besides numerous opportunities from smaller schools.

"I went to a summer camp in 1971 in Colorado, but I didn't feel the other Big Eight schools were really all that interested in me," he said. "I felt good when I came here to visit and I liked the school.

"About the only players I know on Colorado are Dave Logan (Colorado's multi-sport standout who is sidelined this basketball season with a football injury) and Bruno Konopka, who went to the same high school I did but he was two years ahead of me," he said.

Cox started his NU career by leading the 1972-73 junior varsity in scoring and rebounding. He averaged 19.4 points, including two 32-point games and grabbed an average of 16.5 rebounds-per-game.

As a sophomore, he averaged seven points and 4.4 rebounds. His field goal percentage of 57.9 on 44 of 76 attempts paced last season's Huskers.

Looking ahead to Nebraska's Big Eight conference opener Saturday against Kansas State, Cox praised the Wildcats' Carl Gerlach — the opposing center.

"He's a lot tougher than people give him credit for," Cox said. "He's quick for a 6-10 player and drives real well. In a lot of ways, he's like me. People don't think of him as a dominating center, yet he's really tough to cover."

Cox is confident the Huskers can recover from an 80-63 loss to K-State in the third-place game at the Big Eight Tournament in Kansas City to top KSU in Saturday's regionally-televised game.

"We haven't really talked about it (Saturday's game), but I know we can beat them if we play well," he noted.

Hickok Winner Accepts Bout

NEW YORK (AP) — Muhammad Ali accepted the Hickok Award as the Professional Athlete of 1974 Tuesday amid confirmation of a heavyweight title defense against journeyman Chuck Wepner March 24 and talk about a probable match against highly-ranked Ron Lyle in June.

Ali has not yet signed a contract to fight Wepner in the Cleveland Coliseum "but the fight is definitely on," said Herbert Muhammad, Ali's manager.

Last week when it seemed that an Ali-Wepner fight was set for Madison Square Garden in March, Muhammad suddenly announced that Ali would fight Wepner in Cleveland if promoter Don King could come up with a $1.5 million guarantee for Ali by Tuesday. King apparently met the deadline.

Muhammad already is looking past Wepner, a 32-year-old Bayonne, N.J., liquor salesman with a 30-9-2 record, a reputation as a bleeder and no ranking by the World Boxing Association or World Boxing Council.

"It's a great possiblity," Muhammad said of an Ali-Lyle fight in June at the Garden. "In fact we're gonna get to work on that right away."

Muhammad said, however, that Garden would have to handle the entire promotion, meaning he wanted no other promoter involved, such as having someone else handle the ancillary rights. "I will only talk with the Garden from now on," he said.

"Agreed," said Garden Boxing boss Teddy Brenner, when informed that Muhammad was intered in a June fight with Lyle.

Devine Completes Staff With Roland

South Bend, Ind. (AP) — Notre Dame football coach Dan Devine completed his staff Tuesday with the appointment as assistant coach of Johnny Roland, running back with the St. Louis Cardinals from 1966-72.

Roland, captain of Devine's 1965 Missouri team and drafted by the National Football League Cardinals, will begin immediately with the new Irish coach. He will work with the Notre Dame special teams and assist on offense and defense.

KU Finishes JV Program

LAWRENCE, Kan. (AP) — The University of Kansas has placed a premature finish on its junior varsity basketball schedule after the team compiled a 4-0 record.

"We are using most of our freshmen and sophomores with the varsity and don't feel we have an adequate number of players available to continue our junior varsity program," said Coach Ted Owens.

Northeast Girls' Defense Stymies Southeast, 35-21

By CHUCK SINCLAIR
Prep Sports Writer

Defense — a trademark of Northeast basketball over the years paid off for Hank Willemsen in his new role as girls' basketball coach Tuesday night, as the Rockets limited host Southeast to only 21 points in a 35-21 victory.

A crowd of 500 watched the first intra-city clash ever between the two schools and first among any Lincoln schools.

In limiting their foes to 21 points, the tight Rocket man-to-man defense allowed the Knights only 32 field goal attempts for the entire game.

Southeast was able to convert on only 25 per cent of those while Northeast cashed in on 15 of 44 fielders for 34 per cent.

"I tell the girls I like them to hit about 38 per cent of their shots," Willemsen said before the game pointing to a poor shooting effort in a 31-30 loss to unbeaten Millard a week ago.

"The strong part of our game tonight was defense," Willemsen added. "I was really happy with that man-to-man. We kept them from getting very many shots."

In the first quarter, Southeast managed only five attempts from the field, hitting one, a 15-footer by center Shari Stone.

Stone, who took all of Southeast's first quarter shots finished the game leading all scoring with 13 points.

After a two for six first half, the 5-9 sophomore connected on four of eight second half attempts and a lone free throw.

Sophomore Pam Samuelson led Northeast scoring with 11 before fouling out with 4:25 left in the game. Nancy Berry also reached double figures for Northeast with 10.

The Rockets led 17-9 at halftime and opened a 25-11 lead on a lay-in by Berry with 2:22 left in the third quarter to put the game away.

Berry scored eight of Northeast's last 12 points in the third and fourth quarters.

Southeast, also 1-1, will travel to Millard Thursday to play the 4-0 Indians, winners over Northeast by one last week.

Each varsity game will begin at 8 p.m. with the reserves scheduled for 6:15 p.m.

New Gym May Prevent Litchfield Cage Slump

By RANDY YORK
Prep Sports Editor

One wouldn't think a new gym would make too much difference to a high school basketball program.

But at Litchfield it has. Litchfield coaches Jim Jancki and Bob Smith credit the school's new 1,200-seat facility for the Class D Trojans' fast 9-0 start this season.

"It's made all the difference in the world," says Smith, Jancki's assistant for four prosperous seasons which has seen Litchfield win 59 of 73 games.

According to Smith, Jancki has been running his troops constantly in the bigger facility, which features comfortable backs for each seat and plenty of legroom for all fans.

Both Litchfield coaches are hoping the better physical conditioning will prevent any "running out of gas" during the ultra-important stretch drive in late February and early March.

The Trojans have plenty of talent in their bid for their first state tourney appearance since the 1930's.

Bruce Hird, a 6-9 all-state candidate, is one. He's established a reputation as a team-oriented player — always looking for the open man on offense.

Well, last week in the Loup Valley Tournament finals at Ansley, Hird WAS the open man. Just ask Arnold, the solid Class C team which battled Class D's third-rated Litchfield in the tourney finals.

Hird made his usual contributions — 22 rebounds, 10 blocked shots and 7 assists. But he also went to the basket more aggressively than ever.

Hird's overall wallop made him a one-man wrecking crew against Arnold. But Jancki's club is far from that.

Balance has been the name of the game all season. In fact, until the Arnold game, Litchfield had placed four players in double scoring figures in each of its first eight games.

Litchfield's offense has flourished so well that last year's two leading scorers — Hird and 5-9 senior guard Brad Howard — rank only 3-4 this season.

It's not that either has been ineffective. Hird is slightly ahead of last year's 14.6 scoring average and Howard is four below last year's 18.9 average.

Both are shooting as well, percentage-wise when they led Litchfield to an 18-2 record last season. They've merely given way somewhat to a pair of hot-handed juniors.

Joe Lucas, a 5-9 forward classified as a good leaper, is scoring at a 19-point clip for Litchfield this season. Fellow junior Dick Wardyn, a 6-3 forward, has averaged 17 points.

Hird's main concentration has been on rebounding. He went out for football for the first time last fall, increased his weight to 210 pounds and earned all-Loup Valley honors as a defensive tackle.

The experience made him a more aggressive rebounder. He's averaging 22 a game this season.

Teammate Howard, nearing 1,000 career points and 500 career assists since starting as a freshman, is Litchfield's playmaker and team leader. He's the one who makes things happen offensively and defensively.

Memphis Eyes Kiffin

Although Mississippi State head coach Bob Tyler is the top candidate for the vacated Memphis State football post, Nebraska defensive coordinator Monte Kiffin is high on the list, according to an Associated Press release out of Memphis.

In addition to Tyler and Kiffin, those most prominently mentioned are Richard Williamson, an assistant at Arkansas and Georgia offensive coordinator Bill Pace.

It is known that following the NCAA convention in Washington, D.C. last week, the Nebraska assistant returned to New Jersey, his recruiting territory for the Huskers, and as yet has not been interviewed for the Memphis State job.

Total Savings In '74 Set Record For Provident Savings And Loan

The highest total savings in the history of Provident Savings and Loan Association was recorded in 1974, president Phil H. Sidles reported at the annual meeting Tuesday.

Sidles reported total mortgages outstanding increased 9% to $9,221,446, while total earnings of the association increased 30% over the previous year. Total assets increased 7% to reach $10,244,242.

In terms of personal and consumer service, 1974 was a record year, Sidles said. The association paid out more funds in the form of dividends than ever before.

In view of the savings shortage and the reduced inflow of savings, the mortgage lending field was curtailed, Sidles said The loan demand has maintained a very high level, he added.

In looking ahead to 1975 Sidles said he is optimistic, although the immediate outlook remains "clouded." He anticipates savings flows into the industry would start up slowly during the first quarter of the year and pick up to a greater extent during the second half of 1975.

Phil L. Sidles and Frank C Sidles were re-elected to the board of directors, as were Paul C. Schorr III, W. H. Howey, Earl Carter, Jesse Williams and Carl W. Olson.

Following the annual meeting of shareholders, the board of directors elected the following officers: Phil Sidles, president; W. H. Howey, vice president; Frank C. Sidles, secretary-treasurer and Elsa J. Kaiser, assistant secretary.

Cornhusker Bank's Assets Increase 15%

Cornhusker Bank stockholders, at their annual meeting in Lincoln Tuesday, were told that total assets of $7,774,855 in 1974 represented a 15% increase over assets of Dec. 31, 1973.

Mrs Alice M. Dittman, vice president and board secretary, reported that "net additions to capital accounts totaled $54,819, a $27 41 per share retained earnings, in addition to a 6% dividend "

The new total of capital surplus and undivided profits, she said, is $563,729, which is up approximately 10% over 1973.

Mrs. Dittman said the bank showed an increase of more than $950,000 in total deposits over 1973

At the meeting, Rosalie VanArsdale was elected assistant cashier.

Good Year Seen For Building

Lincoln home builder and land developer Ervin E. Peterson, chairman of the board of Peterson Construction Co., said Tuesday the firm sees a good year ahead for home building.

During the annual board meeting of the firm, Peterson reported:

—The firm had the highest dollar volume of business in its 43-year history in 1974.

—The commercial department of the firm had the largest number of projects and the highest dollar volume in company history this past year.

Peterson pointed out several indications that 1975 will also be a "solid" year for the housing industry.

Mortgage money for homes has been available to qualified buyers in 1974, and will continue to be available in 1975, he said. In some instances, it is available for as low as 7¾%, he noted.

Peterson said the firm will proceed immediately on plans for Skyline Highlands, a 113-lot single-family development on S 14th Street, just south of Old Cheney Road.

Southwood is in the final stages of construction, he said, and Southwood Hills, an adjacent subdivision, is "rapidly being built out."

Gladstone Grain Co. Sues Railroad

The Gladstone Grain Co has filed a suit seeking $73,300.88 from the Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific Railroad in connection with its abandonment of about 40 miles of track between Ruskin and Fairbury.

The railroad stopped using the track in March, 1973, citing unsafe conditions U.S. District Judge Warren K Urbom said in November, 1974, that he would issue an order blocking the railroad from abandoning service on the line. The order has not yet been given.

Urbom's ruling came in response to a suit filed by the Nebraska Public Service Commission, which was later joined by the Interstate Commerce Commission (ICC)

The suit claims that abandonment of the track was illegal because the ICC had not given its approval to stop using the track

The Gladstone Grain Co claimed in its suit that it has had to ship 203,590 17 bushels of milo and 137,350 05 bushels of wheat by other means of transportation to the nearest railroad terminal because of the abandonment

In addition, the suit claimed, the grain company has lost contracts with area farmers and profits from government storage of grain.

All officers were re-elected, Card said, including Alfred H. Adams, president; Jack F. Card, executive vice president, Richard E. Kosman, senior vice president, Herbert H. Heumann, Kenneth E. Zimmerman and Lowell A Miller, vice presidents, Thomas C Brandzel, secretary-treasurer, and Erna Gillaspie, cashier

Alcoa Will Cut Production Level

Pittsburgh (AP) — The Aluminum Company of America (Alcoa) said it will reduce its production level to 91% of capacity by March 1, because of energy and demand shortages.

The nation's largest aluminum maker said the cutback to an annual production rate of 1,435,000 tons from 1,575,000 tons will cost about 1,000 jobs at various smelting plants around the country

By TOM VINT
Outdoor Writer

Out-staters visit the Cornhusker state for camping, fishing, historical visits and just stopping through on the interstate system. And now, an enterprising group in Fremont are capitalizing on another tourist attraction, Nebraska's hunting.

Each year thousands of visitors come to Nebraska with an eye on the state's top game bird, the pheasant. Woodcliff Big Game Ranch founder John Poehling and his crew have added another dimension in bringing exotic game hunting to the wooded bluffs of the Platte River south of Fremont.

Apparently Poehling's system is on its way to luring a future of steady traffic to the Fremont area. Last week a group of 11 Canadian visitors made a weeklong stay with pheasants and Woodcliff's exotic Russian wild boar, Spanish and Catalina goat the targets.

"We saw the advertisement for this place in NEBRASKAland Magazine," Allister Duncan said. Duncan was one of 11 Winnipeg, Manitoba, Canada, residents journeying to Nebraska for a week of hunting.

"We were just sitting around the house and just got this thing (NEBRASKAland)," he continued. "I was thumbing through it and found the ad and thought I'd write them."

"That was at 1:30 in the morning," Tunney Hovorka added with a laugh. "Allister called me up and asked what I thought. Allister said since we're going after pheasants we might as well bring back some big game."

Duncan made his point well as Hovorka and nine more hunters made the trip south. It was Duncan's second trip to Nebraska for pheasants but the group's first go for exotic game in the state.

"This is better than I thought it would be," Hovorka said after bagging his 300-plus-pound wild boar. Woodcliff offers the trophy hunting in a special 200-acre plot with heavy cover and steep terrain.

Nebraska's pheasants weren't as cooperative for the group, however. Duncan indicated the number of birds seen was down considerably from a year ago. But the stay was still a happy one for the group, and for Fremont's businesses, according to reports from Hovorka.

"I know with a wild boar and a sheep, I'm going to spend about $800 on this trip," Duncan added. "I've spent so much money hunting over the years (probably about $3,000 this year), and, shucks, I've never been sorry I've spent it."

Woodcliff, with it's big game, isn't the only Fremont business collecting some of those benefits as the Canadians stayed in a Fremont motel, ate meals in Fremont restaurants and contributed to the welfare of numerous other Fremont establishments.

Woodcliff is beginning its second year of operation in the Fremont area, according to its owners, and plans are to expand existing facilities as more money comes in.

"A day doesn't go by that we don't have several inquiries about hunting here," Larry Voecks, big game hunt coordinator explained. "We've found our national advertising in the outdoor magazines to be our biggest boost. We think the future looks pretty good right now."

Nebraska's tourism department has always felt hunting was good business. Now Woodcliff has come along to make it even better for the state's tourist income.

Prep Honor To Filley's Thompson

By RANDY YORK
Prep Sports Editor

It isn't an official nickname yet, but Filley's Lyle Thompson is getting known more and more as Mr. Clutch.

His teammates rely on him in the most critical situations and he's been delivering all season, especially in the Mudecas Conference Basketball Tournament.

Thompson's accomplishments have paved the way for nine Filley wins in 10 games and earn him the Sunday Journal and Star's prep Player of the Week award.

In the Mudecas, Thompson definitely was the difference. The 5-11 senior guard scored 87 points in three tourney games, including 36 in the semifinals against Murdock and 28 against previously unbeaten Adams in the title game.

His effort against Murdock demonstrates his value as a clutch performer. Thompson scored his team's last 22 points, including 14 in the final quarter and eight in an overtime session.

Thompson deposited both ends of a 1-and-1 free throw situation with five seconds remaining to edge Adams, 53-52, in the championship game. He finished 12 of 13 from the free throw line against the Hornets.

"We have to go to him in the clutch," Filley coach Eldon Johnson says of Thompson. "There's not a man we feel he can't beat one-on-one. He seems to get better under pressure."

Evan Schnegelberger, Geneva — In top-ranked Class C team's overtime win over Class B power Fairbury, 6-6 senior hit 14 of 23 field goals, mostly from 20-foot range, and scored 32 points while grabbing 12 rebounds. His 22-foot jump shot with 10 seconds left in overtime gave Geneva a 1-point win. This season, he's averaging 24 points a game and shooting 56 per cent from the field.

Kelly Ficken, Davenport — Against Ohiowa, 6-1 junior forward hit 21 of 38 field goals and 9 of 11 free throws for 51 points — highest output this season for a Nebraska prepster. He also retrieved 24 rebounds.

Marc Young, Cozad — Six-two senior picked off 26 rebounds, had five blocked shots and scored 13 points as Haymakers withstood 59-58 Southwest Conference challenge from Ogallala.

Brad Fults, Bever City — Scored 89 points in three games to lead Class D-rated team's drive to the Mid-Valley League championship. He bagged 33 points in title win over Class C Cambridge.

Randy Dickerson, Scottsbluff — Junior guard, who had scored only 17 points in team's previous nine games, produced 14 to pace Bearcats to 59-43 win over McCook.

Bruce Hird, Litchfield — Six-nine senior collected 69 rebounds in three games as Class D-rated team swept to Loup-Valley Tournament title. In championship win over Class C Arnold, he hit 11 of 19 field goals en route to 27 points, had 22 rebounds, 10 blocked shots and 7 assists.

Randy Florell, Holdrege — Senior who broke into the starting lineup in late December registered 21 points and grabbed 13 rebounds in Dusters' win over Broken Bow.

Bill Ourada, Elm Creek — Led team from third quarter deficit to decisive 13-point win over Loomis. He scored game high 22 points and grabbed 11 rebounds.

Claussen Peps Benson Upset Of LNE

By RANDY YORK
Prep Sports Editor

Dan Claussen, a 6-6, 15-year-old sophomore center, punctured Lincoln Northeast's defense for 25 points Tuesday night to give unranked Omaha Benson a 54-53 upset win over the seventh-ranked Rockets at Ira Taylor Gym.

"I've said all year he's a comer. I'm so very, very proud of what he did tonight against such a fine team and in front of so many screaming fans," Benson coach Don Knauss said of Claussen.

An overflow crowd of 2,900 stayed at a high-pitched scream throughout the last six minutes as the traditional rivals jousted.

Northeast failed to capitalize on a number of winning opportunities in the last two minutes. Sophomore Gary Karthauser's two misses at the 9-second and 7-second marks dashed the Rockets' hopes to record their third win.

"I'm not disappointed in the way we played — just disappointed that we lost," veteran Northeast coach Ed Johnson said after his team's first game since before the Christmas holidays.

The fast-paced contest, which totaled 42 fouls and 34 turnovers, featured shifting momentum. Benson spurted to a 27-21 lead midway through the second quarter before the Rockets caught fire to forge a 34-33 halftime lead.

Northeast then used Russ Fiala's five third quarter buckets to assume 46-42 control at the third quarter stop before faltering down the stretch.

Claussen, despite sitting out three minutes of the fourth quarter when he collected his fourth foul, inflicted Benson's offensive damage from the outset.

He deposited 4 of 5 shots in the first quarter, hit 3 of 3 in the second period, 2 of 4 in the third frame and 2 of 3 in the final stanza to finish 11 of 15.

"He got 22 points and 20 rebounds against Council Bluffs TJ," Knauss said of Claussen, "but tonight was by far his best effort because it came against better competition."

Northeast's Johnson didn't want to take anything away from Benson's sophomore standout "because he played very well. But we also did a poor job of defensing him."

Jeff Weideman, who started fast for the Rockets with five first quarter baskets, tapered off in the last three quarters.

He missed the front end of two crucial one-and-one free throw opportunities in the fourth quarter, the last with 53 seconds remaining and the score 54-53.

Weideman, however, canned a pair of charities with 1:54 remaining to pull the Rockets within one point, then both teams frittered away opportunities down the stretch.

Weideman finished with 18 points to lead the Rockets while Fiala, who didn't shoot in the fourth quarter after his hot third period effort, chipped in 16.

Frazier Paces East Over West, 108-102

PHOENIX (UPI) — The law of averages was about the only thing able to catch up with Walt Frazier Tuesday night.

Frazier scored 30 points, the fourth-highest total in All-Star history to lead the underdog East to a 108-102 victory over the West in the 25th renewal of the National Basketball Association's mid-season classic.

"I guess the law of averages finally caught up with me after six All-Star games," said Frazier, an eight-year veteran, while being presented the game's Most Valuable Player trophy by NBA commissioner Walter Kennedy.

The only players to surpass Frazier's 30 points in the 25-year history of the All-Star game are Wilt Chamberlain with 42 in 1962, Rick Barry with 38 in 1967 and Elgin Baylor with 32 in 1962.

"The MVP award is one of the nicest things ever to happen to me," said Frazier, who pointed out that he has played on two NBA championship teams with the New York Knicks and "won about everything else."

Frazier, the Knicks' leading scorer this season with a 21.4 average, led West guards Gail Goodrich of Los Angeles, Charlie Scott of Phoenix and Jim Price of Milwaukee on a merry chase as West coach Al Attles of Golden State sought in vain to find a player able to contain Frazier, who hit on 10 of his 17 field goal attempts.

"It was too much Clyde (Frazier's nickname)," said Attles. "He got hot and we kept sending people after him. I thought Price did the best job."

John Havlicek of Boston, a 13-year veteran making his ninth All-Star appearance, was the second high scorer for the East with 16 points. Buffalo's Bob McAdoo, the NBA's second leading scorer with a 33.1 average and the top vote-getter among the fans who selected the starting lineups for the game, was the only other East player in double figures with 11 points.

The combination of Frazier and Havlicek helped offset the scoring efforts of Kansas City-Omaha's Nate Archibald and Golden State's Rick Barry, who combined for 49 points for the West. Archibald, at 6-foot-1 the smallest player in the game, tallied 27 points while Barry, the NBA's top scorer with a 33.2 average, finished with 22.

AP Honor To Evert

NEW YORK (AP) — Chris Evert, whose Midas touch with a tennis racquet turned 15 tournaments into triumphs and earned her more than $250,000 in official money, is The Associated Press Female Athlete of the Year for 1974.

Miss Evert reached the pinnacle of tennis after a mere four years on the international circuit. She replaced Billie Jean King not only as the premier player in the United States, but in the world. It was the first challenge to Ms. King's reign in America since 1965.

Miss Evert won two of the Big Four tennis championships in 1974—the French Open and Wimbledon—after bowing to Evonne Goolagong in the Australian. She also took the Italian, John Player, U. S. Clay Courts, Canadian Open, a tournament in Japan and eight on the U. S. Lawn Tennis Association women's circuit.

Miss Evert was the overwhelming choice as the Athlete of the Year, announced Tuesday. She received 296 votes in nationwide balloting, compared with 97 for Ms. King. Olympic gymnast Olga Korbut was third with 29, teen-age track star Mary Decker fourth with 27 and veteran golfer JoAnne Carner fifth with 25.

Guarding Taller Players No Bother To NU's Cox

By MARK GORDON
Star Sports Writer

Larry Cox doesn't really have a complex about being so "short." After all, your average person isn't quite 6-6.

However . . .

"I've been playing against bigger centers for so long, that if the guy I'm covering isn't four inches taller than me, then I don't even think it's a game," grinned Nebraska's junior center-forward. "In high school (at Denver's Thomas Jefferson), I was a little taller than the average center in the Denver area, but the team that took the state tournament had a 6-11 center, so I guess I was getting used to playing taller centers in high school."

A starter in 13 of the 19 games he saw action in last year as a sophomore, Cox has played against all the league's big men last season and against three of the Big Eight's centers this season. So it's perfectly logical whom Cox selects as his toughest center.

Larry Cox
Meets Taller Foes

"I'd have to say it's Alvan Adams (Oklahoma's 6-9 junior all-American)," relates Cox. "He's quicker than most of the big men and he really moves around for someone his height."

"But there are a lot of tough centers in the Big Eight," he added. "Each week, I've got to play someone who is physical. You just can't coast through any of the conference games."

Cox has played well in Nebraska's first 12 games. He's the team leader in field goal percentage (.542 on 39 of 72 attempts) and in free throw percentage (.776).

He is averaging 5.8 rebounds-per-game, and 9.8 points-per-game, including a high-effort of 17 points in a 69-67 victory over Southern Methodist in the Indiana Classic.

Despite earning all-city recognition during his high school career, even Cox admits he was not heavily recruited by major colleges. He received four offers — from Missouri, Nebraska and Colorado of the Big Eight and Wyoming of the WAC conferences besides numerous opportunities from smaller schools.

"I went to a summer camp in 1971 in Colorado, but I didn't feel the other Big Eight schools were really all that interested in me," he said. "I felt good when I came here to visit and I liked the school.

"About the only players I know on Colorado are Dave Logan (Colorado's multi-sport standout who is sidelined this basketball season with a football injury) and Bruno Konopka, who went to the same high school I did but he was two years ahead of me," he said.

Cox started his NU career by leading the 1972-73 junior varsity in scoring and rebounding. He averaged 19.4 points, including two 32-point games and grabbed an average of 16.5 rebounds-per-game.

As a sophomore, he averaged seven points and 4.4 rebounds. His field goal percentage of 57.9 on 44 of 76 attempts paced last season's Huskers.

Looking ahead to Nebraska's Big Eight conference opener Saturday against Kansas State, Cox praised the Wildcats' Carl Gerlach — the opposing center.

"He's a lot tougher than people give him credit for," Cox said. "He's quick for a 6-10 player and drives real well. In a lot of ways, he's like me. People don't think of him as a dominating center, yet he's really tough to cover."

Cox is confident the Huskers can recover from an 80-63 loss to K-State in the third-place game at the Big Eight Tournament in Kansas City to top KSU in Saturday's regionally-televised game.

"We haven't really talked about it (Saturday's game), but I know we can beat them if we play well," he noted.

Hickok Winner Accepts Bout

NEW YORK (AP) — Muhammad Ali accepted the Hickok Award as the Professional Athlete of 1974 Tuesday amid confirmation of a heavyweight title defense against journeyman Chuck Wepner March 24 and talk about a probable match against highly-ranked Ron Lyle in June.

Ali has not yet signed a contract to fight Wepner in the Cleveland Coliseum "but the fight is definitely on," said Herbert Muhammad, Ali's manager.

Last week when it seemed that an Ali-Wepner fight was set for Madison Square Garden in March, Muhammad suddenly announced that Ali would fight Wepner in Cleveland if promoter Don King could come up with a $1.5 million guarantee for Ali by Tuesday. King apparently met the deadline.

Muhammad already is looking past Wepner, a 32-year-old Bayonne, N.J., liquor salesman with a 30-9-2 record, a reputation as a bleeder and no ranking by the World Boxing Association or World Boxing Council.

"It's a great possiblity," Muhammad said of an Ali-Lyle fight in June at the Garden. "In fact we're gonna get to work on that right away."

Muhammad said, however, that Garden would have to handle the entire promotion, meaning he wanted no other promoter involved, such as having someone else handle the ancillary rights. "I will only talk with the Garden from now on," he said.

"Agreed," said Garden Boxing boss Teddy Brenner, when informed that Muhammad was intered in a June fight with Lyle.

Devine Completes Staff With Roland

South Bend, Ind. (AP) — Notre Dame football coach Dan Devine completed his staff Tuesday with the appointment as assistant coach of Johnny Roland, running back with the St. Louis Cardinals from 1966-72.

Roland, captain of Devine's 1965 Missouri team and drafted by the National Football League Cardinals, will begin immediately with the new Irish coach. He will work with the Notre Dame special teams and assist on offense and defense.

KU Finishes JV Program

LAWRENCE, Kan. (AP) — The University of Kansas has placed a premature finish on its junior varsity basketball schedule after the team compiled a 4-0 record.

"We are using most of our freshmen and sophomores with the varsity and don't feel we have an adequate number of players available to continue our junior varsity program," said Coach Ted Owens.

Northeast Girls' Defense Stymies Southeast, 35-21

By CHUCK SINCLAIR
Prep Sports Writer

Defense — a trademark of Northeast basketball over the years paid off for Hank Willemsen in his new role as girls' basketball coach Tuesday night, as the Rockets limited host Southeast to only 21 points in a 35-21 victory.

A crowd of 500 watched the first intra-city clash ever between the two schools and first among any Lincoln schools.

In limiting their foes to 21 points, the tight Rocket man-to-man defense allowed the Knights only 32 field goal attempts for the entire game.

Southeast was able to convert on only 25 per cent of those while Northeast cashed in on 15 of 44 fielders for 34 per cent.

"I tell the girls I like them to hit about 38 per cent of their shots," Willemsen said before the game pointing to a poor shooting effort in a 31-30 loss to unbeaten Millard a week ago.

"The strong part of our game tonight was defense," Willemsen added. "I was really happy with that man-to-man. We kept them from getting very many shots."

In the first quarter, Southeast managed only five attempts from the field, hitting one, a 15-footer by center Shari Stone.

Stone, who took all of Southeast's first quarter shots finished the game leading all scoring with 13 points.

After a two for six first half, the 5-9 sophomore connected on four of eight second half attempts and a lone free throw.

Sophomore Pam Samuelson led Northeast scoring with 11 before fouling out with 4:25 left in the game. Nancy Berry also reached double figures for Northeast with 10.

The Rockets led 17-9 at halftime and opened a 25-11 lead on a lay-in by Berry with 2:22 left in the third quarter to put the game away.

Berry scored eight of Northeast's last 12 points in the third and fourth quarters.

Southeast, also 1-1, will travel to Millard Thursday to play the 4-0 Indians, winners over Northeast by one last week.

Each varsity game will begin at 8 p.m. with the reserves scheduled for 6:15 p.m.

Big Eight Goes 52-42

Big Eight Conference basketball teams, except for Kansas State's contest tonight against Arkansas, have completed the non-conference season with a respectable 52 victories and 42 defeats.

That's not quite as good as the 61-35 record of a year ago, but not bad considering the opposition the teams tackled. Conference schools have met 10 of the teams currently ranked in the top twenty in the nation.

Unfortunately, those games against the elite have resulted in 0-13 record, indicating where the league stands in relation to hopes of winning a national championship.

Defending Big Eight champion Kansas, a semifinalist in last year's NCAA tournament, was ranked sixth in the pre-season press association polls. The Jayhawks, however, have dropped out of sight with an 8-4 record, including three victories in the conferences's tournament in Kansas City.

Starting Saturday, it'll be all neighborhood brawls the rest of the season as the league championship race begins. The winner will earn the NCAA tourney bid, possibly for the last time since a proposal is being studied to hold the conference tournament at the end of the season rather than during the Christmas holidays.

Kansas remains the favorite to repeat, but the Jayhawks have to get things put together in a hurry if that is to happen. Lurking as challengers are Oklahoma, Nebraska and Kansas State with Iowa State also a possibility.

Considered out of it are Oklahoma State, Missouri and Colorado.

KSU Key Game For Huskers

Bouncing back from an 80-63 tournament loss to Kansas State will be a key for Coach Joe Cipriano's Huskers if they are to be a factor in the race. It will be equally important for them to repeat a tourney victory over Oklahoma when the two teams meet a week from Wednesday in Norman.

A 2-0 start for the Huskers concievably could be stretched into a 5-0 record going to Kansas on Feb. 5 for what then would be another crucial contest.

After facing KSU and OU, Nebraska has a pair of home games against Colorado and Oklahoma State and a road test at Missouri before facing the Jayhawks.

With such an evenly balanced conference, I'm sure Cipriano, like any other basketball coach, doesn't want to look any farther ahead than Saturday's 2:10 p.m. game in the NU Coliseum against the Wildcats.

With competition so even, there's potential for disaster any time the ball is tossed in the air to start a game if a team isn't mentally and physically prepared for the tough game.

Pacific-8 Record Best

The Pacific-8 Conference, with three teams ranked among the top eight in the Associated Press poll, has posted the best record against non-conference opponents of any league. The mark is 65-17 with UCLA (10-0) and Oregon (9-0) undefeated and Southern California with just one loss in 11 games.

Arizona, Arizona State and Texas-ElPaso have combined for a 31-3 record to make the Western Athletic Conference next overall at 68-19.

Here are the records of the other conferences: Atlantic Coast 45-16, Big Ten 54-28, Southeastern 48-28, Missouri Valley 48-25, Mid-American 41-26, Pacific Coast Athletic Association 48-32, and the West Coast Athletic Conference 40-33.

Only the Ivy League and Southwest Conference have lost more games than they've won. The Ivy is 23-43 and the SWC is 36-50.

Conference races already are underway in most leagues and here are my predictions of the probable champions. I'm listing the conferences in the order of how I rate the overall strength of the leagues:.

1. Pacific-8 — UCLA; 2. Atlantic Coast — North Carolina State; 3. Sotheastern — Kentucky; 4. Big Ten — Indiana; 5. Western Athletic — Arizona State; 6. Missouri Valley — Louisville; 7. Big Eight — Kansas; 8. Mid-American — Central Michigan.

And the rest: 9. West Coast A.C. — San Francisco; 10. San Jose State; 11. Ohio Valley — Middle Tennessee; 12. Southwest — Texas Tech; 13. Big Sky — Montana; 14. Southern — Furman; 15. Ivy League — Pennsylvania.

Picking the final four of the NCAA in San Diego: North Carolina State, Indiana, Louisville and UCLA. The champion: Guess!

NWU Matmen To Host Doane

Actually, it won't be the same Doane team that invades Taylor Gym at 7 p.m. according to Wesleyan coach Ron Backman.

"Doane has suffered some injuries, so they won't have as many wrestlers as they normally do," Backman said. "They've also had some problems making weights after Christmas vacation."

The Plainsmen are lead by Tim Knight, 5-0 at 158-pounds and Dan Thomas, 3-0 at 150-pounds. Heavyweight Sam Martin has posted a 5-1 mark while Larry Coufal is 3-1 at 177 pounds.

Sears Resigns Coaching Post

Sears had been head coach there for two years. His 1974 team had a 7-2-1 record and won the Galaxie Conference championship.

It was also announced that former Nebraska tight end and Green Bay Packer Brent Longwell has been employed as head track coach.

Hembree Leads Burwood Tourney

Beatrice — Hugh Hembree of Lincoln has taken the lead in all events after the first two of six weekends of bowling in the Burwood Tournament at Tonka Lanes here.

Hembree leads a Lincoln contingent of leaders with a 1895 total. Max Jensen ranks third with 1833 while Ken Kuhl is fourth with 1811. In addition Nebraska University student Gary Kropp of Wymore is second with 1843.

In doubles action, Lincolnites Wes Shepard and Don Flynn rank fourth with a 1253 total in the handicap event while two Lincoln teams, Action Plumbing and Rendezvous Lounge, are second and fourth with scores of 3067 and 3057.

KU Promotions To Fambrough

LAWRENCE, Kan. (AP) — Don Fambrough, who resigned last month as Kansas head football coach, has been named promotions director of KU's athletic department.

Clyde Walker, athletic director, said Fambrough will be responsible for ticket promotion and advertising.

Fambrough, 52, has been at Kansas 23 years, 19 of those as an assistant football coach before succeeding Pepper Rodgers as head coach in January 1971.

Bud Moore, an assistant under Paul "Bear" Bryant at Alabama, was named the new head coach after Fambrough's resignation.

Kearney Beats Fort Hays St.

KEARNEY, Neb. (AP)—Kearney State substitutes played 13 minutes of the second half as the Antelopes swamped Fort Hays State of Kansas 11194 in basketball Tuesday night.

Kearney, winning its 10th victory in 11 starts, swept to a 5933 halftime advantage before pulling the regulars.

New Gym May Prevent Litchfield Cage Slump

By RANDY YORK
Prep Sports Editor

One wouldn't think a new gym would make too much difference to a high school basketball program.

But at Litchfield it has. Litchfield coaches Jim Jancki and Bob Smith credit the school's new 1,200-seat facility for the Class D Trojans' fast 9-0 start this season.

"It's made all the difference in the world," says Smith, Jancki's assistant for four prosperous seasons which has seen Litchfield win 59 of 73 games.

According to Smith, Jancki has been running his troops constantly in the bigger facility, which features comfortable backs for each seat and plenty of legroom for all fans.

Both Litchfield coaches are hoping the better physical conditioning will prevent any "running out of gas" during the ultra-important stretch drive in late February and early March.

The Trojans have plenty of talent in their bid for their first state tourney appearance since the 1930's.

Bruce Hird, a 6-9 all-state candidate, is one. He's established a reputation as a team-oriented player — always looking for the open man on offense.

Well, last week in the Loup Valley Tournament finals at Ansley, Hird WAS the open man. Just ask Arnold, the solid Class C team which battled Class D's third-rated Litchfield in the tourney finals.

Hird made his usual contributions — 22 rebounds, 10 blocked shots and 7 assists. But he also went to the basket more aggressively than ever.

Hird's overall wallop made him a one-man wrecking crew against Arnold. But Jancki's club is far from that.

Balance has been the name of the game all season. In fact, until the Arnold game, Litchfield had placed four players in double scoring figures in each of its first eight games.

Litchfield's offense has flourished so well that last year's two leading scorers — Hird and 5-9 senior guard Brad Howard — rank only 3-4 this season.

It's not that either has been ineffective. Hird is slightly ahead of last year's 14.6 scoring average and Howard is four below last year's 18.9 average.

Both are shooting as well, percentage-wise when they led Litchfield to an 18-2 record last season. They've merely given way somewhat to a pair of hot-handed juniors.

Joe Lucas, a 5-9 forward classified as a good leaper, is scoring at a 19-point clip for Litchfield this season. Fellow junior Dick Wardyn, a 6-3 forward, has averaged 17 points.

Hird's main concentration has been on rebounding. He went out for football for the first time last fall, increased his weight to 210 pounds and earned all-Loup Valley honors as a defensive tackle.

The experience made him a more aggressive rebounder. He's averaging 22 a game this season.

Teammate Howard, nearing 1,000 career points and 500 career assists since starting as a freshman, is Litchfield's playmaker and team leader. He's the one who makes things happen offensively and defensively.

Memphis Eyes Kiffin

Although Mississippi State head coach Bob Tyler is the top candidate for the vacated Memphis State football post, Nebraska defensive coordinator Monte Kiffin is high on the list, according to an Associated Press release out of Memphis.

In addition to Tyler and Kiffin, those most prominently mentioned are Richard Williamson, an assistant at Arkansas and Georgia offensive coordinator Bill Pace.

It is known that following the NCAA convention in Washington, D.C. last week, the Nebraska assistant returned to New Jersey, his recruiting territory for the Huskers, and as yet has not been interviewed for the Memphis State job.

Lincoln-Lancaster Health Board Will Set Up Bennet Nursing Unit

By JIM DeCAMP
Star Staff Writer

The Lincoln-Lancaster County Health Board voted Tuesday night to establish a nursing station in Bennet on a six-month trial basis.

The station will be set up in the Bennet Community Church basement and will be open once a month.

Nancy Kolb, a rural health nurse in the Bennet area, said she felt there was a need for a nursing station there and she was not satisfying the needs of the community by making only home visits.

Petition Delivered

The community has already arranged for non-nursing personnel to assist in the operation of the station.

In other business, the board approved a response to the mayor by department Director E.D. Lyman dealing with emergency medical service recommendations of the County-City Implementation Commission.

In his response to the mayor, Dr. Lyman said that it is appropriate to designate the City-County Health Department as the agent of the city and county to establish quality standards for the area's emergency medical services.

Dr. Lyman also said that "it would be well that the proposed County-City Emergency Medical Service Council be established by the county Board and the City Council and made advisory to the Board of Health.

Official Status

By doing it is that manner, he said, the advisory body would have official status with the city and county governments which would otherwise be unattainable.

The board also voted Tuesday night to send a letter to Gov. J. James Exon requesting him to ask that the state have the duty of making inspections of water supplies in accordance with the Clean Water Act of 1974 and that the health department be the arm of government to make the insepctions.

The Clean Water Act of 1974 will set standards for water systems serving five or more paying customers or 25 or more individuals daily.

There are approximately 8,000 systems in the state which will fall within the provisions of the act, Dr. Lyman said.

On other matters, the board nominated Mrs. Cherita Richardson and Bill Chapin to represent consumer interests on the dental health advisory committee.

IRS Chief: Don't Wait For Rebate

Donard C. Alexander, commissioner of the Internal Revenue Service, said in a statement that the size of any possible rebate could be determined only after the agency receives and processes the taxpayer's return.

Alexander stressed that refunds for overpayment of taxes for 1974 would be made without any bearing on the proposed tax rebate.

Alexander said early filers due a refund still will be able to get their money back within four or five weeks, while those who wait until near the April 15 deadline may have to wait twice as long.

Pershing Auditorium Board Ponders Heat

The anticipated closing of the city-owned K St. power plant will necessitate a conversion from steam heat to some other heating system, said auditorium Manager Ivan Hoig.

"Presently, I think we're going to use gas, with a back-up of electricity," Hoig said. However, no action has yet been taken.

Charles Thomsen, member of a Lincoln architectural firm, told board members that the primary advantage of a gas heating system is that gas is "lower in cost, at present rates."

In addition, Thomsen noted that the auditorium already has a gas heating system that can be put to full-time use.

The conversion will also involve the installation of a stand-by electric system, as required by the gas supplier, Thomsen said.

Estimates indicate that the installation of such a stand-by system will cost approximately $128,000.

According to Hoig, the new heating system, if approved, should be ready for use during the next heating season.

By TOM VINT
Outdoor Writer

Fremont — Tourism in Nebraska is big business. Not as big as famous tourism states like Florida or Colorado, but big business just the same.

Out-staters visit the Cornhusker state for camping, fishing, historical visits and just stopping through on the interstate system. And now, an enterprising group in Fremont are capitalizing on another tourist attraction, Nebraska's hunting.

Each year thousands of visitors come to Nebraska with an eye on the state's top game bird, the pheasant. Woodcliff Big Game Ranch founder John Poehling and his crew have added another dimension in bringing exotic game hunting to the wooded bluffs of the Platte River south of Fremont.

Apparently Poehling's system is on its way to luring a future of steady traffic to the Fremont area Last week a group of 11 Canadian visitors made a weeklong stay with pheasants and Woodcliff's exotic Russian wild boar, Spanish and Catalina goat the targets.

"We saw the advertisement for this place in NEBRASKAland Magazine," Allister Duncan said. Duncan was one of 11 Winnipeg, Manitoba, Canada, residents journeying to Nebraska for a week of hunting.

"We were just sitting around the house and just got this thing (NEBRASKAland)," he continued. "I was thumbing through it and found the ad and thought I'd write them."

"That was at 1:30 in the morning," Tunney Hovorka added with a laugh. "Allister called me up and asked what I thought. Allister said since we're going after pheasants we might as well bring back some big game."

Duncan made his point well as Hovorka and nine more hunters made the trip south. It was Duncan's second trip to Nebraska for pheasants but the group's first go for exotic game in the state

Hovorka termed the hunt a "fun hunt" for the Canadians. They found Nebraska and Nebraskans to their liking, and the Big Game Ranch a special treat

"This is better than I thought it would be," Hovorka said after bagging his 300-plus-pound wild boar. Woodcliff offers the trophy hunting in a special 200-acre plot with heavy cover and steep terrain.

Nebraska's pheasants weren't as cooperative for the group, however. Duncan indicated the number of birds seen was down considerably from a year ago. But the stay was still a happy one for the group, and for Fremont's businesses, according to reports from Hovorka.

"I know with a wild boar and a sheep, I'm going to spend about $800 on this trip," Duncan added "I've spent so much money hunting over the years (probably about $3,000 this year), and, shucks, I've never been sorry I've spent it "

Woodcliff, with it's big game, isn't the only Fremont business collecting some of those benefits as the Canadians stayed in a Fremont motel, ate meals in Fremont restaurants and contributed to the welfare of numerous other Fremont establishments.

Woodcliff is beginning its second year of operation in the Fremont area, according to its owners, and plans are to expand existing facilities as more money comes in

"A day doesn't go by that we don't have several inquiries about hunting here," Larry Voecks, big game hunt coordinator explained ' We've found our national advertising in the outdoor magazines to be our biggest boost. We think the future looks pretty good right now "

Nebraska's tourism department has always felt hunting was good business Now Woodcliff has come along to make it even better for the state's tourist income

Prep Honor To Filley's Thompson

By RANDY YORK
Prep Sports Editor

It isn't an official nickname yet, but Filley's Lyle Thompson is getting known more and more as Mr. Clutch.

His teammates rely on him in the most critical situations and he's been delivering all season, especially in the Mudecas Conference Basketball Tournament.

Thompson's accomplishments have paved the way for nine Filley wins in 10 games and earn him the Sunday Journal and Star's prep Player of the Week award.

In the Mudecas, Thompson definitely was the difference The 5-11 senior guard scored 87 points in three tourney games, including 36 in the semifinals against Murdock and 28 against previously unbeaten Adams in the title game

His effort against Murdock demonstrates his value as a clutch performer. Thompson scored his team's last 22 points, including 14 in the final quarter and eight in an overtime session.

Thompson deposited both ends of a 1-and-1 free throw situation with five seconds remaining to edge Adams, 53-52, in the championship game He finished 12 of 13 from the free throw line against the Hornets.

"We have to go to him in the clutch," Filley coach Eldon Johnson says of Thompson. "There's not a man we feel he can't beat one-on-one. He seems to get better under pressure."

Others who will receive Player of the Week cards from last week's abbreviated prep slate include

Kelly Ficken, Davenport — Against Ohiowa, 6-1 junior forward hit 21 of 38 field goals and 9 of 11 free throws for 51 points — highest output this season for a Nebraska prepster He also retrieved 24 rebounds

Marc Young, Cozad — Six-two senior picked off 26 rebounds, had five blocked shots and scored 13 points as Haymakers withstood 59 58 Southwest Conference challenge from Ogallala

Brad Fults, Bever City — Scored 89 points in three games to lead Class D rated team's drive to the Mid-Valley League championship He bagged 33 points in title win over Class C Cambridge

Randy Dickerson, Scottsbluff — Junior guard, who had scored only 17 points in team's previous nine games, produced 14 to pace Bear cats to 59-43 win over McCook

Bruce Hird, Litchfield — Six nine senior collected 69 rebounds in three games as Class D rated team swept to Loup-Valley Tournament title In championship win over Class C Arnold, he hit 11 of 19 field goals en route to 27 points had 22 rebounds, 10 blocked shots and 7 assists

Randy Florell, Holdrege — Senior who broke into the starting lineup in late December registered 21 points and grabbed 13 rebounds in Dusters' win over Broken Bow

Bill Ourada, Elm Creek — Led team from third quarter deficit to decisive 13 point win over Loomis He scored game high 22 points and grabbed 11 rebounds

Big Eight Goes 52-42

Big Eight Conference basketball teams, except for Kansas State's contest tonight against Arkansas, have completed the non-conference season with a respectable 52 victories and 42 defeats.

That's not quite as good as the 61-35 record of a year ago, but not bad considering the opposition the teams tackled. Conference schools have met 10 of the teams currently ranked in the top twenty in the nation.

Unfortunately, those games against the elite have resulted in 0-13 record, indicating where the league stands in relation to hopes of winning a national championship.

Defending Big Eight champion Kansas, a semifinalist in last year's NCAA tournament, was ranked sixth in the pre-season press association polls. The Jayhawks, however, have dropped out of sight with an 8-4 record, including three victories in the conferences's tournament in Kansas City.

Starting Saturday, it'll be all neighborhood brawls the rest of the season as the league championship race begins. The winner will earn the NCAA tourney bid, possibly for the last time since a proposal is being studied to hold the conference tournament at the end of the season rather than during the Christmas holidays.

Kansas remains the favorite to repeat, but the Jayhawks have to get things put together in a hurry if that is to happen. Lurking as challengers are Oklahoma, Nebraska and Kansas State with Iowa State also a possibility.

Considered out of it are Oklahoma State, Missouri and Colorado.

KSU Key Game For Huskers

Bouncing back from an 80-63 tournament loss to Kansas State will be a key for Coach Joe Cipriano's Huskers if they are to be a factor in the race. It will be equally important for them to repeat a tourney victory over Oklahoma when the two teams meet a week from Wednesday in Norman.

A 2-0 start for the Huskers concievably could be stretched into a 5-0 record going to Kansas on Feb. 5 for what then would be another crucial contest.

After facing KSU and OU, Nebraska has a pair of home games against Colorado and Oklahoma State and a road test at Missouri before facing the Jayhawks.

With such an evenly balanced conference, I'm sure Cipriano, like any other basketball coach, doesn't want to look any farther ahead than Saturday's 2:10 p.m. game in the NU Coliseum against the Wildcats.

With competition so even, there's potential for disaster any time the ball is tossed in the air to start a game if a team isn't mentally and physically prepared for the tough game.

Pacific-8 Record Best

The Pacific-8 Conference, with three teams ranked among the top eight in the Associated Press poll, has posted the best record against non-conference opponents of any league. The mark is 65-17 with UCLA (10-0) and Oregon (9-0) undefeated and Southern California with just one loss in 11 games.

Arizona, Arizona State and Texas-ElPaso have combined for a 31-3 record to make the Western Athletic Conference next overall at 68-19.

Here are the records of the other conferences: Atlantic Coast 45-16, Big Ten 54-28, Southeastern 48-28, Missouri Valley 48-25, Mid-American 41-26, Pacific Coast Athletic Association 48-32, and the West Coast Athletic Conference 40-33.

Only the Ivy League and Southwest Conference have lost more games than they've won. The Ivy is 23-43 and the SWC is 36-50.

Conference races already are underway in most leagues and here are my predictions of the probable champions. I'm listing the conferences in the order of how I rate the overall strength of the leagues:.

1. Pacific-8 — UCLA; 2. Atlantic Coast — North Carolina State; 3. Southeastern — Kentucky; 4. Big Ten — Indiana; 5. Western Athletic — Arizona State; 6. Missouri Valley — Louisville; 7. Big Eight — Kansas; 8. Mid-American — Central Michigan.

And the rest: 9. West Coast A.C. — San Francisco; 10. San Jose State; 11. Ohio Valley — Middle Tennessee; 12. Southwest — Texas Tech; 13. Big Sky — Montana; 14. Southern — Furman; 15. Ivy League — Pennsylvania.

Picking the final four of the NCAA in San Diego: North Carolina State, Indiana, Louisville and UCLA. The champion: Guess!

NWU Matmen To Host Doane

Actually, it won't be the same Doane team that invades Taylor Gym at 7 p.m. according to Wesleyan coach Ron Backman.

"Doane has suffered some injuries, so they won't have as many wrestlers as they normally do," Backman said. "They've also had some problems making weights after Christmas vacation."

The Plainsmen are lead by Tim Knight, 5-0 at 158-pounds and Dan Thomas, 3-0 at 150-pounds. Heavyweight Sam Martin has posted a 5-1 mark while Larry Coufal is 3-1 at 177 pounds.

Hembree Leads Burwood Tourney

Beatrice — Hugh Hembree of Lincoln has taken the lead in all events after the first two of six weekends of bowling in the Burwood Tournament at Tonka Lanes here.

Hembree leads a Lincoln contingent of leaders with a 1895 total. Max Jensen ranks third with 1833 while Ken Kuhl is fourth with 1811. In addition Nebraska University student Gary Kropp of Wymore is second with 1843.

In doubles action, Lincolnites Wes Shepard and Don Flynn rank fourth with a 1253 total in the handicap event while two Lincoln teams, Action Plumbing and Rendezvous Lounge, are second and fourth with scores of 3067 and 3057.

KU Promotions To Fambrough

LAWRENCE, Kan. (AP) — Don Fambrough, who resigned last month as Kansas head football coach, has been named promotions director of KU's athletic department.

Clyde Walker, athletic director, said Fambrough will be responsible for ticket promotion and advertising.

Fambrough, 52, has been at Kansas 23 years, 19 of those as an assistant football coach before succeeding Pepper Rodgers as head coach in January 1971.

Bud Moore, an assistant under Paul "Bear" Bryant at Alabama, was named the new head coach after Fambrough's resignation.

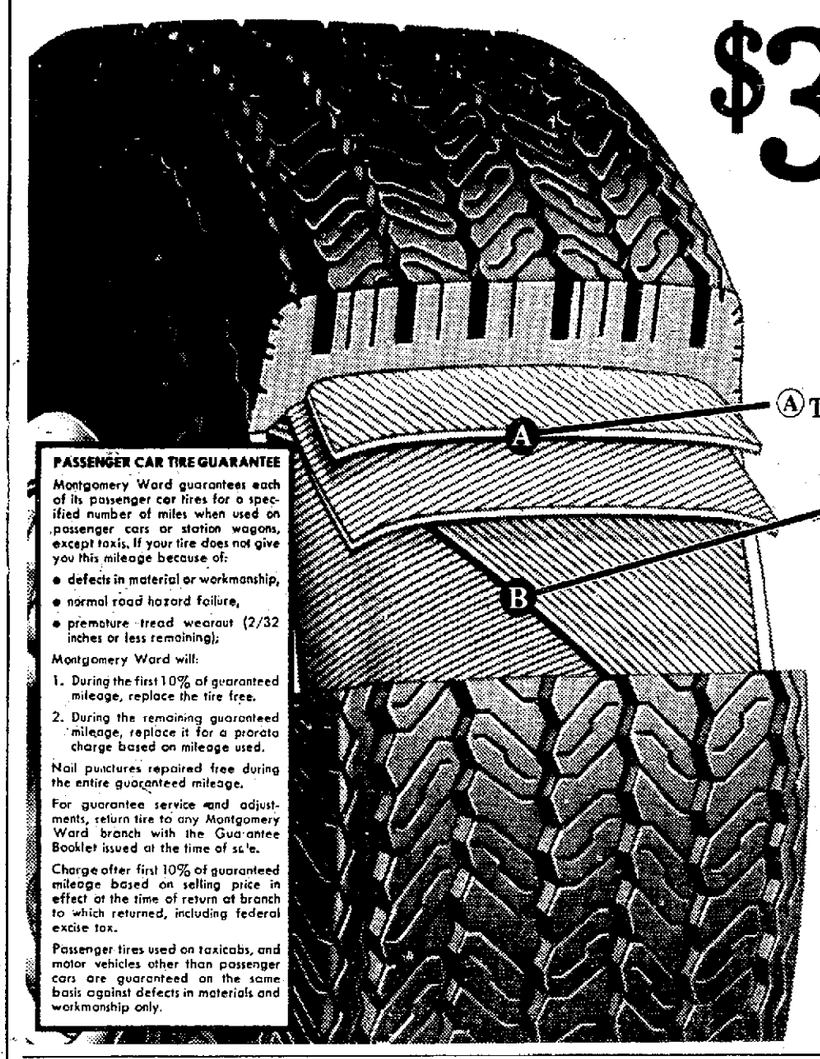

Sears Resigns Coaching Post

Sears had been head coach there for two years. His 1974 team had a 7-2-1 record and won the Galaxie Conference championship.

It was also announced that former Nebraska tight end and Green Bay Packer Brent Longwell has been employed as head track coach.

Pershing Auditorium Board Ponders Heat

Heat was the main topic of discussion Tuesday during the meeting of the Pershing Municipal Auditorium board of directors.

The anticipated closing of the city-owned K St. power plant will necessitate a conversion from steam heat to some other heating system, said auditorium Manager Ivan Hoig.

"Presently, I think we're going to use gas, with a back-up of electricity," Hoig said. However, no action has yet been taken.

Charles Thomsen, member of a Lincoln architectural firm, told board members that the primary advantage of a gas heating system is that gas is "lower in cost, at present rates."

In addition, Thomsen noted that the auditorium already has a gas heating system that can be put to full-time use.

The conversion will also involve the installation of a stand-by electric system, as required by the gas supplier, Thomsen said.

Estimates indicate that the installation of such a stand-by system will cost approximately $128,000.

According to Hoig, the new heating system, if approved, should be ready for use during the next heating season.

IRS Chief: Don't Wait For Rebate

Washington (AP) — The nation's top tax collector advised citizens Tuesday not to wait for action on President Ford's proposed tax rebate before filing 1974 returns.

Donard C. Alexander, commissioner of the Internal Revenue Service, said in a statement that the size of any possible rebate could be determined only after the agency receives and processes the taxpayer's return.

Alexander stressed that refunds for overpayment of taxes for 1974 would be made without any bearing on the proposed tax rebate.

Alexander said early filers due a refund still will be able to get their money back within four or five weeks, while those who wait until near the April 15 deadline may have to wait twice as long.

Lincoln-Lancaster Health Board Will Set Up Bennet Nursing Unit

By JIM DeCAMP
Star Staff Writer

The Lincoln-Lancaster County Health Board voted Tuesday night to establish a nursing station in Bennet on a six-month trial basis.

The station will be set up in the Bennet Community Church basement and will be open once a month.

Nancy Kolb, a rural health nurse in the Bennet area, said she felt there was a need for a nursing station there and she was not satisfying the needs of the community by making only home visits.

Petition Delivered

The community has already arranged for non-nursing personnel to assist in the operation of the station.

In other business, the board approved a response to the mayor by department Director E.D. Lyman dealing with emergency medical service recommendations of the County-City Implementation Commission.

In his response to the mayor, Dr. Lyman said that it is appropriate to designate the City-County Health Department as the agent of the city and county to establish quality standards for the area's emergency medical services.

Dr. Lyman also said that "it would be well that the proposed County-City Emergency Medical Service Council be established by the county Board and the City Council and made advisory to the Board of Health.

Official Status

By doing it is that manner, he said, the advisory body would have official status with the city and county governments which would otherwise be unattainable.

The board also voted Tuesday night to send a letter to Gov. J. James Exon requesting him to ask that the state have the duty of making inspections of water supplies in accordance with the Clean Water Act of 1974 and that the health department be the arm of government to make the insepctions.

The Clean Water Act of 1974 will set standards for water systems serving five or more paying customers or 25 or more individuals daily.

There are approximately 8,000 systems in the state which will fall within the provisions of the act, Dr. Lyman said.

On other matters, the board nominated Mrs. Cherita Richardson and Bill Chapin to represent consumer interests on the dental health advisory committee.

is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Here is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you. 1-15

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE — Here's how to work it:

is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Here is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you. 1-15
